Explanation,—... indicates that no rain has fallen. If the return for any day has not been received, the corresponding space is left blank. If any of the returns are wanting, the corresponding spaces in the total rainfall columns are left blank. With reference to the column of rainy days, the definition of a rainy day is when at least 0·1 inch of rain has fallen.

CALCUTTA, the 21st February 1893.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL FOR THE WEEK ENDING 8 A.M., SATURDAY, THE 18TH OF FEBRUARY 1893.

In the middle and close of the previous week a barometric depression had passed through the province and had given general rain, while following in the rear of the depression a wave of cold air had swept over the province, and hence the cold weather conditions had again became rather strongly developed, and the mean temperature on the 11th was in defect of the normal by from 5° to 7°. On the 12th a moderate to rather rapid decrease of pressure took place, while temperature was increasing rapidly, the increase varying from about 2° to 4°. Winds also became a little unsteady and were more or less southerly in many cases, so that there was a rather rapid increase in humidity, but weather still remained fine in Bengal with lightly clouded skies. On the other hand, on this day a barometric depression had appeared over North-Western and Western India, and this was travelling rather rapidly in an easterly direction, and on the 13th a shallow low pressure area existed over the Central Provinces and the west of Bengal, while a secondary depression had appeared in the Punjab. The depression which was affecting Bengal gave a moderate to rather rapid fall of pressure over the province, while the usual rapid increase of temperature took place, the increase equalling about 3° to 4°. Moist south-easterly winds set in over practically the whole province, the sky had clouded over, and a few rain showers were reported in the west and south of the province. On the 14th the depression had reached Orissa and the north-west of the Bay, where there was a distinct tendency to cyclonic circulation of winds, pressure had become below the normal by amounts ranging up to 0·08″ at Gopalpur, while temperature began to fall at many stations owing to the fairly general rain which was reported in all districts except Orissa. On the 15th the depression had apparently filled up or passed away in an easterly direction, pressure was rising moderately rapidly, and temperature was falling, while fairly dry westerly and north-westerly winds were generally setting in. Weather therefore commenced to clear, and on this day the showers were comparatively few in number. On the 16th weather had become fine over practically the whole of Bengal, pressure was increasing moderately to rapidly, while the temperature changes were irregular and winds were a little less steady than on the 15th. Over the central parts of India, however, another shallow depression had formed on the 16th, and was passing in an easterly or south-easterly direction and it affected Bengal from the 17th, when an extremely rapid fall of pressure took place, the fall at some of the western stations exceeding a fifth of an inch, and pressure again became moderately in defect of the normal, while the mean temperature also remained from one to two degrees lower than usual. Winds had, however, again become south-easterly in connection with the depression at almost all stations, and fairly general rain was reported on this date from Bihar and parts of North Bengal. On the 18th, or the last day of the week, the fall of pressure continued over the eastern half of Bengal and over Orissa, while an increase had set in over the western districts, and hence the depression had again moved in an easterly and south-easterly direction, temperature had generally slowly risen and was in excess of the normal in the southern and south-western districts, while westerly winds were blowing over the western half of the province and south-easterly winds over the eastern half. The area of rainfall had also advanced in an easterly direction, and fairly general rain was received in South-West Bengal and parts of North and East Bengal and Chota Nagpur. Hence conditions at the close of the week were decidedly unsettled, and good general rain has again been received in nearly all divisions of the province.

Pressure.—The variations of pressure during the week have again been very large, but of more or less opposite character, so that the variation of the mean is small. The mean pressure for the week has been in excess of the normal in all except some of the western and south-western districts. Slightly defective pressures are thus shown in Orissa and in parts of Chota Nagpur, but elsewhere slight excess pressures are recorded, but the general excess is not larger than about 0·02″, the largest excess being shown at the north-eastern stations.

Temperature.—The mean temperature for the whole province for the week has been in defect of the normal by 1·8°, but the defect has been mainly confined to South-West Bengal, South Bihar and Chota Nagpur, where it has averaged nearly three degrees. This defect has, however, been almost entirely in the day or maximum temperature, which at many stations have been from 5° to 7° below the normal, while the night or minimum temperatures have been nearly normal.

The distribution of temperature for the week and its variation from the normal value are best seen in the table below, where the average maximum, minimum, and mean temperatures for the week at nine typical stations in different districts of the province are compared with the normal values for the week:—

Rainfall.—Rather heavy falls have again occurred in all divisions: the falls have averaged an inch and-a-half in South-West Bengal, one inch in Chota Nagpur, and about three-quarters of an inch over the remainder of the province, and these falls have hence been in all cases rather largely in excess of the normal.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Saturday, the 18th of February 1893:—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

o, overcast; g, gloomy; d, drizzling rain; t, thunder; p, passing temporary showers; ≏, dew; <, lightning.

IRRIGATION.

The 14th February 1893.

No. 35.—Notification.—The following rules, having reference to all the lines of navigation included in the following canal systems, viz., the Orissa Canals, the Midnapore Canal with branch to Narainghar, the Hijili Tidal Canal, the Orissa Coast Canal, and the Sone Canals, are proposed to be passed by the Lieutenant-Governor under the provisions of section XI of the "Canals Act, 1864," No. V (B.C.), in supersession of those now in force.

1. Every vessel, entering or passing along any of the above lines of navigation, shall be liable to measurement for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of toll the vessel should pay according to the schedule of rates authorized by Government to be charged on the line of navigation.

2. The tonnage of every vessel, except loose timber and raft, whether laden or empty, shall, for the purposes of the "Canals Act, 1864," and of these rules, be determined by the following measurements :—

(a) The product in feet of half the length of the vessel, measured along the water-line and round the contour of the vessel from centre of stem to centre of stern-post, multiplied by the interior greatest breadth of the vessel or by the greatest breadth of the cargo, should this overhang, or, as in the case of logs, be lashed alongside, multiplied by the greatest depth from the water-line to the bottom of the keel of the vessel, is to be taken as equal to the number of maunds upon which toll shall be levied.

(b) The measurement of the length is to be made in feet, rejecting fractions of a foot, and the measurement of the breadth and depth in feet and quarters of feet, rejecting portions of less than a quarter of a foot.

(c) In calculating the amount of toll to be levied, any portion of 100 maunds less than 10 maunds is to be omitted.

(d) In calculating the amount of toll to be levied on steamers, an allowance of one-third the total maundage as found under clauses a, b, and c is to be made for engine space.

3. Every vessel entering or passing along any of the above lines of navigation shall be furnished with a ticket on paying the prescribed toll. The ticket shall specify the station at which it has been issued, the name of the person in charge of the vessel, the date on which the voyage commenced, the point to which the vessel may proceed on the line of navigation the maundage of the vessel, the amount of toll charged, the number of days allowed for the voyage, and the date of such last day. The number of days so allowed without additional payment shall be calculated at the rate of one day for every eight miles, or portion of eight miles, to be traversed together with one day for every two hundred maunds of measurement. In the case of rafts, one day for every five miles shall be allowed.

4. Toll may be paid at the first station, either for the entire number of toll-stations on the line of navigation, or for any less number of stations.

5. The tickets thus given may be demanded for inspection by any duly authorised navigation officer, and must be kept on board and at hand for that purpose. They must be shown at each toll-station the vessel has to pass, as a passport that no further payment of toll is to be demanded. The tickets shall be delivered up at the last toll-station.

Navigation officers shall have authority to check-measure vessels whenever they consider it necessary, and if the toll due according to the check-measurement exceeds that originally paid, the difference shall be payable at the toll station of check-measurement, or at the next toll-station which the vessel may arrive at, if the check-measurement was made at some point other than a toll-station. The officer collecting the difference shall endorse the ticket, showing the measurements, and noting the amount recovered in excess of the toll originally paid.

6. Owners or hirers of vessels may compound, by the payment of a fixed sum, for the use of the whole or portion of any of the above lines of navigation for any period that may be agreed upon, not exceeding one year. Each vessel so compounded for shall be furnished with a ticket showing the amount of toll paid, the period for which the toll has been compounded for, and the limits of the line of navigation within which the vessel may pass. Such ticket shall be kept on board the vessel, and shall be produced when required under Rule 5, but shall be given up only on the date of the expiry of the period for which granted, and at the station from whence issued.

7. Duplicates of lost tickets, of which the numbers and dates of entry can be satisfactorily established, will be granted by the officers in charge of toll-stations on payment of a fee of one rupee.

8. Every vessel which does not complete its voyage within the number of days allowed by Rule 3 shall, for each day or part of a day in excess, be liable to an extra charge equal to the full amount of toll as determined by Rule 2. No charge for demurrage under this rule shall exceed rupees ten per month for any boat. The Superintending Engineer may at his discretion exempt any boats on any line of navigation, or any portion of a line of navigation, from the payment required by this rule.

9. The Superintending Engineer in charge of the Circle in which the line of navigation is situated, shall fix such places as he may consider necessary, at which vessels may remain while waiting for cargo or otherwise, without any charge. Any vessel which on the completion of a voyage or on entering the canal remains for a period of 24 hours or more at any place in the line of navigation other than one so fixed, shall be liable to an extra charge per diem as provided in rule 8, which shall be recoverable as toll.

10. The Superintending Engineer in charge of the Circle shall notify at what places on the line of navigation vessels may be ordinarily loaded or unloaded. Permission to load or unload at places other than those so notified, may be granted in special cases by the navigation officers. Should any vessel be loaded or unloaded at any place other than those notified by the Superintending Engineer, and without the permission specified above having been obtained, the person in charge of the vessel and the consignor or consignee of the goods shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to a fine not exceeding Rs. 10 for each offence.

11. Except with the written permission of a navigation officer, no goods or cargo may be deposited on any bank, berm, or land appertaining to the canal at places other than those notified by the Superintending Engineer of the Circle, as available for such a purpose. Any person depositing goods in contravention of the above rule, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to a fine not exceeding Rs. 50.

12. Navigation officers may order consignors, or consignees, or owners to remove their goods from the places notified as available for depositing cargo under rule 11. Goods not finally removed within a period of six days from the receipt of such order, shall be liable to a charge of four annas per 100 maunds, for each day or part of a day after the expiry of the six days, until finally removed.

13. No vessel of dimensions exceeding those which shall be notified for each line of navigation by the Superintending Engineer in charge of the Circle will be allowed to enter such line of navigation or to pass along it.

14. It will not be compulsory for the locks to be opened to single vessels of less than 500 maunds burden, except in the case of mail or despatch boats or passenger or cargo boats in tow of steam vessels; but the locks shall be opened for the passage of boats at least twice a day.

15. Mooring.—All vessels stopping at night must be moored head and stern, to the bank of the channel, or wherever specially ordered.

Only one line of vessels shall be allowed to pass along a canal or to make fast along and in a line with the canal banks or along and in a line with the banks of the river entrances to the locks, and no vessel shall be made fast, or be placed outside of vessels so secured, without the permission of a navigation officer. No vessel shall, however, be placed in such a position as to endanger the safety of other vessels, to obstruct their passage, or to impede the navigation.

16. Rule of the Road.—When under sail, vessels are to keep in the centre of the channel. When being tracked, vessels are, wherever practicable, to keep to starboard or right side of the channel. Vessels meeting in a canal, except when being tracked, must keep to their right when passing, and when one vessel overtakes another, the former must pass on the left. Vessels, one of which is sailing and the other steaming, meeting in a canal, the sailing vessel to keep to the leeward A steamer passing any vessel is bound to go at a speed not greater than half speed.

17. Lights and Signals —All vessels, whether travelling or moored in a line of navigation, must between sunset and sunrise carry a white light, in a lantern on the fore part of the vessel where it can be distinctly seen from ahead. All steam-vessels in motion shall carry the lights prescribed by the Board of Trade Regulations. Barges or boats attached to a steam-vessel, whether in motion or moored, shall carry the white light prescribed above.

Where signals are used no vessel shall enter or attempt to enter the entrance channel of a lock when a red flag or red light is displayed at the end of the lock next her. Steam-vessels approaching a lock shall whistle when a mile distant, and shall continue to whistle at intervals until the signal intimating that the lock is open or closed is displayed, or, if no signals are used, until arrival.

18. Crews and attendants.—Every vessel when stationary shall be securely fastened, and shall at all times have some person in attendance on board. Every vessel in motion shall have a sufficient crew.

19. Fittings.—Vessels must have their masts, high awnings, and funnels fitted so that they can be let down with ease and speed, and no bamboos or poles shall be erected on or by vessels when at anchor.

20. Conduct of navigation.—Vessels are prohibited from making fast to any portion of the lockgates or gearing, and steamers are prohibited from making fast the tow lines of their boats until the latter are clear of the locks. Steamers are prohibited from lashing boats or barges alongside while proceeding within locks. Towing ropes of a greater length than 50 feet are not to be used in a canal. The throwing of cinders into any canal is prohibited; they are to be deposited on the banks.

21. In every case of wreck or obstruction of the channel by sunken vessels, the Supervisor of the line of navigation or of a part of it may call upon the person in charge of the vessel to remove the same without delay, and shall give every reasonable assistance towards so doing. But should the owner of the vessel or raft be not forthcoming, or should he not use reasonable expedition in removing the obstruction, or should he decline or fail to use proper assistance which may be offered to him by the Supervisor, this officer may, under the provisions of section XIV of the Act, undertake the removal of the obstruction himself at the cost of the owner of the boat, recovering the expense in the manner laid down in section IX of the "Canals Act, 1864."

22. If the Supervisor be unable to ascertain the name and place of business or of abode of the owner of the cargo of any vessel or boats seized under the "Canals Act," he shall notify the seizure in the most public manner available.

23. In the event of any damage or injury being occasioned to the canal works by wilfulness or negligence on the part of any person in charge of a vessel, the navigation officers may detain the vessel at any point within the canal for a period not exceeding 48 hours; provided that, within that period, the navigation officers shall lodge a complaint against such person in charge of the vessel before a Magistrate under section XVI of the "Canals Act."

24. For any contravention of rules 15, 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20, the person in charge of the vessel shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to a fine not exceeding Rs 50.

IRRIGATION.

The 17th January 1893.

No.* 11.—Notification.—It is hereby notified for general information that the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal proposes, under the provisions of section XI of Act V (B.C.) of 1864, to pass the following rules in modification of those now in force in the Calcutta Canals and Tolly's Nala from 1st April 1893 :—

I.—Every vessel on entering the Calcutta Canals or Tolly's Nala shall be liable to measurement for the purpose of ascertaining the tolls payable; and in case of any reasonable doubt arising, the Canal Officers at any toll-station shall have authority to measure a vessel notwithstanding that it was measured on entering the canal.

II.—The tonnage of every vessel, whether laden or empty, shall, for the purposes of Act V of 1864 (B L.C.) and of these rules, be determined by the following measurements :—

A.*—The product in feet of quarter the length of the vessel from stem to stern, measured along the water line, multiplied by the interior greatest breadth of the vessel, multiplied by the depth from the waterline to the bottom of the vessel, is to be taken as equal to the number of maunds upon which toll shall be levied.

B.*—The measurement of the length is to be made in feet, rejecting inches; the measurement of the breadth and depth is to be made in feet and quarters of a foot, rejecting portions of less than a quarter of a foot in net depth.

C.*—In calculating the amount of toll to be levied, any portion of 100 maunds less than 10 maunds is to be omitted.

D.—Provided that in the case of vessels which entered the canals at Chitpore, Kidderpore, and Chetla empty for the purpose of loading therein, the depth shall be measured from the line of usual immersion as visible on the outside of the vessel to the bottom of the vessel, and not from the line of actual immersion at the time of measurement.

E.—In the case of steamers the tonnage, as determined by clauses A, B, C, and D, shall be reduced by one-third as an allowance for engine space.

III.—Every vessel entering the canals shall be furnished with a ticket on payment of the prescribed toll. The manjee's name, the date and hour of entry, the maundage of the vessel, the cargo it contains, and amount of toll charged, shall be entered in this ticket to identify the vessel on which toll has been paid.

IV.—Every person in charge of a boat, raft, or float, who shall pass in the canal without tendering the toll due, or who shall pass out of the canal without delivering to the toll-keeper the ticket of entrance and paying the rent that be due, shall be liable to be detained and punished according to section 10 of Act V of 1864.

V.—This ticket may be demanded and inspected by any Canal Officer, and must be kept on board and at hand for that purpose.

VI.—Every person in charge of boats entering the Calcutta Canals from the eastward must tender his toll ticket to the officer at Dhappa and Panspotta pass-stations to have it examined, stamped, and signed; and for those entering from the westward, must deliver up the toll tickets at the above pass-stations and receive in lieu a pass, which pass must be delivered to the toll-keeper at entrance of canals. Every such person must also pay all dues, or be liable to be detained and dealt with according to section 10 of Act V of 1864.

VII.—Every person in charge of a boat found in the canals (westward of the pass-station) with toll tickets unstamped or unsigned by a pass-station-keeper will be detained and treated as having no toll ticket under section 10 of Act V of 1864.

VIII.—The manjee or owner of every vessel not having a ticket on board and producible on demand shall be liable to the provisions of section 10 of the Canals Act.

IX.—Duplicates of lost tickets, of which the numbers and date of entry can be satisfactorily established, will be granted by the Collector on further payment of a sum equal to the original amount of toll.

X.—During the detention of any vessel under section 9 of these rules, or under any other provision of the Act, the duty of Canal Officers will be to see that the vessel or its cargo are not clandestinely removed; but they are in no way responsible for its safety, for which the manjee, owner, or agent must make their own arrangements.

XI.—The purchaser of a vessel sold under these rules, and under the Act, will have the option of taking it out of the canal on the day of purchase, or of taking out a fresh toll ticket at the rate fixed by the Schedule of Tolls in force for the time being.

XII.—No boat engaged by any officer of Government, whether civil or military, shall be exempt from toll, on the ground that the officer is travelling on public duty. The only exception of this rule shall be in the case of vessels specially engaged in the conveyance of troops on military duty.

XIII.—All vessels the bonâ fide property of Government, or employed on works connected with the maintenance or improvement of the canals, and duly certified as such, shall be exempted from these tolls and charges. No other vessels whatever shall be exempted.

XIV.—Every vessel, raft, or float, which has paid toll, shall be allowed three days for passing through Circular Canals, and two days for Tolly's Nala between Gurreah and Kidderpore, and three days for Soorahs outside Dhappa Lock, the days of entering and of leaving being both included. In addition to these periods, they may, without further payment, remain in the canals for the further undermentioned periods, that is to say—

Circular Canal boats.—One day for every hundred maunds up to three hundred maunds of measurement, and one day for every two hundred maunds above three hundred maunds.

Tolly's Nala boats.—Two days for first hundred maunds, and one day for every hundred maunds above first hundred maunds.

Soorahs outside Dhappa Lock.—Same as for Tolly's Nala.

Floats in either channels.—Two days for any number of timbers not exceeding fifty, and one day for every additional fifty.

Rafts in either channels.—Two days for any number of bamboos not exceeding five hundred, and one day for every additional five hundred.

XV.—Every vessel, raft, or float remaining in any part of the aforesaid canals longer than the period allowed under the foregoing rules shall, for each day in excess of such period, be charged demurrage equal to one-half of the toll; and every vessel remaining more than thirty days in either of the canals shall, for each day in excess of thirty days, be charged demurrage equal to the full rate of toll, provided that in no case the demurrage charged shall exceed Rs. 5 per diem.

XVI.—Any vessel remaining in the canal more than two months without authority from the Supervisor shall be summarily removed.

XVII.—Boats requiring repairs shall be allowed to enter Dhappa Docks and remain there for a maximum period of thirty days, during which they will be charged at the rate of one-sixth part of the demurrage chargeable under Rule XV. Any boat remaining in the docks longer than thirty days without the special permission of the Supervisor shall pay demurrage at the full rate for such excess period.

XVIII.—No vessel shall be docked for repairs on the bank of the Calcutta Canal or of Tolly's Nala.

XIX.—Wherever mooring posts may have been put up by the Supervisor, vessels shall be made fast by the head and stern along the banks to such posts, and shall not be moored in any other manner.

XX.—The Supervisor may by notification prohibit the dropping of anchors or the putting up of bamboos or luggees in any part of the canals or on the banks; and in such parts no anchors shall be dropped, or luggees put up, under a penalty of fifty rupees, and of a fine not exceeding four rupees a day for continued disobedience of an order for removal issued by the Supervisor.

XXI.—Boats whilst loading or unloading in the canals will be allowed to use ladders; but the ladders must be gradually taken in as the water rises.

XXII.—As the water falls, the head and stern ropes must be loosened, and boats gradually pushed towards the centre of the canal: when the flood comes in, these two ropes must be gradually pulled in, and the boat kept as close to the bank as possible.

XXIII.—Only one boat shall be allowed to make fast along and in line with the canal banks, and no boat shall be made fast or be placed outside of boats so secured. No boat or raft shall be placed in such a position as to endanger the safety of other boats or obstruct the passage of other boats.

XXIV.—Boats passing through the canals shall keep in separate lines, empty boats keeping close to the bank and those that are laden in the centre.

XXV.—Hackeries, carts, bullocks, &c., using the canal roads shall, when stationary, be ranged on the side of the road farthest from the canal bank.

XXVI.—In portions of the canals where only one towing-path exists, vessels shall moor on the off side, and the towing-path side shall always be kept clear.

XXVII.—No persons shall place obstructions on the canal banks, roads, drains, or bridges (when such are on canal land), so as to impede a free passage along them or cause injury to them, or shall commit a nuisance, or deposit filth of any sort on the banks or in the canals.

XXVIII.—Any vessel, vehicle, or any other thing that may cause an obstruction to navigation, or to the banks, roads, drains, and bridges, or injury to the same, will be liable to be immediately removed and detained till all expenses incurred on account of removal, demands, and fines are paid. If a charge be not paid within ten days from date of detention, the said vessel, vehicle, or other thing will be sold to defray expenses.

XXIX.—"Whoever personally or by his or her servant infringes the provisions of any of the paragraphs 18, 19, and 20 to 27, both inclusive, of the foregoing rules, shall be liable, under section II, Act V of 1864 (B C.), to a fine not exceeding Rs. 50 for any one such infringement, or to a fine not exceeding Rs. 5 a day for a continued infringement."

Vide Notification No. 22, dated 16th January 1882, published in the Calcutta Gazette of 16th January 1882, page 60.

XXX.—At the instance of the Collector of Tolls, any Magistrate who imposes a fine under section 11 or 16 of the Act may award any portion of such fine to the informer.

XXXI.—Any person who wilfully or negligently allows a vessel to sink in the canals shall be liable to a fine not exceeding Rs. 50.

XXXII.—In every case of wreck caused by negligence or otherwise, the Supervisor and his subordinates will give every assistance in removing the same.

XXXIII.—A notice shall be affixed on such wreck when recovered, calling on those concerned to pay to the Collector all toll which may be due, or fine which may have been adjudged, as well as the expenses incurred in the recovery or removal of the wreck; and intimating that, if the sum be not paid within fifteen days of the date of notice, the boat and its furniture, or so much of it as may be necessary for the recovery of the dues, will be sold, the proceeds of the sale being dealt with as directed in section 9 of the Act.

XXXIV.—Every Canal Officer is authorized to remove any vessel, anchor, pole, or other thing which he may find in a position which is in contravention of these rules, and to deal with it in such a manner as may be necessary to give effect to the rules.

XXXV.—Whenever any laden vessel is seized by a Canal Officer, it shall be the duty of the Supervisor to give immediate notice of the same to the owner or his agent, requiring the removal of the cargo without delay, and informing him that he will be required to pay all expenses necessary for the proper custody and storage of the same.

XXXVI.—If the Supervisor be unable to ascertain the name and place of business or of abode of the owner of the cargo of any vessel or boat seized under the Canals Act, he shall notify the seizure by advertisement in his office, and in one or more of the Calcutta newspapers or advertisement papers. Such notice shall call upon the owner to cause the immediate removal of the cargo, and to pay any necessary expenses incurred in providing for its proper custody and storage.

XXXVII.—The Supervisor may incur whatever expense he may think necessary for the proper custody and storage of the cargo of any vessel seized under the Canals Act; and if the cargo be not removed within ten days from the date of seizure, he may sell the same at public auction to the highest bidder, after giving ten days' notice of the same by advertisement in one or more Calcutta newspapers or advertisement papers and affixed in his office.

XXXVIII.—The money realized at such a sale shall be applied first to defray any expenditure that may have been incurred by the Supervisor on account of the cargo sold, and the balance, if any, shall be held in deposit to be paid to the owner of the said cargo on his applying for the same.

XXXIX.—No steamers are allowed to enter the Circular Canal without permission of the Supervisor at Chitpore or Canal Inspector at Dhappa. Steamers are not allowed to tow flats or cargo boats in the Circular Canal, but may tow one flat at a time in the new Canal. Any one infringing this rule is liable to a fine of Rs. 50.

The choice thus given, however, will be subject to any other arrangement which the Secretary of State or the Government of India may deem necessary.

(ii) Should any appointments have to be made in excess of the 56 notified in the Regulations, they will be added to such group or groups as to the Secretary of State may seem proper.

(iii) No exchange of appointments will be permitted between selected Candidates who under paragraph 1 have made their choice of Presidency or Province, except between those who are members of the same group or of two adjoining groups, or who are separated by not more than 28 others in the order of merit on the result of the Open Competition. Application for permission to exchange appointments must be made to the Secretary of State within one month after the date of choice made under paragraph 1, and in no case will an exchange be permitted unless it is, in the opinion of the Secretary of State, desirable in the public interest that it should be made.

(viii) The allowance of £100 will not be paid to any Selected Candidate until he has been certified by the Civil Service Commissioners to be entitled to be appointed to the Civil Service of India; and every Certificated Candidate must, before receiving his allowance, attend at the India Office and give a written undertaking to refund the amount in the event of his failing to proceed to India.

(ix) All Candidates obtaining Certificates will be also required to enter into covenants, by which, amongst other things, they will bind themselves to agree to such Regulations for the provision of pensions for their families as may be approved by the Secretary of State for India in Council. The stamps payable on these covenants amount to £1.

(x) Candidates rejected at the Final Examination of 1894 will in no case be allowed to present themselves for re-examination.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, the 12th January 1893.

Syllabus, showing the extent of the Examination in certain subjects at the Open Competition for admission into the Indian Civil Service in 1893.

THE Regulations governing the Open Competition for admission into the Indian Civil Service have been framed with a view to the principle regarded by Lord Macaulay's Committee, in 1854, as essential, viz., that the object of the competition should be to secure for the Indian Civil Service officers who "have received the best, the most liberal, the most finished education that their native country affords." The scheme of examination has accordingly been made to embrace most of the subjects of the Honour Schools in the Universities of Great Britain and Ireland. In administering the scheme, the Civil Service Commissioners, concurring with Lord Macaulay's Committee in the opinion "that no Candidate who may fail should, to whatever calling he may betake himself, have any reason to regret the time and labour which he has spent in preparing himself to be examined," desire to avoid all disturbance of the general course of University studies, and to render it possible, with due regard for the principle of Open Competition, for those who have graduated with honours at the Universities to attend the Examination for the Indian Civil Service with good prospects of success. The appended Syllabus shows in outline the intentions of the Commissioners with regard to the extent and character of the examination in those subjects which seem to require further definition. The scope of the examination in the subjects not mentioned in the Syllabus is sufficiently defined in the scheme published in the Regulations themselves. The Examiners will be instructed to keep the Standard in each subject up to the level of the highest course of study pursued in the Universities.

English Composition.—An Essay to be written on one of several subjects specified by the Civil Service Commissioners on their Examination Paper.

English Language and Literature.—The Examination will be in two parts. In the one the Candidates will be expected to show a general acquaintance with the course of English Literature, as represented (mainly) by the following writers in verse and prose, between the reign of Edward III and the accession of Queen Victoria:

Verse—Chaucer, Langland, Spenser, Shakespeare, Milton, Dryden, Pope, Gray, Collins, Johnson, Goldsmith, Crabbe, Cowper, Campbell, Wordsworth, Scott, Byron, Coleridge, Shelley, Keats.

Prose—Bacon, Sir Thomas Browne, Milton, Cowley, Bunyan, Dryden, Swift, Defoe, Addison, Johnson, Burke, Scott, Macaulay (Essays and Biographies).

A minute knowledge of the works of these authors will not be looked for in this part of the Examination, which will, however, test how far the candidates have studied the chief productions of the greatest English writers in themselves, and are acquainted with the leading characteristics of their thought and style, and with the place which each of them occupies in the history of English literature. Candidates will also be expected to show that they have studied in these authors the history of the English language in respect of its vocabulary, syntax, and prosody.

The other part of the Examination will relate to one of the periods named below, which will follow each other, year by year, in the order indicated :—

1.	A.D. 1600 to A.D. 1700
(1893)	[Shakespeare to Dryden]
2.	A.D. 1700 to A.D. 1800
(1894)	[Pope to Cowper]
3.	A.D. 1800 to A.D. 1832
(1895)	[Nineteenth Century writers to the death of Scott]
4	A.D 1360 to A D. 1600
(1896)	[Chaucer to Spenser]

The Examination in this part will require from Candidates a more minute acquaintance with the history of the English language and literature, as illustrated in the chief works produced in each period, and will be based to a considerable extent, but by no means exclusively, on certain books specified each year by the Commissioners.* The names placed under the dates are intended to suggest the general character of the literary development of the period, and, consequently, the natural limits of the Examination. All the works of Shakespeare, for example, will be regarded as falling within the first period; all the works of Swift within the second; all the works of Scott and Wordsworth within the third.

French Language and Literature.—Translation from French into English and from English into French; Critical questions on the French Language and Literature.

German Language and Literature.—As in French.

Latin Language and Literature.—Translation from Latin into English; Composition in Prose and Verse (in the place of the latter may be taken, by those who prefer it, a paper of questions on Latin Philology). Critical questions on the Latin Language and Literature.

Greek Language and Literature.—Translation from Greek into English; Composition in Prose and Verse (in the place of the latter may be taken, by those who prefer it, a paper of questions on Greek Philology). Critical questions on the Greek Language and Literature.

Sanskrit Language and Literature.—Translation from Sanskrit into English and from English into Sanskrit; History of Sanskrit Literature (including knowledge of such Indian History as bears upon the subject); Sanskrit Grammar; Vedic Philology.

Arabic Language and Literature.—Translations as in Sanskrit; History of Arabic Literature; Arabic Grammar; Arabic Prosody.

English History.—General questions on English History from A.D. 800 to A.D. 1848; Questions on the Constitutional History of England from A.D. 800 to A.D. 1848.

Questions covering the whole period named will be set, but Candidates will be allowed to attempt only a limited number of them.

General Modern History.—Candidates may, at their choice, be examined in any one of the following periods :—

1. From the accession of Charlemagne to the Third Crusade.
   [A.D. 800 to A D. 1193.]
2. From the Third Crusade to the Diet of Worms.
   [A.D. 1193 to A.D. 1521.]

Ganja, Siddhi, Charas, Majum ...	Friday, 10th ditto ditto ditto. Saturday, 11th ditto ditto ditto.
Opium, Madak, Chandu ...	Monday, 13th ditto ditto ditto.
Tari	Tuesday, 14th ditto ditto ditto. Wednesday, 15th ditto ditto ditto.

2. The term of the licenses will be for three years, viz., till the 31st March 1896, in regard to the sale of every other article, except Madak, Chandu, and Tari, the right of the retail sale of which will be sold for one year only, viz., till the 31st March 1894.

3. A complete list of all the shops for which licenses will be offered and a copy of each form of license are open to general inspection at the office of the Superintendent of Excise Revenue, 24, Dalhousie Square, and the number of these shops is not, under any circumstances, to be increased during the term of three years ending the 31st March 1896, except under the sanction of the Commissioner of Excise, Bengal, in each case. The Superintendent of Excise Revenue, however, reserves to himself the right, in case of combination, or for other cause, to transfer, subject to there being no objection on police grounds, either before or after its settlement, any shop from the site specified in the list, to some other site, provided that the new site, if it is more than 100 yards from the advertised one, does not bring the shop within a quarter of a mile of any other similar shop, the term of whose license is unexpired.

4. It is not at present intended to open any other shop during the term of the license; but the Superintendent of Excise Revenue does not absolutely bind himself in this respect. On special cause shown, and with the sanction of the Commissioner of Excise, Bengal, in each case, the number of shops may be increased: provided, however, that, whenever a new shop is opened, it will be optional to the holder of a similar license for the sale of Liquor or Drugs, if his shop is within a quarter of a mile of the new shop, to surrender his license without forfeiting his advance, when the Superintendent of Excise Revenue is to resettle the shop by auction or otherwise.

5. The right of retail sale of the Liquors and Drugs, except for the retail sale of Imported Liquors not to be drunk on the premises, is to be put up to auction at upset prices sanctioned by the Commissioner of Excise, Bengal.

6. The right of retail sale of the Liquors and Drugs, except for the retail sale of Imported Liquors not to be drunk on the premises, is to be put up to auction in separate lots of one or more shops either in the order specified in the list, or in such other order as the officer conducting the sale may deem fit. When one lot has been sold, the next lot is not to be put up until the sum payable in advance on account of the lot already sold has been actually paid: provided, however, that where the sum payable exceeds Rs. 25, a promissory note may be taken from any respectable and well-known purchaser in lieu of cash payment.

7. The purchasers of the right of retail sale of Country Spirit and Rum are entitled to sell Imported Liquors by the glass only, the liquor to be drunk on the premises, and shall also have the option of taking subsidiary licenses for the sale of Imported Liquors by bottles, not to be drunk on the premises, on payment of the fee fixed by the Board of Revenue for such licenses.

8. The purchasers of the right of retail sale of Madak and Chandu shall not have the privilege of allowing consumption of the drugs on the premises of these shops.

9. The auction is to be held subject to the following conditions :—

(a)—That the Superintendent of Excise Revenue does not bind himself to accept the highest or any bid.

For Excise licenses for—
Doasta	If to be held in Calcutta, a police certificate in the form prescribed by section 36, Act IV (B.C.) of 1866, must be produced; and if to be held in the Suburbs, a Police certificate in the form prescribed by section 19, Act II (B.C.) of 1866, must be produced.

Charas
Majum
For Excise licenses for—	If to be held in Calcutta, a Police license in the form prescribed by section 39, Act IV (B.C.) of 1866, must be produced; and if to be held in the Suburbs, a Police license in the form prescribed by section 22 of Act II (B.C.) of 1866 must be produced.
Opium
Madak
Chandu

(c)—That the person accepted as the purchaser is to state in writing, within seven days from the date of settlement, in what building he purposes to open his shop, and is at the same time to submit a plan showing clearly and distinctly what building or portion thereof he desires to be covered by the license, it being understood that the removal of shops to other premises than those named in the list attached to this notification will be contingent on the approval of both the Excise and Police authorities, and that any sum which has been paid as an advance of the license fee under the provisions of clause (d) of these conditions will be returned to any person to whom a license may be subsequently refused for Police reasons.

(d)—That the term of the license is to be for three years ending the 31st March 1896, and that, except in the case of Tari, the license fee for that period is to be paid in advance in the following instalments:—namely, the sum equivalent to the fee for two months at the time of sale, and one month's fee on the date on which the currency of the license commences, and one month's fee on the 1st day of every succeeding month, until the whole of the fee due on the license shall have been paid. In the case of Tari only one month's fee is to be paid in advance at the time of sale, and fifteen days' fee on the date on which the currency of the license commences, and the rest of the fee in half-monthly instalments, viz., on the 1st and 16th day of every month, until the whole of the fee due on the license shall have been paid. This condition is to be strictly enforced in future, and failure to comply with it is to be met by immediate cancelment of the license.

(e)—That the purchaser is not to be entitled to receive back any portion of his advance in the event of his shop being closed before the expiration of the term of the license on violation of any of the conditions of the license, or his being convicted of a non-bailable criminal offence, or of any offence against the Excise laws or rules; and in the case of the surrender of a license under Act VII (B.C.) of 1878, the licensee is to give fifteen days' previous notice in writing to the Superintendent of Excise Revenue, and pay a sum equal to the license fee for fifteen days, over and above the amounts already paid in advance; and in the case of the surrender of a license under Act I of 1878, the licensee is to give one month's previous notice in writing to the Superintendent of Excise Revenue, and pay such fine not exceeding six months' license fees as the Superintendent of Excise Revenue may adjudge, over and above the amounts already paid in advance.

(f)—That the currency of the license is to commence on the 1st April 1893, on which date the purchaser is to open his shop in all respects prepared for the accommodation of customers, to be certified by an Excise Officer—failure to comply with this condition is to be met by the immediate cancelment of the license, the forfeiture of the deposit and the levy of the fees for the month, except in the case of delay caused by the non-issue of the Police certificate or Police license, for which a reasonable extension of time may be allowed upon application and cause shown to the Superintendent of Excise Revenue.

(g)—That where the amount of the sum payable in advance is required to be paid at once in cash, and the bidder fails to make such payment, the officer conducting the sale is either immediately to put up the lot again for sale, or after the other lots in the list have been disposed of, or he may postpone the sale to such future date as he shall then and there notify; and the defaulting purchaser is to be debarred from bidding for such lot or for any other lot, and he is not to be allowed to remain in the auction-room; and that the defaulting purchaser will be liable for any loss that may accrue to Government in case it becomes necessary to resell a lot at a lower rate either in consequence of his failure to deposit the sum payable at the time of sale, or to redeem his promissory note on or before 4 P.M. on the day following that on which the note was signed.

(h)—That the purchasers are to adhere to all the provisions of the Opium, Excise, and Police laws, and of the rules which have been or may from time to time be prescribed by the Board of Revenue.

10. All sales subsequent to the date of the triennial sale in March are to be held subject to the conditions contained in this notification, so far as they may be applicable.

11. Any further information regarding the auction may be had on application at the office of the Superintendent of Excise Revenue.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

REVISED ADVERTISEMENT.

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India
BY DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.
Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes of this work are now ready for issue, and intending subscribers are invited to register their names with the Superintendent of Government Printing, Calcutta.

The first five volumes and Vol. VI, Part I, of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to non-subscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is Rs 45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, Rs. 2-6 per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, Rs. 6 and 8 shillings, respectively, will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets; &c. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal octavo pages; Vol. II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Vol. III contains the letters D, E, F and half of G. Vol. IV latter half of G to middle of L; and Vol. V contains the latter half of L to end of "O." The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in seven volumes during the current year; but an eighth volume may also be issued consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a Glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals and minerals of India, and as such will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

The period of registration of subscribers' names having expired on the 1st October, the price will in future be in India Rs. 45 and in England 3 guineas, payable in advance, for the complete set (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made). An extra charge for packing and postage will be made for the set—in India, at 8 annas per volume, and for England, at 2 rupees 6 annas per volume.

For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, Rs. 6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole sets.

No copies will be issued to non-subscribers till the work is complete, and no single volume will be sold separately.

Britto bank—Disappearance of N.-W. Whistle buoy.

With reference to notice to Mariners, No. 156, dated 5th September last, issued by this office, the British Admiralty has given further notice (No. 65 of 1893) that the automatic whistle buoy (black and white vertical stripes) previously moored on the north-west side of Britto bank, has disappeared. The bank therefore is now only marked by the north-north-east whistle buoy.

Approximate position of north-west buoy, lat. 10° 29½′ N., long. 107° 50½′ E.

As there seems to be a difficulty in maintaining these buoys in such exposed positions, especially during the north-east monsoon, a note has been placed on the Admiralty charts, that "The buoys marking the banks are liable to drift."

Hainan head bank buoy, conical, red, surmounted by a black inverted frustum cage, is moored in 4½ fathoms water, with Hainan point bearing S. 67° W., distant about 9 cables. This buoy should be left on the starboard hand proceeding through the passage from the south-east.

Hainan reef buoy, conical, black, surmounted by a black ball, is moored in 12 fathoms water, about 2½ cables northward of the Outer rock at Hainan point reef, marked in plan of Inner passage "drives 4 feet." This buoy must be left on the port hand proceeding through the passage from the south-east.

NOTE.—Vessels using the Inner passage should pass about 3 cables eastward of Magpie rock buoy, and then steer to pass Hainan head bank buoy at about the same distance, taking care to guard against being set towards the shore, remembering that it is safe to borrow towards the banks on the starboard hand, of which the lead will give warning, while on the other side the bottom is rocky and uneven, and the lead gives no warning. LICENSED WAREHOUSE AND FIRE-BRIGADE BILL.

THE HON'BLE MR. COTTON said:—"At the last meeting of the Council I presented the report of the Select Committee on the Bill for the regulation of Warehouses and the maintenance of a Fire-brigade, and explained at some length, for the information of this Council and of the public, the principles which had guided the majority of the Select Committee in the preparation of the Bill which had been laid on the table. I have now the honour to move that, the report of the Committee be taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill."

THE HON'BLE MR. WOODROFFE said:—"Sir, the motion which I have the honour to move embodies the general principle enunciated in the dissent to the report of the Select Committee signed by the minority of that Committee. In presenting the report of the Committee to the Council at its last meeting, the hon'ble member in charge of the Bill, although there was before the Council no motion for the consideration of that report, took occasion to explain the principles upon which the majority of the Committee had proceeded, and upon which the view taken by the majority of the Committee would be maintained. I listened with considerable attention and great interest to the speech of the hon'ble member. I was naturally anxious to hear what might be said in support of the view of the majority, and as the hon'ble member's speech proceeded, I felt myself growing more and more interested, because, though it may be that I was in error in so thinking, I arrived at the conclusion that most of the observations which fell from the hon'ble member, tended rather to weaken than to support his contention.

"The principle, Sir, which is involved in the Resolution which I now move is, that the taxation of commercial interests for matters affecting the public good and the public convenience is opposed to all sound principles of political economy, and of those rules which govern the incidence of taxation in civilised countries. 'The general community are undoubtedly protected by the existence of a fire-brigade.' Those are words which I take from the HON'BLE MR. COTTON'S speech; and the hon'ble gentleman in defending the principle of imposing a tax on the general community, which should be of light incidence, went on to say that, 'in recognition of the immunity which the fire-brigade affords to the general public, we have considered it fair that a low rate should be levied.' There can be no question, it seems to me, Sir, but that the community generally, and as such, is protected by the existence of a fire-brigade, and that it does afford such immunity to the community as the hon'ble member maintained. The hon'ble member's words are but an echo of a statement made on this subject by the then Lieutenent-Governor of Bengal in a letter dated the 15th of February, 1878, in which His Honour stated:—'The maintenance of the fire-brigade is an object in which all classes of the community are interested, and to which all ought to contribute.' This position is so clear that, it seems unnecessary to adduce arguments in support of it. It is a fact admitted by the hon'ble member in the speech to which I have referred. It is admitted in the Bill even as now framed that, there is immunity provided to the general public as such by the existence of the fire-brigade. It is sought, however, to distinguish and to show that that general rule is not to be applied to Calcutta. In other words, that to Calcutta the principle of taxation of commercial interests for the public benefit, for the public safety and for the public convenience is to be applied.

"I know of but two instances in which this principle has been accepted. One of them was in Egypt, but, under the administration of the noble Lord who is now at the head of affairs in Egypt, it no longer exists; the other is still in force in Calcutta. Some years ago, I read that when in Egypt it was desired for some reason to throw a bridge over a canal, the persons who were made to pay for that work were the boat-owners who passed under it. They did not particularly want the bridge, but the bridge compelled the boats to lower their masts and take down their sails; and it was accordingly considered but fair and natural they should be made to pay the tax. Calcutta still retains, in the present system of taxation for the maintenance of the fire-brigade, this truly Egyptian policy. It taxes the commercial interest for the benefit of the public, and it is sought to maintain this untenable position upon the ground that, the commercial interest to a greater or a less extent shares in the benefit.

"The principle, Sir, for which I am contending has been recognised by the Legislature with growing distinctness both in England and in this country. In England, under the Act of 14 Geo. 3 C., 78, S. 75, it was provided that, fire-engines shall be kept up by the several parishes in and around the metropolis, and so until 1865 the law continued, when there was established the Metropolitan Fire-brigade Act, 28 and 29 Vic., C. 90. Between the Act of Geo. 3 and the Act of Her present Majesty, to which I have referred, it was found that the parishes were remiss in the discharge of the public duty which had been laid on them. Accordingly in or about the year 1833, the Fire Insurance Offices in London banded themselves together for the purpose of making proper and better provision for the extinction of fires than was then in existence. The Association was a purely voluntary one, and was, in the first instance, established for the purpose of extinguishing and preventing the spread of fires in or to buildings which were covered by insurances. The establishment was maintained at a large cost by the Insurance Companies, and shortly before the passing of the Metropolitan Fire-brigade Act in 1865, an arrangement was made with the Metropolitan Board of Works, by which the establishment which had been provided and maintained by the Fire-brigade Association was handed over to the Metropolitan Board of Works, and the value of the material so handed over was then estimated at about £30,000.

"On the passing of the Act, the funds necessary to be raised for the purposes of the Metropolitan Fire-brigade Act were obtained by a contribution, I think, of £35 per million from Insurance Companies, by the grant of £10,000 a year from the Government, in consideration of the services rendered or likely to be rendered by the fire-brigade for preventing fires in and the spread of fires to public offices, and by a general tax of a half-penny in the pound. Here there is a clear recognition of the general liability of the public to maintain a fire-brigade. Intermediately there had been passed an Act known as the Police Clauses Act of 1847, and many other public general Acts which authorised the maintenance out of rates to be levied thereunder, of the cost of firemen, fire-engines and other requisites for the extinction of fires and for preventing the spread of fires. And I may say that at the present moment, with, I believe, the exception of the boroughs of Salford and Liverpool, where under two local Acts the costs attending the extinction of fires are chargeable in the case of insured property upon the Insurance Companies, all the large cities in Great Britain and Ireland maintain their fire-brigades out of public rates. It is so in two cities in which there is a great deal of work carried on involving the use of inflammable materials. I allude particularly to the case of Belfast, in which there is a large ship-building industry, and to the case of Dundee, where there is a very large jute industry. So far as I have been able to ascertain, there is no city on the continent of Europe in which the inhabitants do not pay for the cost and maintenance of the fire-brigade. In many of these cities there are not the same strict rules, so far as I have been able to ascertain, as prevail in London and the large cities of Great Britain and Ireland in respect of the building of houses—rules which minimise to the utmost extent the risk of fires in those cities, yet in almost every instance in which I have been able to inquire into, the fire-brigade is maintained out of general rates.

"This principle has also received recognition in this country. In 1872, when a fire-brigade was first established, it was provided by the Act II of 1872 of this Council, section 29, that, the full amount of the charges of the fire-brigade, over and above the monies which might accrue to the Fire-brigade Fund under sections 25 and 26 of the Act, which are the fees and fines in respect of licenses and the contribution by insurance companies, should be contributed by the Justices of Calcutta and the Commissioners of the Suburbs in the proportion of $\frac{7}{10}$ths and $\frac{3}{10}$ths. By Act III of 1884 of this Council, section 69, the Commissioners at a meeting were empowered, so far as the municipal fund permits, to apply that

Fund to any works within the municipality of public utility calculated to promote the health, comfort or convenience of the inhabitants, and amongst other objects stated in that Act, and which fall within this description, I find the maintenance of a fire-brigade along with the establishment and maintenance of schools and the maintenance of hospitals. Probably the clearest and widest enunciation of this principle is to be found in the Act which at the present moment regulates the Municipality of Calcutta. By section 35 of that Act, all the properties vested in the Commissioners, and all funds received or raised by the Commissioners in accordance with the provisions of that Act, shall be applicable to the purposes expressly authorized by that Act. What are the purposes expressly authorised by this Act? Section 36, the following section, answers the question. It runs as follows:—'The purposes expressly authorised by this Act shall be held to include the objects connected with the public safety, health and convenience hereinafter specified, that is to say, No. 1—the payment of all or any portion of the cost of the fire-brigade for the extinction of fires in Calcutta.' Then follow a number of objects, and the section concludes with the words 'and generally all objects connected with the public safety, health or convenience.' That the Legislature in this country has therefore in unmistakeable terms given in its adhesion to the principle of the maintenance of the fire-brigade as a matter of public utility, as a matter which affects the public safety, health and convenience of the inhabitants, is beyond all doubt.

"Why, then, has Calcutta been singled out for exceptional treatment? In 1871, several fires occurred in jute stores situated in the central part of this city. The Chamber of Commerce, the Trades Association, the British Indian Association and several other public bodies presented petitions to the Government to take this matter into its consideration and to adopt measures calculated to promote the public safety, and to protect the public from the occurrence of fires. On the presentation of memorials to this effect to the Government, a Bill was introduced into this Council, which was afterwards passed into law as Act II of 1875, and I shall have presently to point out the entirely different state and condition of jute warehouses and places for storing jute as they were then known to exist, and as they exist now. Suffice it to say for the present that, they were then in a totally different state and condition from those in which they are now found. They were, as I shall show from the observations of the Hon'ble Mr. Bernard in introducing that Bill, in an absolutely different state from what they are now as shown in the very able report of my hon'ble friend, Mr. Lambert, in his capacity as Commissioner of Police.

"Even then when jute warehouses were in such a state as they were when this Act was passed, it was not then the intention of the Legislature to impose the whole liability for the maintenance of the fire-brigade on the jute industry. That is manifest from the fact that, that Act provides for the meeting of the deficit, if any, from the funds of the municipalities of Calcutta and the Suburbs. It imposed a scale of fees on jute warehouses, which ranged, I think, from Rs. 100 to Rs. 1,000 a year, and fees on insurance companies. For whatever reason it was, whether for want of adequate information as to the number of places for the storing of jute or from other causes I know not, but it is manifest that the scale of fees imposed on jute warehouses was excessive—grossly excessive; and from the income derived therefrom, for practically it is with that alone we need concern ourselves, the whole cost of the fire-brigade was maintained. That, with but minor alterations not bearing on the present question, is the state of the law as it exists at present. The rates were so excessive that between the month of August, 1875 and the month of April, 1881, there was paid away out of the Fire-brigade Fund a sum of Rs. 1,26,552. Who received the benefit of that sum? The Municipality of Calcutta—Calcutta in that wider sense in which it is now dealt with under Act II of 1888 of this Council. It received in August, 1875, a sum of Rs. 35,000 towards the widening of a lane near the Municipal Office, and a subsequent grant of Rs. 5,000 for the same purpose in January, 1876. In November, 1875, Rs. 16,275 was given to the Alipore Lock-hospital; in January, 1876, a grant of Rs. 10,000 was made to the Suburban Municipality, and in 1881, Rs. 60,000 was given for widening Chitpore Road. That the Act of 1879 when passed into law tended but ineffectually to reduce the incidence of this taxation on commercial interests, is manifest from the fact that, in 1881 there was surplus money to the extent of Rs. 60,000 to be paid away.

"The law stood so until 1883, when it was found that, owing to the limitation of $\frac{7}{10}$ths as against $\frac{3}{10}$ths, and to the further limitation as to the amount to which the $\frac{3}{10}$ths should run up to, the jute industry had, in a great measure removed from Calcutta to the outlying Suburbs. In 1883, there was passed Act IV of that year, which is the existing law. It did away with the proportion of $\frac{7}{10}$ths and $\frac{3}{10}$ths. The insurance companies had been relieved by the intermediate Act, but it still made the Fire-brigade Fund pay $1\frac{1}{4}$ times the cost of the fire-brigade. Eighty per cent. of the collections under the head of fees were paid to the Commissioner of Police for the up-keep of the fire-brigade; twenty per cent. went to the Municipality of Calcutta for the collection of those fees. There can be but little doubt that, during all these years, the Municipality has made a very good business of it in respect of that 20 per cent. in addition to the sums of money which I have shown it has received.

"Speaking of this state of affairs, the late hon'ble member of this Council, Sir Henry Harrison, in introducing the present Bill into Council, observed that, 'the jute legislation had reached that position rather by the process of drift than by any intention on the part of the Legislature.' I would recall the Council from this policy of drift, and ask that the matter be put on the fair, proper and reasonable footing by the incidence of taxation being thrown on the community at large. Why, I ask again, is it that Calcutta has been singled out? This retrospect in the history of the legislation in respect of the jute industry shows that the municipality had, like spoilt children, been educated into the belief that, they had a right to be exempted from the obligations which naturally and justly fall upon them. They ask, why should the previous state of things be altered? Why, to use the concurrent language of the Indian Association and the Municipality, who seem to be entirely in accord in the present matter—why should there be at one bound this relief to the jute industry? Is it the contention of hon'ble members who support the Bill that, continuance in wrong-doing is ground for its maintenance in perpetuity? Surely not; what are other reasons, then, can be suggested? That which I have just mentioned seems to me to be the one which ranks first in the minds of all those who have expressed an opinion on this subject in accord with the majority of the Select Committee. As this Bill has been introduced into Council for the purpose of relieving the jute and other cognate industries from the unjust and oppressive incidence of taxation, I ask why should not the matter be fully considered, and if justice demands it, let justice be done?

"But it is said, Sir, that there are other reasons. It is suggested that there is a radical difference between Calcutta and cities elsewhere throughout the civilised world. I deny this radical difference. It is said that, it has been found impossible in those other cities to make a fair apportionment between the amount of rate to be levied from ordinary ratepayers and from those engaged in commercial enterprises; in other words that, Calcutta is different from every other city in respect of the fire brigade, and it has successfully attempted and overcome difficulties which have been found insurmountable in other countries. If others failed, I think we shall fail too. But I deny that it has been found impossible in other countries to make a fair apportionment between the amount of rate to be levied from ordinary rates and those engaged in commercial enterprises, because there has never been made any such attempt. The principle involved in this endeavour does not commend itself to those who understand the principles of political economy. As soon as one makes this attempt, he finds himself beset by the most enormous difficulties. The hon'ble member, with a courage worthy of a better cause, has not shrunk from the abyssmal depths of differential taxation, and has succeeded in producing a Bill which commends itself to nobody. The Calcutta Municipality does not like it; the Chamber of Commerce object to it, the Trades Association, have intimated their dissent from some details of the Bill; the Bengal National Chamber of Commerce is not satisfied with it, and the last contribution from the Indian Association, also falls foul of it and challenges it on the ground that, it contravenes the principles of Local Self-Government. I do not see that it interferes with the principles of Local Self-Government in the least. The first principle of Local Self-Government is, that all classes should bear the burden necessarily incident upon them, and that individual selfishness should give place to public interests.

"What is the difference between the houses in other cities and the houses in Calcutta? It is said that in the residential quarters of Calcutta, houses are built of uninflammable materials. But what about the residences of the citizens of Calcutta, whose lives and property are just as dear to them as the people who live in the residential quarters? Go up to the top of the tower in the Telegraph Office, or any other place of height in Calcutta, and look down upon what is spread before you. What will you see? With the very small exception of the quarter which is known as Chowringhee and some quarters in the north of the town, you will find a large mass of residences of the poor which are distinctly of an inflammable character, and those you will find fringed round by streets and lanes of pucka-built houses. In every one of these houses fire may break out, and in this city fires do frequently break out in such dwellings.

"In Bombay, the cost of the fire-brigade is borne by a three-fourth per cent. rate; in Rangoon, it is paid for out of the general rates; in Madras, so far as there are any appliances for extinguishing fires, they are paid for by the Municipality. Calcutta seems to stand alone. The houses in the residential quarters of Calcutta are no less substantially built than those in England. The sole difference, so far as I am aware, between the building of pucka houses in Calcutta and the building of every house in every street in London, is, that there are almost universally wooden floors in London houses, whereas they are to be found in but few houses here. On the other hand, in the Metropolitan district, there is a far more extensive, and a far more careful application of the rules relating to buildings by which the risk of fire is minimised to the utmost.

"Further, it is said that the cost of the fire-brigade should continue to be borne, though not in whole, yet at least to the extent of a moiety by the jute industry and other cognate industries, because, first, of the state of things which existed in 1871, and which led to the establishment of the fire-brigade. In the proceedings of this Council of December, 1871, the HON'BLE MR. BERNARD, in moving for leave to bring in a Bill to amend the law for the registration of jute warehouses and to provide for the establishment of an efficient fire-brigade in Calcutta and the Suburbs, spoke as follows:—'In January last, there were 247 jute warehouses in Calcutta alone, besides those in the Suburbs.' I believe, if my information be correct, that the number of jute warehouses in Calcutta now is less than half of that number. The hon'ble member went on to say:—

'As hon'ble members of Council well know, the custom at many warehouses and pressing places was to leave the jute drums and loose jute out in open yards, and to spread jute clippings over the courtyard when a press might be at work. These jute yards were generally in the heart of the most populous parts of the city; some of them were in the midst of the mercantile quarter on the river-bank. It would be in the recollection of most of us that a few weeks back a fire broke out in a jute screw-house in the quay, and that fire, if there had been any wind, must have reached an adjoining jute store, it might have destroyed the quarter of Calcutta which contained all the chief warehouses of foreign goods, and it would probably have spread to the shipping.'

The hon'ble member further said:—

'A few days ago two Calcutta firms which had their offices and godowns on the quay, complained to the Magistrate against a jute warehouse next door to them. In the enclosure of their store, there were some 200 square yards of ground covered with jute clippings; the stack of clippings was 12 feet high and topped the wall of the yard. On one side of this yard, was a steam-engine and its fire; on the other, was a large forge constantly at work. If a spark had fallen from either of these fires on the jute clippings, and there had been any wind, a most disastrous fire must have been the result.'

"It was, Sir, to meet cases of this kind, and with reference to circumstances of this nature, that that Bill was brought in. But that is not now the condition of the jute warehouses and jute presses—far from it. Secondly, because it is stated that by far the largest number of fires of an important character occur in jute warehouses. The meaning of the phrase is wrapped in obscurity from the use of the word 'important.' What is an 'important fire?' Is it a fire in which the largest amount of property belonging to any one person is consumed? Surely not! Regarded by the community at large, the burning of a jute warehouse in which there may be thousands of bales of jute, disastrous though it may be to the individual, is less disastrous than a fire occurring in a basti, in which all the property of the inhabitants may be utterly destroyed, and even their very lives may be at risk. Such fires spread with a rapidity wholly unknown to the conflagration in a jute warehouse. But turning from the question of injury to the individual, the risk arising from fires in bastis and tiled huts is far more dangerous, because more widely spread and less under control. That appears to me to be the real test of importance. In a letter from this Government to the Government of India, dated the 3rd of February, 1892, the HON'BLE MR. RISLEY wrote:—'The measure of liability to contribute is the risk of fire incurred, not the value of the property or the amount of possible damage.'

"But how does the matter stand as regards the question of fires? The HON'BLE MR. LEE, then untrammelled by the weight of legislative responsibility, and speaking in his character of Chairman of the Municipal Corporation of Calcutta—took up the position that 'ninety per cent. of the property destroyed by fire during the four years, 1886 to 1889, belonged to the jute and cotton interest.' [The HON'BLE MR. LEE said:—'I did not use those words. Those words are not to be found in any letter or statement of mine.'] If I misrepresent the hon'ble member, I sin in excellent company. In a letter from the Government of India, dated the 18th of February, 1891, (Municipal) I find it stated, over the signature of the hon'ble member opposite (Mr. Cotton), as Secretary to the Government of Bengal, that in a letter from the Chairman of the Corporation of Calcutta it was stated that, the Commissioners of Calcutta also object to any portion of the cost of the fire-brigade being defrayed by the general rate-payers; they consider, on the contrary, that the fire-brigade should still be maintained by the jute industry, 'and they adduce the following arguments in support of their opinion that, 90 per cent. of the property destroyed by fire during the four years, 1886-89, belong to the jute or cotton interest.' That objection was made on behalf of the Municipality by the HON'BLE MR. LEE. Mr. Cotton writes:—

'The letter from the Chairman to the Corporation of Calcutta was forwarded by Government to the Commissioner of Police for an expression of his opinion. Mr. Lambert's reply, dated the 26th December, 1890, takes exception to the argument put forward by the Municipal Commissioners. It is argued that, of the fires which took place during the four years (1886-89), only 15 occurred in places licensed under the Jute Warehouse Act, against 123 fires in other places, and that the value of property destroyed by other fires almost equalled that destroyed by fires in licensed warehouses, the damage caused in jute fires being estimated at Rs 8,70,810, against Rs. 7,64,265 in other fires. Mr. Lambert shows that the strength of the brigade is in a great measure fixed with reference to the prevention of the spread of a conflagration not from jute warehouses which are surrounded by high walls, which confine the flames and minimise the danger of the fire spreading, but from bastis, woodyards, straw stacks, &c., when the risk of the conflagration extending to adjacent buildings is very great. The supply of water, he admits, is a benefit to the brigade; but he observes that, as a fact, out of the 138 fires which occurred during the four years, pipe-water was used in 37 only. The Commissioner of Police also observes that a contribution from municipal funds to the fire-brigade would not do greater violence to the principles of Local Self-Government than the contribution now made by the Corporation to public hospitals or to the cost of surveying the town of Calcutta.'

"Dealing with this matter, the Fire-brigade Committee in their report to this Government stated in their tenth paragraph that, the statement of fires furnished by the Commissioner of Police for the four years, 1886-89, though it showed heavy losses in jute warehouses, showed clearly that 'the numerical majority of fires break out in other places, and that it is impossible to deny that the general public derive much protection from the fire-brigade.' The reports of the Commissioner of Police as Chief of the Fire-brigade showed that, for the four years ending in 1892, that is from 1888 to 1892, out of 139 fires, only 10, that is to say 7 per cent. of the whole, occurred in warehouses licensed under Act IV of 1883, and that the property which was destroyed in those fires only came up to 23 per cent. of the total value of the property destroyed in the 139 fires which occurred during those four years. This dispels at once the statement as to the number of fires occurring in jute and cotton warehouses, and the value of the property destroyed in them. Extending the statistics so as to cover the period of seven years from 1886 to 1892, it would appear, from a representation made by the Bengal Chamber of Commerce to the Secretary of this Government during the time that this Bill was going through the Select Committee, that there were during that period 247 fires; that of these, there were 17 fires in buildings registered or licensed under Act IV of 1883; six fires of jute in unlicensed places, and 11 fires on board vessels in the river; and that the fires in other places not falling within the above category amounted to 213, that is to say, 86 per cent. of the fires which took place in Calcutta in the seven years from 1886 to 1892, both inclusive, were in places other than in licensed jute warehouses, or in jute stored in unlicensed places or on board vessels, and it further appears that the total value of the property destroyed in all these fires amounted to Rs. 28,42,000, of which only Rs. 8,37,560, or 29 per cent. worth of property, was stored in licensed warehouses. It cannot therefore be contended that, the fires in Calcutta were solely or even to the extent of one-half contributed or occasioned by fires in jute warehouses.

"That argument therefore fails. But it is said that, the legislation which was necessary in 1872 is necessary to be maintained now in a modified form. That also I question; and I question it on the same most undoubted authority, namely that of the Commissioner of Police, who is specially charged with the working of the fire-brigade, and to whose services and that of the fire-brigade staff Calcutta owes so much. The Commissioner of Police, after dealing with the assertion of the Municipality, that 90 per cent. of the fires in Calcutta are due to the jute industry, thus deals with the Hon'ble Mr. Cotton's argument that, if it had not been for the jute industry, a fire-brigade would not be required in the efficient state that it is. The Commissioner of Police says in the letter already quoted:—'The strength of the fire-brigade is in a great measure fixed by the reference to the prevention of the spread of a conflagration, not from jute warehouses which are surrounded by high walls, which confine flames and minimise the danger of the fire spreading, but from bastis, woodyards, straw stacks, &c., where the risk of the conflagration extending to adjacent buildings is very great.'

"There is the source of danger indicated in clear and unmistakeable terms, and it is pointed out by the Commissioner of Police that, these buildings are now of a substantial character; that the measures taken to prevent the spread of fire from them are effectual, and that, when a fire breaks out in a jute warehouse, it is often beyond the power of any fire-brigade, however well manned and however effective, to put out the fire. But there is a thing it can do and which it does do. It prevents the spread of fire from the place or building in which it occurs to the adjoining buildings, by pouring water on it and in preventing the rise of sparks by making a free passage and isolating the fire, or by so keeping it under in the place in which it occurs that the danger is entirely removed or most materially reduced.

"In more than one of the objections put forward by the Municipality there is involved this patent fallacy, that the cost of the maintenance of an institution required for municipal purposes generally affecting the public health, safety and convenience is to be borne only or mainly by certain persons deriving a certain special benefit. That is not the principle of civic life. The principle of civic life is, that every citizen shall, in accordance with his means and property, bear the burden or cost of those matters and things which subserve the public benefit, health, convenience and safety, though he may derive no benefit from them at all. As well, may we have blind men protesting that they ought not to be bound to pay a lighting-rate because they cannot see and do not require light. A doctor will tell you that, there are men who are particularly susceptible to malarial influences. Shall a heavier sewage-tax be imposed upon them as being more likely to be affected from want of proper sewerage? Why impose a tax on the unmarried for education? You might ring the changes from one end to the other of the system of taxation and find yourself confronted with matters of this kind. In each case, the individual must contribute to the public good. It may be asked—And what is the benefit which jute warehouses receive if a fire is not capable of being put out? The goods therein must burn, and the private individual suffers loss, but the benefit to the public remains. The fire does not spread.

"Now a few words more as to the difference in the state between jute warehouses in 1871 and 1872, and the present time. I quote again from the Hon'ble Mr. Lambert's report. He says:—

'The jute industry was, it would appear, required in the first instance to contribute to the expense of maintaining an efficient fire-brigade, because jute warehouses and yards were situated in the heart of the most populous parts of the city, and because loose jute was spread out and stacked in open yards often in close proximity to steam engines.'

"The hon'ble member no doubt had the speech of the HON'BLE MR. BERNARD in his mind. He went on to say:—

'Open yards for the storage of jute were to be found in the wealthiest quarters of the town, and the danger arising from this condition of the trade laid upon that industry the burden of contributing to the support, and eventually of solely supporting the fire-brigade. But this state of affairs has entirely changed during the past 18 years. The largest jute warehouses now lie outside the mercantile quarter of the city; loose jute is no longer stored in open yards, and jute presses and warehouses are now substantial masonry buildings, well adapted to stop the spread of fire. At the present time, there is infinitely less risk of the spreading of a fire in a jute warehouse than of a fire in a basti or the centres of the mercantile community in the native quarters of the town.'

"That is the deliberate opinion of a gentleman who knows what is the state of things. Before I pass on, allow me to supplement what I have said with respect to fires. Mr. Lee, in his report No. 33J, dated 1st July, 1891, on the working of the Licensed Warehouses and Fire-brigade Act in Calcutta during the year 1890-91, states in paragraph 8:—'No case of fire in any jute godown has occurred in the year under report.' In that year' there were 104 licensed warehouses on the register, and not one single fire occurred. Mr. Lee was succeeded by Mr. Ritchie, and he, in his report for 1891-92, paragraph 7, states:—'There was no case of fire in any jute warehouse during the year' That brings the matter down to last year. It cannot then be said that, jute warehouses are in themselves such a source of danger to the community at large as to justify any special taxation upon them. The large and vast majority of fires occur elsewhere.

"And now I proceed to show, in addition to what I have pointed out to the Council, basing myself on the authority of the letter of the Commissioner of Police, that the danger of fire from jute warehouses is minimised by the use of every possible appliance to check the spread of fire. I believe it will not be denied that, there is no instance of fire spreading from jute warehouses to any other buildings. Their own brigade and the manner in which the jute warehouses are constructed, obviate the possibility of this. Not only are these buildings now constructed of a substantial character, and the storing of loose jute in open spaces entirely superseded, but most important steps have been taken towards safeguarding them from the risk of fire. Everybody knows that a prudent man insures his place of business, and in order to secure favourable rates from Fire Insurance Offices, jute warehouses have been provided with various means and appliances for preventing and extinguishing and circumscribing fires. At Messrs. Ralli Brothers' press at Golabari there is a Merryweather's portable steam-engine kept standing ready for use at all times, and there is a special staff of firemen always on duty at night to work the fire-service. The suction-pipe from that engine is let into the water-supply tank, and delivery hoses are attached to the two discharge branch pipes ready for immediate work. Besides that, there are two portable manual pumps which can be worked by about 20 men each at all times ready for immediate action. In addition to these, there are 39 hydrants distributed all over the premises and connected with the main engine. Each hydrant has a hose box adjoining it, containing the delivery hoses, nozzles, &c. There is an aggregate supply of 10,000 gallons, and the tank belonging to this Press is supplied from the river.

"To such a state of efficiency has this Press come that they are not only absolutely independent of any fire-brigade, but they were in March, 1890, and 1892 able to give the greatest assistance, at the fires which took place at the Bengal Hydraulic Press and at Baliaghatta. In the latter instance, at a time when the resources of the fire-brigade were taxed to the uttermost in consequence of there being at the same time a fire at Howrah, at the Sibpur Jute Mills. The Strand Bank Press is another well-equiped press, and so is the Canal Press, which possesses a Tangye's duplex pump with piping laid throughout the works. In these two presses, the pumps are supplied with water from the river.

"I mention these among others which could be mentioned. In the largest and which, according to the HON'BLE MR. COTTON, are the most important fires which are likely to occur, the persons concerned are practically independent of the fire-brigade. Not only is the condition of fires in 1872 not in existence now, but the jute industry has practically rendered itself almost secure from danger from fires, and is almost entirely independent of the fire-brigade itself.

"But there are other reasons why this principle, supposing it were a fair and just principle, should not be applied to Calcutta. I have dealt with one of them, namely, that the state of things is such as to show that there is no obvious reason for applying this most extraordinary principle in the most extraordinary manner to this most extraordinary town. And it is this. At the present moment, money is contributed by the jute industry towards the funds of the town, amounting to Rs. 6,327 per annum. There were transferred to the Municipality various sums standing to the credit of the Fire-brigade Fund, amounting to Rs. 1,66,752, and those monies have been spent in making substantial improvements, and it must be assumed that, those sums would not have been transferred by the Government without a necessity for such improvements. Those sums taken at a moderate rate of interest have made the municipal fund better than it would otherwise have been by Rs. 6,327 per annum. The Corporation has laid out those sums in making permanent improvements, and it is but fair and reasonable to suppose that otherwise they would have had to raise money to effect those improvements and pay interest thereon, and that, by reason of those improvements, they have received increased rates and taxes.

"There is but little more I need trouble the Council with, and I apologise for the length at which I have dwelt on the subject. The principle at stake is of the greatest importance, in that the interests of Calcutta centre in its commerce. But for its situation at the bottom of the Gangetic valley, Calcutta would have no importance whatever among the cites of India. It is to this port that the principal wealth of this country in the shape of produce comes, and by the establishment of railways and river communications, goods imported from foreign countries find their readiest market, and are most easily distributed.

"Mr. Lee, in dealing with this point as a Port Commissioner, justly observed that, this port was the most heavily taxed in the world, and that for his part, he would most gladly shift from the port to the municipality anything which could be so shifted. If we proceed further in the way of legislation by imposing taxation on commercial interests, we may arrive at a time when Calcutta will be but little better than a first class municipality. A gentleman, now deceased, who was on the Committee of the fire-brigade, objected to the system of general taxation on the ground that, the tax would fall on land which is not inflammable. I do not believe that Calcutta mud is one bit more inflammable than London clay. But what makes the mud so valuable? It is that thereon there are built houses in which the commerce of Calcutta is carried on. Remove that commerce. You may do so by improper legislation, as the Legislature of Great Britain demolished the ship-building trade, the linen trade and the woollen trade of Ireland. This Government may by legislation in like manner bring about a state of things in which there may be left Calcutta land and nought but Calcutta land, and it would not need the services of a fire-brigade.

"For these reasons, I contend first that, there are no grounds for imposing this tax on any special industries, such as jute and cotton, oil or other materials dealt with by this Bill, but also that there are good and abundant reasons why they should not be so dealt with. As far as I can find out, the rateable value of Calcutta and the Suburbs, which come within the provisions of the Bill, amounts to about 210 lakhs. The hon'ble member the other day produced a statement containing, as he himself admitted, some considerable inaccuracies. That statement was not before the Select Committee, and could not be considered there. Taking 210 lakhs as the basis of the rateable value of property, it is perfectly clear that a ¼ per cent. rate, that is one-third of what is imposed in Bombay, would meet all the expenses of the fire-brigade. As to how that may be done, if the resolution which I am putting to the Council meet with its assent, is a matter for future determination. It may be, for the reasons adduced by the HON'BLE MR. COTTON, that the incidence of this rate should fall more on occupiers than upon owners, upon the ground that the property in houses is more likely to be destroyed than the house itself. The Council should not attempt the impossible, as the HON'BLE MR. COTTON has attempted to do. The chorus of disapprobation which has arisen against the differential taxation is proof positive that, the hon'ble member has not been able to answer the demands of every one, and whether this motion receive the assent of the Council or not, of one thing I am confident, that in a time to come, the principles for which I am now contending will meet with acceptance. They are the only sound principles which can be applied; they are simple in their application; they are equitable in their distribution; they adopt the broad principle that, in a community all members must alike contribute towards the public good, though they may not enjoy equal advantages.

"For these reasons, I have the honour to move that the resolution which stands in my name be accepted."

THE HON'BLE MR. LEE said:—"The amendment which stands in the name of the HON'BLE MR. WOODROFFE is moved by him chiefly in the interests of commerce, and it is mainly in the true interests of commerce, which are identical with the best interests of this city, that I oppose the motion. The learned Advocate-General began by referring to the present Municipal Act II of 1888 of this Council, and read the whole of section 35 and the beginning of section 36. Section 35 states that 'all property vested in the Commissioners and all funds received or raised by the Commissioners in accordance with the provisions of this Act, shall be applicable to the purposes expressly authorized by this Act', and section 36 mentions what those purposes are and enumerates them all; whereas the learned Advocate-General stopped short at the first of those purposes, viz., 'the payment of the whole or any portion of the cost of the fire-brigade for the extinction of fires in Calcutta.' (Section 36 was here read by the speaker in full).

"The learned Advocate-General did not read or refer to the section of real importance in this case, (section 37), which lays down what the duties of the Commissioners are. These duties are there categorically stated, and the maintenance of a fire-brigade is not included among them. The Commissioners have to provide for the payment of interest on the municipal debt, to complete and extend throughout Calcutta drainage-works, and open out and improve bastis (expending for those purposes annually a sum of not less than two lakhs of rupees), to maintain a water-supply, to make adequate and suitable provision for the cleaning and conservancy of Calcutta, the maintenance and cleaning of drains and drainage-works, the construction and maintenance of public latrines and urinals and a number of other sanitary objects which I need not enumerate; and finally they have to devote a sum of three lakhs a year to the improvement of the newly-added area. In referring to the maintenance of a fire-brigade as being the first of the objects mentioned under section 36, it escaped the attention of the learned Advocate-General that this proviso represents merely a 'paper transaction.' The whole of the cost of the fire-brigade is paid to the Municipal Commissioners under another Act, and it was therefore necessary that in this Municipal Act an enabling clause should be added, so that the Commissioners might transfer their receipts under the Fire-brigade Act to the furtherance of the object for which those receipts are collected. The proposal, then, that is now moved is, in effect, to add another to the list of duties drawn up by this Council and enumerated by section 37. Now it is not open to me to question the legality of this course, since it has the approval of the learned Advocate-General, nor will I contend that it is not in the present circumstances necessary. But it is, I think, most unfortunate that an amendment of section 37 of the Municipal Act should be brought forward in this way, because we are precluded from going into the details of the receipts and expenditure of the Municipal Commissioners. None of the sections of the Act, except, perhaps, those regarding the assessment of the taxes of Calcutta, received more careful consideration in this Council than those two sections—37 and 36—and that was so short a time as four years ago.

"The learned Advocate-General has observed that it is incumbent on the community to provide for the cost of education. Now that, I think, is certainly an object for which the Commissioners might as fairly be allowed to contribute something as that they should be asked to pay the greater part of the cost of the fire-brigade. But what happened when that very proposal on the subject of education was before this Council? The Director of Public Instruction brought forward a motion that, the Commissioners of Calcutta should be empowered to spend money on other than primary and technical education. He even did not ask that the Commissioners of Calcutta should be compelled to spend a certain amount of money on other than primary and technical education. His speech was an extremely powerful one; he adduced arguments that seemed very hard to meet as to the desirability of the Commissioners contributing towards the cost of higher education. But how did the Council regard the matter, and how did they decide? I will ask the attention of the Council to the following words which Sir Henry Harrison delivered at the time. He said:—'I am bound to admit that, so far as the precedents and practice of Bombay and other municipalities are concerned, they are all against me. * * * * '

"My hon'ble friend referred to two arguments which might bear specially against his proposal. One is, that the proposal is against the weight of practice or precedent elsewhere. That argument cannot be met because he proved successfully that both practice and precedent are against us. He also referred to the argument that, heavy expenditure is required for the sanitation of Calcutta and the Suburbs, and that is the only argument I feel bound to press upon the consideration of the Council. The first point to recollect is, that Municipalities in India are essentially poor bodies; the Municipalities of Calcutta and Bombay are by far the richest in India, but yet their means cannot compare with the means at the disposal of civilized municipalities elsewhere. Calcutta has to levy its taxation almost entirely by rates on property, and the assessable value of property in Calcutta does not exceed £1,200,000 a year. It is considerably less than one-twentieth of the rateable value of London, and the population of that city is only seven times larger. It is less than one-tenth of New York with a population twice as large. It is less than one-fourth of Philadelphia with a population only slightly larger; so that the Calcutta Municipality cannot command anything like the funds of other large cities. But when we come to the question of expenditure, then we find that sanitation in Calcutta attains such importance that, so far from the expenditure being less, expenditure quite on the same scale as in English cities becomes obligatory. We are to have a large area in the most insanitary condition added immediately to the town. Nobody would say that the town itself is in anything like a satisfactory sanitary condition. The difficulty in adding the suburban area has been simply and solely this, that no one could suggest the sources from which the funds should come. The Amalgamation Committee was distinctly of opinion that about six lakhs ought to be added to the funds of the Municipality from some source. I myself formed a more sanguine estimate, and leaned to the opinion that, probably four lakhs might suffice. I took a more sanguine estimate than any other member of the Committee. Can anyone in this Council doubt that, as soon as the suburban area is added to the town, we shall have the fullest possible use for all the funds at the disposal of the Municipality?

"And here, I will interpolate that the latest estimate I have received for the drainage of the suburban area, prepared under Mr. Baldwin Latham's advice by the Engineer of the Corporation, amounts to Rs. 1,70,69,570, which may or may not be capable of reduction; and we have spent quite lately 15 lakhs for giving a water-supply to the Suburbs, and other large sums on sanitary works.

'I admit,' continued Sir Henry Harrison, 'that education is a legitimate subject of municipal expenditure, but I also maintain that it is a secondary object. It is not to be put on the same plane as the primary objects, such as the repair of roads, the removal of refuse, cleansing, sewering, supplying water, and in one general word sanitation. If education is to supplant any of these objects, would it be right? I put it to the Council whether, if Rs. 50,000 be taken from the purposes of sanitation and given to education, it would not be a mistake. That is a point on which I am so satisfied that, I must press this view on the attention of the Council.'

"On that occasion the learned Advocate-General, Sir Charles Paul, observed that he could not vote for the inclusion of assistance to higher education among the purposes on which municipal funds could be legitimately spent. He said:—

'If I could approach the subject of this discussion with the fact that the municipal funds of this town were unencumbered and in a flourishing condition, and with the assurance that the money which would be raised would be more than sufficient to supply all the wants of the town in respect of its sanitation, I would consider the present a proper time for discussing the question raised. Unless we are satisfied that the requirements of the Municipality can be met in this respect, we are not in a position to introduce another subject of expenditure. Therefore, I do not intend to consider or discuss the question whether, strictly speaking, municipal institutions are concerned in education or not, nor even the merits of the smaller proposition put forward by the Hon'ble Dr. Gooroo Das Banerjee in reference to the larger measure advocated by the Hon'ble Sir Alfred Croft. I wish to impress upon the Council that, the time has not arrived for these amendments. If I were perfectly satisfied that the funds now in hand were not all required for sanitary purposes in pa ticular parts of the town of Calcutta, then, as I said before, the question would arise. So long as the municipal funds are urgently required for sanitary and other purposes, I would protest against enlarging the area of the subject to which they might be applied. I would not enlarge it beyond the purposes stated in section 36 of the Bill.'

"And how did the representatives of commerce vote? They and the Hon'ble the Advocate-General voted against the proposal. There were in the minority, Sir Alfred Croft, Mr. Macaulay, Mr. Reynolds and His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor—four votes against nine. The commercial members, Mr. Moore and Mr. Irving, voted in the majority. Mr. Allen, the Advocate-General, Sir Henry Harrison, Dr. Gooroo Das Banerjee, Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar, Babu Kali Nath Mitter and Maulvi Abdul Jubbar completing the nine.

"A matter of the supremest importance to the interests of this city is, the rigid maintenance of the principle that its sanitary funds should not be whittled away. It is said that a special rate will be added to the rates that we have already in Calcutta on general property, and therefore there will be nothing taken from the receipts that now come in. I reply, Sir, that in fact it will not be so. For the last four years Sir Henry Harrison, and each year subsequently I, as Chairman of the Corporation, have asked the Commissioners, when the budget has been before them to consider whether, they ought not to raise the general tax above 9½ per cent. We knew that the water-rate, the lighting-rate and the sewage-rate were levied at their maxima. We were very reluctant to ask the Commissioners to raise the general tax because the four property taxes, coming as they do to an aggregate of 19½ per cent. on the yearly value of property, fall very hardly on the masses. It is with the greatest difficulty that many persons in Calcutta can meet the tax-payers' call; so that when the Commissioners were appealed to raise the taxes, they found that they could not, and they did not. It was thought that the objections to raising the taxes were greater than the benefits which could result. The taxes can only be raised to 22 per cent.: they are now, as I have said, at 19½ per cent. If the property taxes which are now so heavy in Calcutta be added to by a tax of even ½ per cent., it would simply mean that the collections will fall off, that the Commissioners will not be able to increase the general tax as soon as they otherwise might, or it may be that they will feel themselves compelled to even reduce the 9½ per cent. they are now levying to 9 per cent., or slightly over 9 per cent.

"The Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe has referred to the case of Bombay, and has asked why, if a ¾ per cent. rate is levied in Bombay, a general rate should not be also raised in Calcutta? Now, Sir, I will take this opportunity of dealing the death-blow, if I can, to this pestilent comparison between Bombay and Calcutta, in the matter of municipal expenditure. In Bombay, the Commissioners received last year town duties to the amount of Rs. 8,40,222, and liquor license fees and tobacco duty fees, amounting to Rs. 3,29,900, making a total of over Rs. 11,70,000 from sources not at all available to the Commissioners of Calcutta. It is impossible for any one to ask the Commissioners of Calcutta to follow the example of the Commissioners of Bombay in their expenditure on education, police, the fire-brigade, and in their liberal policy of exempting from taxation charitable institutions, and in various other similar directions, unless and until the Government puts itself in the same position towards the Corporation of Calcutta that the Government of Bombay assumes towards the Corporation of Bombay. If it should happen that the Government of Bengal will make over to the Commissioners of Calcutta the canal dues, and a considerable proportion of the license fees received from excise, then, or in like case, will it be possible for the Commissioners to incur any other expenses than those they have now to meet.

"As regards the difference between Calcutta and Bombay in this special matter of jute-licenses and the fire-brigade, I do not propose myself, Sir, to deal with that subject in detail. There are others present who can do so better and with more authority, but I will venture to call the attention of the Council to an extract from the last report on the Bombay fire-brigade. A list is there given of the fires where property to the value of Rs. 2,000 and upwards was destroyed: there were eight such cases, and only one of them was in a place where the material stored would have been taxable under our Fire-brigade Act, and there property of the value of only Rs. 2,000 was destroyed. The largest fire was in a house where Rs. 20,000 worth of property was destroyed: the next largest was of Rs. 13,500, and the next of Rs. 9,000 worth of property in houses, and actually the very lowest in the list was in the warehouse, where some loose cotton was destroyed. I would ask you to compare that with the list in the last report that I have seen published in the Calcutta Gazette on the working of the Calcutta Fire-brigade, as the HON'BLE MR. WOODROFFE has referred to recent figures to show that, there have been of late few fires in jute houses in and near Calcutta. The supplement to the Calcutta Gazette of the 21st of September last contains a list of the fires during the year 1891-92 that occurred in Howrah. First, there is the fire in the Sibpur Jute Mills, where property to the value of Rs. 3,35,000 was destroyed. In all the other fires taken together, property to the extent of Rs. 760 was destroyed, such as here one tiled hut, there one stack of straw, there one boat load of straw, and the like. That is the list for Howrah only. I have said that I do not propose on this occasion, at all events, to go into the history of the fire-brigade, or the demands which the jute industry has made and still continues to make on the fire-brigade establishment; but that the jute industry should still continue to bear a considerable proportion of the cost of the brigade there can be no doubt, and that will be established by figures which will be given by my hon'ble friend, the Commissioner of Police.

"As I have been reported to have said what I never did say, and have been so reported, not only once, but twice, I endeavoured to correct the misapprehension in the Select Committee, but it escaped the attention of the Advocate-General or he would not have repeated the mistake to-day. I never used the words '90 per cent. of the property so destroyed by fire during the past four years (1886-89) belong to the jute and cotton interests.' I quite understand how the HON'BLE MR. WOODROFFE was misled, because those words appear in a letter from the Chamber of Commerce to the Government of Bengal in inverted commas. It says:—'Mr. Lee, Chairman of the Municipality, has committed himself in his letter No. 90 (J), dated 18th August, 1890, to the statement that, 90 per cent. of the property destroyed by fire during the past four years (1886-89) belong to the jute and cotton interests.' That would naturally lead any one to suppose that, I used those words. But what I wrote was this:—

'I append a statement of property destroyed by fire in the course of the last four years in the town, the suburbs and Howrah, which I have extracted from the Annual Administration Reports of the Commissioner of Police. It shows that Rs. 16,35,075 worth of property was so destroyed, and that out of this, no less than Rs. 14,45,100 was property of the jute and cotton interests. The ratio is nearly 90 per cent. No stronger confirmation could be needed of the fact that, this proportion, which holds for the last four years, is not higher than the proportion, which would be found to hold through a prolonged period, than is afforded by the insurance rates paid for different classes of goods and property. I am informed that the rate for insuring jute presses is Rs. 3½ per cent., and for jute warehouses Rs. 2 per cent.; while the rates for ordinary masonry house property and non-hazardous goods stored thein is, 1½ annas per cent. The proportion of Rs. 2-12 to 1½ annas is 88 to 3.'

"That was in the form of an argument. I appended a list of the fires that had occurred with full details. The reason that there afterwards appeared a misconception in the matter was due to the fact that, the Commissioner of Police in making out his comparative list excluded, from his list of fires that had occurred of property belonging to the jute and cotton industries, two large fires, in which a certain amount of jute gunny-bags only was destroyed with other property. One of those two fires burned Rs. 3,00,000 of property in the Port Commissioners' warehouse, containing gunny-bags and piece-goods. Similarly, regarding another item of Rs. 10,000 worth of gunny-bags and tobacco destroyed by fire. These two being transferred out of the list of fires debitable to the jute and cotton interests, the percentage would be, of course, lowered; for it would make a total difference in the calculation, of twice Rs. 3,10,000, but my view is, that the only available method of taxing the jute interests at all is through the warehouses. We did try in Select Committee to find some other way of spreading the incidence of taxation on the industry, but found none possible. Finally, I would observe that even the calculation, as made by the Chamber of Commerce, showed that Rs. 8,60,100 worth of property belonging to the jute industry was destroyed in those four years as compared with other property worth Rs. 7,64,975.

"The speech of the hon'ble mover of the amendment divides itself into two parts—one to show that some alteration of the existing law is necessary, and the other to show that the alteration should be by way of imposing a general tax on property in Calcutta. As regards the first, I do not think it is necessary at this stage to enter into the details which will have to be considered when we come to decide how the taxation should be distributed. As regards the latter contention, I think that I have shown that, the Corporation of Calcutta is not in a position to accept the whole responsibility or any great portion of it, and that it would be unwise and wrong to try to put it on the general funds of the Municipalities."

THE HON'BLE MR. PLAYFAIR said:—"Twenty years ago the hon'ble member who then represented the mercantile community in this Council took exception to the original Fire-brigade Bill, as imposing 'a tax on persons for the benefit of the community;' and the merchants of Calcutta, upholding this view, have ever since expostulated against such a system of taxation, contending that as the whole community of Calcutta enjoys the protection of the brigade, the cost should be contributed by all through a municipal assessment. And while the merchants of Calcutta were pressing their views upon the Government of Bengal, it has transpired that the merchants of London, through the Association of Fire Insurance Companies, gave expression to similar views to the Metropolitan Board of Works, under date the 14th of January, 1886, and in these words:—

'The protection of life and property from fire is as much a public duty as are protection from murder and robbery, sanitary arrangements, maintenance of roads, &c., and, as such, it should in the interests of the community at large, be provided at the public expense. In cities and large towns the extinction of fires is the public duty of the municipal or governing body thereof, who are bound to make the necessary provision for the same, and to defray the cost out of the rates which they are authorized to levy for the purpose. The principle has been recognized by the Legislature, which not only on passing the Town Police Clauses Act, 1847, but in every other general public Act, authorizing the maintenance out of rates to be levied thereunder of firemen, fire-engines and other appliances and requisites for extinguishing fires, has not authorized any charge to be made for the use thereof in the case of fires occurring within the boundaries of any city or town to which such Act applies.'

'Taxation of a commercial interest for matters affecting the public good and public convenience is opposed to all sound principles of political economy. It is never suggested that Life Insurance Offices should contribute towards sanitary improvements, or Marine Insurance Offices to the cost of harbours of refuge, lighthouses, &c., and yet they are no less interested in such works than are Fire Insurance Offices in arrangements for fire extinction.'

"The fire-brigade was established twenty years ago under Act II of 1872, on account of the then dreaded frequency of fires in jute godowns scattered throughout a wealthy part of the native quarter. Many of these jute press-houses and godowns were then situated in and around Clive Street and Radha Bazar, within gunshot of this Council Chamber; and owing to the lax manner in which jute was stored in inferior godowns and stacked in open yards, the trade was considered a source of danger to the community.

"The tax for the maintenance of the fire-brigade was, in consequence, mainly levied upon the jute trade. The trade has, however, remodelled itself, both as regards situation and working. Jute is now pressed for export in hydraulic press-houses, which are situated, for the most part beyond the town of Calcutta. There is no attraction to bring these back to within the limits of the town, and the Justices who grant the licenses for warehouses will doubtless be careful to prevent their return. The press-house buildings, as they now exist, are of substantial masonry construction, mostly fireproof, and are equipped so fully with fire-extinguishing appliances and a fire-brigade staff of their own that, it has become a matter of indifference to them whether or not a public fire-brigade exists. The companies are encouraged to maintain this high state of efficiency by a liberal reduction or discount allowed in the rate of insurance, amounting to 15 per cent. according to the highest standard of efficiency, and to 10 per cent. according to a lower standard of efficiency.

"It is found that 6 of the largest hydraulic presses out of a total of 23 have become entitled to the full reduction of 15 per cent. and that the rest, with exception of 3, claim a reduction of 10 per cent. Eight of the press-houses are owned by native merchants The conditions that carry these discounts are both practical and complete in themselves. To obtain a rebate of 15 per cent. of the premium, the establishment, according to the Insurance Schedule, must include—'A steam fire-engine, a manual fire-engine, boiler pumping-engine, fire-plugs, buckets, cans, extinctours with, in each case, water (available from public or other sources), and with those sufficient to command the premises insured, and with a trained fire-brigade consisting of not less than 8 men.' The 10 per cent. allowance contemplates less efficient appliances, and stipulates for—'A steam fire-engine, or stationary fire-engine worked by steam or water, or fire-pump worked by steam or water, or fire-plugs with, in each case, water (available from public or other sources) and hose sufficient to command the premises insured.' These arrangements have been promoted in the interests of owners of press-houses and insurance companies, by the experience that, unless a fire in a peel of jute is discovered and extinguished when it commences, it burns itself out, and no public fire-brigade, however alert and efficient, is of the least use. Such being the case, owners of well-built, efficiently-equipped and isolated press-houses naturally not only demur, but strongly protest against being taxed for the maintenance of a fire-brigade, the head-quarters of which is situated one-and-a-half miles distant from them, and which has been chiefly of use in dealing with conflagrations in bastis and marts.

"The native jute mart is confined to Hatkhollah and to Durmahatta, situated on the river bank. The jute is for the most part stored in brick buildings. Fires are infrequent, and the owners do not insure. No instance has been reported of a conflagration having extended to neighbouring property from a fire breaking out in premises licensed under the Act. On the other hand, the whole community sleeps secure, knowing that, in the event of fire, the brigade is at call. Houses and dwellings between Chowringhee and Intally, between the Strand and Sealdah, schools, colleges, theatres, Government offices, godowns, stores, shops, are all protected by the brigade; and such being the case, I contend that the owners or occupiers are called upon to contribute generally to the cost. If the owners do not wish to do this, the brigade may be abolished. It is for the public to choose whether, they will control fires or pay higher rates of insurance premium.

"In no other country, and in no other city of this empire, is a particular industry separately assessed for the support of a fire-brigade. In Bombay, Madras and Rangoon the cost is defrayed by general taxation. In Bombay, cotton is not separately taxed, as it is with jute in Calcutta. Calcutta, therefore, stands out as the exception to a general common-sense and reasonable rule. The European and Native jute and cotton merchants naturally object to be so penalised. The practice, too, in Calcutta, is certainly not supported or justified by facts as to the occurrence of fires.

"The learned Advocate-General has pointed out that, during the past seven years only 7 per cent., that is to say, only 17 out of 247 fires, occurred in warehouses licensed under Act IV of 1883. The reports for the two years ending April, 1892, show that, no fires occurred in jute warehouses in that period. And it may be added that no fires in jute warehouses have occurred during the ten months of the current year. The owners and occupiers of licensed warehouses, therefore, protest that the history of fires in Calcutta in no way proves them liable to be assessed for the cost of a fire-brigade, when the maintenance of that brigade is so plainly for the benefit of the whole community. The other fires include what may well be termed, the devastating conflagrations in bastis, when hundreds of houses have been destroyed, fires in wood and hay stores at the Port Commissioners' jetties, and in Government stores, including an important loss of property which lately occurred in the Government Clothing Department at Alipore, and, I believe, a fire once occurred in Government House.

"It is proposed by the present Bill that the rate of taxation on hazardous trades, for the most part represented by the jute and cotton industries, should continue at 10 per cent. of the municipal assessment, with a maximum fee of Rs. 750 for any one license, and provided that the total trade contributions shall not exceed 50 per cent. of the annual cost of the brigade. In effect, this points to taxation to the extent of ¼ per cent. to 5 per cent. of the municipal assessment, or even more; whereas, if spread over the community, the incidence would not exceed ½ per cent. In Bombay, the tax does not exceed ¾ per cent. and includes the provision of interest on a special fire-brigade loan. In other words, a godown to hold cotton assessed by the municipality at Rs. 8,000 would in Bombay pay a fire-brigade tax of Rs. 60, and in Calcutta, under the proposed Bill, will pay Rs. 750. If the cost of the brigade is spread over the community, this godown would pay about Rs. 20. Again, the Bill will operate most unfairly upon the small trader in comparison with the large. An Hydraulic Press Company at Cossipore, with an assessed valuation of Rs. 42,000, will be limited to a payment of Rs. 750, or about 1¾ per cent.; while a press-house in Calcutta, with a municipal assessment of Rs. 12,000, will also pay Rs. 750, or 6¼ per cent., and Babu Gooroogobind Shaw having godowns close by, assessed by the Municipality at Rs. 9,000, will also pay Rs. 750, or 8⅓ per cent.

"The Chamber of Commerce, at the suggestion of the Fire-brigade Committee, examined the subject very closely, with a view to arrive, if possible, at a differential rate that might be fair to all, and after careful study have had to abandon the attempt. I do not consider the efforts of the Select Committee have been more successful.

"The pressing trade has not always been a profitable industry. It continued unprofitable until a confederacy in the working of the Hydraulic Press Companies was inaugurated. This system of working is still of necessity upheld, but it yet implies that, while the companies have a combined capacity to screw forty-four lakhs of bales of jute in a season, only about sixteen lakhs of bales are screwed, because exporters find it more advantageous to screw elsewhere; and the port of Chittagong reaps the benefit. This is a matter of serious consideration to those interested in the port of Calcutta, and is of itself a warning that no unnecessary impost should be placed upon the trade of the port. The castor-oil industry, too, owing to the keen competition there now is with American mineral oil for lubricating purposes, is in no way fit to bear further special taxation, as is suggested by the Bill.

"The late Sir Henry Harrison considered that, the interest of the mercantile community of the town was of the first importance, and Mr. Harry Lee, Port Commissioner, lately delivered himself of the following clear opinion, which, I hope, will be echoed in this Council:—

'Nothing can be more certain than that the prosperity of the town is involved in the prosperity of the port, and that this is already an expensive port. These truths are so obvious that, we and the Municipal Commissioners and the Local Government must be alike alive to them; and any burdens that the Municipal Commissioners or the Local Government can with fairness remove from the shoulders of the port to the public, must undoubtedly be shifted.'

"There is still a further reason in support of the tax becoming a general rate. The history of the Calcutta fire-brigade is unique. The jute and cotton industries have not only paid for the up-keep of the fire-brigade; they have not only paid for establishments to collect the funds and towards pension funds, but they have also paid for the cost of establishing the brigade and, in addition, have been taxed to such an extent as to yield a very large surplus amounting to over a lakh and a quarter of rupees. This sum has neither been used to perfect the brigade nor to provide pension and depreciation funds; but it has been appropriated by the Municipality to widen streets and enlarge the lock-hospital, I may add, to the utter astonishment of the whole mercantile community. If an account were now taken between the Fire-brigade Fund and the Municipality, these sums would, at 6 per cent. interest, represent a capital of Rs. 2,40,000 due by the Municipality. I take this rate on the authority of the hon'ble member, the Chairman of the Corporation, who elsewhere has remarked:—

'In fixing the rate of assessment for the Municipal Consolidation Act, it was considered, after the fullest argument, that no sane person would invest money in property in Calcutta, except in the hopes of securing considerably over 5 per cent. on his capital. Allowance was made for occasional disappointments, and an all-round rate of 5 per cent. was deemed fair.'

"If, therefore, the Municipality has been presented with these contributions and with a ready-made fire-brigade also, it will have obtained a gift from a single branch of trade that is without precedent. In Bombay, a loan of five lakhs of rupees was raised by the municipality to establish a brigade; and in London, the Metropolitan Board of Works paid £30,000 sterling to the Fire Insurance Association when taking over their brigade. It is clear that the jute and cotton industries have already done a very great deal for the general public good, and the commercial community consider that the time has come when, in common justice, they should be afforded the relief prayed for, and the justice of such has been admitted by Government since 1878, and declared, moreover, in the last Municipal Act for Calcutta passed by this Council, Act II of 1888. The mercantile community cannot be expected to rest satisfied until this is granted.

"In conclusion, I would venture to say that the Bengal Chamber of Commerce will never approach the Government of Bengal as a suppliant for legislative favours on behalf of any particular industry; but it will come, asking that just remedies may be applied to redress a grievance and remove a wrong which, in the present instance, the Chamber does."

THE HON'BLE MR. COTTON said:—"I only wish to trouble the Council with a very few words in reply to some of the arguments brought forward by the mover of this proposal and by the hon'ble member who has just sat down. At the last meeting of this Council, I referred to the principle maintained by the HON'BLE MR. WOODROFFE that, taxation in this matter of the fire-brigade should be evenly spread among all branches of the community. There is much to be said in favour of that principle, and the Advocate-General has supported it with conspicuous ability. But he certainly appears to me to have failed to recognise the peculiar circumstances of this metropolis. He has described Calcutta as an 'extraordinary' city. This is the language, as I understand it, of sarcasm; but if he had as thorough a knowledge of the town as I have, he would have used the word seriously. The position of Calcutta is not comparable to that of any large city in Europe. If there were no other difference, it would be this, that Calcutta is situated in the tropics or very near the border of the tropics. In a cold country fires break out repeatedly in residential houses and in shops, and they are due mainly to accidents occurring from the fires which are daily lighted in those houses. Fires at certain seasons of the year are burned in every room of each house. They are also due to the inflammable character of the houses themselves; to the large amount of wood used in the furniture, and in the wooden flooring.

"These are the circumstances which establish a radical distinction between European capitals and this city; and if there were no other reasons which justify a distinction being drawn in the source for the realization of funds for the maintenance of a fire-brigade, this one would be sufficient. The fire-brigade maintained in European cities would have to be maintained in all of them, whether there were large commercial warehouses in those cities or not. But, as I observed at the last meeting of the Council, it can admit of no dispute that, were it not for the existence of commercial warehouses, principally jute warehouses, in Calcutta, the brigade of this city would never have been maintained at its existing strength. In London, the majority of fires that break out are in residential houses, and the greater portion of the time of the fire-brigade is taken up in extinguishing those fires. I shall be succeeded to-day by the HON'BLE MR. LAMBERT, who will be able to state to you, with more authority than I can, the proportion of time taken up by the present fire-brigade in extinguishing fires in jute warehouses, and in other dwellings including bastis. He will tell you that there is no comparison between the amount of work done by the fire-brigade for warehouses and the amount done in bastis and private residences. And this is what I meant when I said that, the majority of important fires occurred in warehouses. By the word 'important' I mean important in the point of view of the fire-brigade. If a fire takes the brigade a week to extinguish, it is immeasurably more important than a fire which takes one hour to extinguish. Therefore it is that I said that, the majority of important fires occurred in warehouses, and that it was mainly on account of these warehouses that the brigade had to be maintained at its present strength.

"Now I shall recur to the observations of the Hon'ble Mr. Playfair. He observed, and observed justly, that great improvements have been effected in warehouses where jute is stored—improvements which no doubt greatly reduce the risk of fire. But notwithstanding these improvements, Sir, it is still the case that jute warehouses pay a rate of insurance far and away above the rate paid by other buildings in this city. I attach great weight to this consideration. If it is a fact, and I am credibly assured that it is so, it is in itself sufficient to justify the special treatment of these warehouses by this Council. I hold in my hand a statement of the rates paid to one of the largest fire insurance companies in this city, and it is there stated that jute presses and jute warehouses pay a premium of $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. That, in comparison with rates paid by other buildings, is absolutely a penal rate. Were it not that the jute contained in these buildings is an eminently inflammable material; were it not that there is great risk of this jute taking fire, such a high rate would certainly not be levied; and so long as the rate levied on jute warehouses is out of all proportion higher than the rates of insurance levied on other buildings in this city, so long will it be justifiable to levy a special fee from these warehouses on account of the maintenance of the fire-brigade. This is a further reason why, in the opinion of the majority of the Select Committee, it was considered fair and reasonable that jute should still continue to pay special rates for this purpose.

"I entirely agree that it is exceedingly unfair that, the jute industry should continue to pay the whole cost of the fire-brigade. I recognise that the general community is undoubtedly benefited by the maintenance of the brigade, and that they should pay some share of the cost; and this principle we have endeavoured to give effect to in the Bill before you. But it was also recognised by the majority of the Select Committee that, considering the inflammable nature of jute, it was reasonable that it should still continue to pay a large proportion of the cost. The Hon'ble the Advocate-General observed that the differential rates of tax contemplated by the Bill must be bad because they were condemned on all sides. Now, Sir, it is my experience that every measure of taxation will be opposed by people who are called upon to pay the tax, and I would indeed have been surprised if the Municipality, represented in this Council by my hon'ble friend, the Chairman of the Corporation, and other hon'ble members, who are also members of the Corporation, should have accepted with equanimity those additional charges upon the public which the Bill contemplates. I should have been surprised if the hon'ble gentleman who represents the Chamber of Commerce should not have protested on behalf of the jute interest. It is natural also that, those who represent the other particular interests affected should protest against any new form of taxation imposed upon them. But when I observe that the Bill is opposed to the bitter end on both sides, that on one side, it is argued that the whole rate should continue to be borne by the jute interest, and that on the other hand, my hon'ble friend, the Advocate-General, says:—'No, there should be no special rate on any commodity or any interest; let there be an equal rate on all alike.' When I see these extreme views taken up, I am disposed to think that we have adopted the only fair and equitable course, which I have been told more than once is impossible, when we have tried, as we have done, to steer a middle channel avoiding either extreme, and to impose a differential rate in proportion to the inflammability of the commodities affected and the degree of protection afforded and benefit derived."

The Hon'ble Mr. Lambert said:—"I desire to say briefly why I am unable to support the amendment brought forward by the learned Advocate-General.

If the question now before the Council was the establishment in Calcutta of a fire-brigade for the first time, no doubt the case made out by the Advocate-General would be a very strong one; but the matter now under consideration is not, whether a fire-brigade is to be maintained, but who is to maintain it, whether, in fact, any change is to be made. Therefore, before those principles which were accepted twenty years ago regarding the impost of taxation are set aside, we should not lose sight of the causes which rendered it necessary to establish and maintain an efficient fire-brigade. Up to 1872, Calcutta had no brigade worthy of the name; but in 1871, serious fires had broken out, endangering the safety of the town, and these fires were caused by the laxity with which the jute trade was conducted. Therefore, several bodies—the Chamber of Commerce at their head—pressed on the Government the necessity of bringing the jute trade under better supervision and of organising an efficient brigade; and so in 1872, a fire-brigade was formed—not so large or costly as that now maintained, but that was the beginning of it. At first, steam fire-engines were stationed only at the head police office. Then the jute industry spread to the suburbs of Chitpore and Cossipore, and the cry was, that better protection against fire was needed there. So in 1887, an out-station was established at Chitpore at an outlay of about Rs. 40,000. Meanwhile the Act had included Howrah, and it was soon urged on the Commissioner of Police that the fire-brigade arrangements, which had been sufficient for the general community at Howrah, were altogether insufficient for the protection of the jute industry there. So in 1889 at Howrah, too, an out-station was established at a further cost of about Rs. 40,000. It will be noticed that those large outlays have been incurred in recent years. Now it seems that having got its fire-brigade, the jute industry want some one else to maintain it.

"It has indeed been suggested that, at the large mills and presses the appliances for extinguishing fires are now so complete that the fire-brigade is not wanted. But this statement has yet to find general acceptance. So far as I am aware, at only one press is the equipment on such a scale that a large fire could be dealt with. At several others, something has been done to provide fire-appliances, but more, I think, to satisfy the insurance offices than to be prepared to extinguish a serious fire. Certainly the owners of the smaller warehouses, numbering about 160, have no fire-appliances at all. My experience is, that when a fire breaks out in a jute press, all who are interested—owners, managers and fire insurance agents—are on the look-out for the arrival of the brigade; and generally those interested in the fire, detain the brigade on the spot long after in the opinion of those responsible for the working of the brigade think that it could be removed without risk. Certainly, these jute fires tax the resources of the brigade more severely than any other fires. How great is the strain is shown by the average period at which the brigade is employed at such fires. The records for 1888 to 1892 show this. During this period, 15 fires occurred in licensed buildings; and the average duration of the employment of the brigade at each fire, was a little over three days. During this same period, 141 large fires occurred in other places, and among these was the fire at Baliaghata, which lasted seven days. Yet the average period of attendance at these 141 fires was only five hours—five hours against three days!

"Taking into consideration, therefore, the fact that, in Calcutta the strength and cost of the fire-brigade has been fixed chiefly to meet requirements arising from the jute trade, I see no reason why that industry should now be relieved entirely of its liability to maintain the brigade. But there are good reasons why the burden should be lightened. Among these reasons I may name two: one, that the conditions under which the trade is now carried on are widely different from those which existed twenty years ago, and that the risk of a fire spreading to contiguous buildings is thereby very greatly diminished—I cannot say with the learned Advocate-General entirely removed, for it is not the case that fires in press houses never spread outside of the press premises. I can quote one serious instance. On the 20th December, 1888, the Canal Jute Press caught fire, and the damage sustained amounted to Rs. 4,00,000. Sparks flew from this press, and ignited a large flat lying on the river laden with 17,890 maunds of jute, valued at Rs. 1,19,490, and the whole of this cargo was destroyed. My second reason is, that experience has shown that the general community benefits largely by the maintenance of the fire-brigade, which is now wholly supported by the jute industry. During the last ten years, the brigade has attended at only twenty-five fires in licensed warehouses, against 219 fires in bastis and 107 other fires. Therefore the jute industry is, in my opinion, entitled to very substantial relief. What that relief should be, will be best considered when the clauses of the Bill come under discussion."

THE HON'BLE MR. WALLIS said:—"It would scarcely have been necessary for me to have addressed the Council on this occasion but for a remark which had fallen from the learned Advocate-General in the course of his speech to the effect that, the Calcutta Trades Association had expressed its dissent to some of the provisions of the Bill, although in accord with its general principles. As Master of that Association, I deem it expedient to point out that, I am yet to learn in what way the Committee of the Association dissent from the provisions of the Bill. The Bill, as amended, has been considered by the Committee, and they are in complete accord with the principles of taxation recommended. The suggestions put forward by the learned Advocate-General and supported by the HON'BLE MR. PLAYFAIR are not such as are likely to commend themselves to the approval of this Council, as they fail to adduce any grounds for the imposition of a general rate, which have not already been duly considered and rejected. It will be within the recollection of hon'ble members that, throughout the discussions which have taken place in connection with the raising of funds for the up-keep of the fire-brigade, this question of an all-round rate to be levied on the general tax-payer by the municipalities has from time to time been advanced, has often to be put on one side as wholly unsuited to a place like Calcutta, where the risk of fire in the majority of buildings is so remote, and where the danger from warehouses for the storage of goods of a highly inflammable nature and in bastis presents the opposite extreme. Owing to the continued representations made to Government by those concerned, a Resolution, dated the 18th of February, 1891, was issued by this Government, appointing a most influential and representative Committee for the consideration of the question in all its bearings.

"This Committee held its first meeting on the 7th of April, 1891, at which those present were unanimous in the opinion that, it was manifestly unfair that any one industry should be saddled with the entire cost, as it was impossible to deny that the general public derived much benefit from the brigade. At this meeting it was admitted that, the jute industry should be taxed to the extent of one-half of the total cost of the brigade. At the second meeting, held on the 14th of April, this question of a general rate was freely discussed, but the majority of those present decided against its imposition; and at each of the five meetings held by this Committee, the question was brought forward, but was as often vetoed, the Committee being of opinion that it was not desirable to place all buildings on an equal footing, and finally recommended that the cost should be met by several industries of a more or less hazardous nature, and partly by the general tax-payer. These lines have been followed in the Bill as amended.

"In like manner, when the Bill (as originally drafted) was referred to the Select Committee of this Council, this point of a general rate was discussed at great length, but the majority were against its adoption, accepting the principles set forth by the Committee of 1891. It may, therefore, be accepted that, the consensus of opinion of those most competent to judge is, that a differential rate is more suited to Calcutta than a general one. The Bill as now amended recognizes the claim to relief put forward on behalf of the jute industry; it provides that, goods of a less hazardous class shall pay a lighter rate than that imposed on highly inflammable goods; that bastis shall contribute a half per cent. rate, and it affirms the principle that, the general public should, in a still lesser degree, (i.e., $\frac{1}{8}$ per cent. on the value of property as assessed for municipal taxation), help in maintaining an institution, having for its objects the protection of life and property from fire.

"It, therefore, seems to me, Sir, that the recommendations made in the Bill must meet with the approval of the majority of the members of this Council, as being perfectly equitable in all the provisions referring to the raising of funds to meet the cost of the fire-brigade."

THE HON'BLE MR. RISLEY said:—"I wish to say a very few words in support of the arguments in favour of the general principle advocated by the learned Advocate-General. He has laid stress very justly on the impolicy of imposing a special tax on a special branch of industry. Whilst his speech was going on, I was reminded of the analogy between this and the special rates charged on special crops of land. I venture to say that if we were now discussing a Rent Bill, no words would be too bad, which for the rapacious landlord who should impose special high rates of assessments on specially valuable crops. This case is just the same. It deals with an industry which is specially valuable and profitable—an industry which has brought prosperity to Calcutta by drawing trade to it—and you set to work and discourage the trade generally by imposing a special property tax on those who are engaged in the industry. Under similar circumstances, a Continental Government would give the trade a bounty, as France and Prussia actually do in the case of beetroot sugar.

"Moreover, it is difficult to say, when you come to consider it, where this principle is to stop. It admits of almost unlimited application. You may tax horses and carriages and apply the proceeds to keeping up the roads, you may tax unwholesome trades for sanitation, and the dealers in indigestible articles of food for the support of the hospitals. Certainly, if you carry the principle to its logical consequence, so far from taxing the jute trade for the support of a lock-hospital, you would be bound to impose a poll-tax on the demi-monde of Calcutta. In that case, at any rate, there would be no question about the persons taxed getting their money's worth, which is more than can be said in the case of the jute warehouses. These, indeed, derive comparatively little benefit from the tax, because, as I understand, jute warehouses and presses have been much improved in their construction, and any fire which may break out will be pretty well circumscribed, as each building is surrounded by a high wall, and most of them are provided with fire and manual engines and extincteurs for the extinguishing of fire, so that the fire can hardly spread further.

"There is, moreover, another reason why persons connected with the jute trade do not benefit by the maintenance of a fire-brigade, because it is absolutely out of the question for the fire-brigade to think of putting out a fire which has once broken out in a jute warehouse; and further, the general public are probably less injured by jute fires than by fires in other cases. The premises are carefully guarded, and the fire has a less tendency to damage the property of the general public than a fire which occurs in a basti. On the other hand, a fire occurring in a basti has a greater tendency to spread.

"Then there is the question, of the value of the property destroyed with reference to the proportion of the cost of maintaining the brigade. We ought to look to the interest of the general public. The general public do not know what may be the value of the property destroyed. What concerns them is, whether a fire is liable to spread. In the case of fires in jute warehouses, we are told that the fire is not liable to spread. In the case of a basti fire, it spreads so rapidly that the whole basti is on fire before the brigade can arrive at the spot.

"Then there is a minor point as to the advantage of uniformity in legislation. If we are to legislate on any particular subject, it is no doubt a good thing to be guided by the experience of the rest of the world. We have had reference made to English experience, and to the practice at Bombay and Madras and Rangoon. I have also looked up the question, and find, as far as I have been able to ascertain from the authorities to which I have had access show, that the obligation of maintaining a fire-brigade is regarded on the Continents of Europe as strictly a municipal obligation. Endeavour is made to restrict fires as much as possible by having very strict building regulations expressly with the object of preventing the occurrence of fires, and I know that houses on the Continent are very much more carefully built, so as to prevent the occurrence of fires, than are houses in England."

THE HON'BLE BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER said:—"I should have had no hesitation in supporting the recommendation of the Select Committee if I found that it was proposed to distribute the incidence of taxation on account of the fire-brigade on all those who derive benefit directly from it; but as I find that it proposes to levy a rate not only on basti lands but on pucka houses and other lands, I do not agree with the Committee. The Bill, as amended by the Select Committee, enables the Commissioners to levy a rate of eight annas per cent. on all basti lands, and a rate not exceeding two annas per cent. on all pucka houses and other lands. The amendment of the learned Advocate-General, if carried, will have the effect of reducing the rate from eight annas to four annas per cent. on basti lands, and of increasing the two annas rate on houses and lands to four annas. We all know that bastis are occupied by poor people, and any measure which will tend to lighten the burden of these people, should have our support. I entertain a very strong view that pucka houses in this city ought not to bear any share of the cost of maintaining the fire-brigade, and as I find that the learned Advocate General's proposal of this all-round tax of four annas per cent. on occupiers of premises will lessen the burden on bastis, I think I cannot do better than support his amendment."

CALCUTTA; The 28th February, 1893.

Assistant Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Legislative Department.

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT ON THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE OPIUM DEPARTMENT FOR THE YEAR 1891-92.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT—OPIUM.

Calcutta, the 18th February 1893.

RESOLUTION No. 1030.

READ—

The Report on the Administration of the Opium Department for the year 1891-92 (1st September 1891 to 31st August 1892).

General.

The opium year 1891-92 is the fourth in succession with an unfavourable record—a record worse by far than of either of the two years immediately preceding. The total area engaged for in the two Agencies was 799,771 bighas. Poppy was actually sown on 787,041 bighas, but the crop failed on 45,178 bighas, or over 5½ per cent. of the area sown; the net area of cultivation was thus reduced to 741,863 bighas against an average of 770,208 bighas during the three years, and 836,358 bighas during the nine years preceding. The abandonment of the policy of extending cultivation when the outturn of the seasons has been so deficient as to diminish seriously the quantity of opium held in reserve, and the disappointment of the cultivators during several years consecutively, are the principal causes of the diminished area of poppy cultivation. In the four years preceding 1888-89, the average gross yield of crops in a year was 55,000 maunds, and the average produce per bigha a little above 5 seers in the Bihar Agency, and 65,120 maunds and 5¾ seers respectively in the Benares Agency; but during the three years immediately preceding the year of report, namely, 1888-89 to 1890-91, the average gross yield amounted to 38,035 maunds only, and the produce per bigha to 3⅔ seers in Bihar, and in Benares to only 44,198 maunds and 4⅔ seers respectively. There is, however, another factor which is steadily gaining importance, namely, the competition with other commercial crops, chiefly tobacco, oilseeds, potato and sugarcane, which are less delicate and more remunerative in an average year than poppy. There are no data for the Bihar Agency regarding the extent to which poppy has been supplanted by other crops. The report of the Land Records Department, North-Western Provinces, of the kharif season ending with 31st December 1891 in those Provinces shows that the area sown with sugarcane during that season was in excess of the area of the preceding season by as much as 402,900 bighas. Some European firms are reported by the Benares Agent to have organized a regular system of advances to stimulate the cultivation of cereals which, for the last few years, have commanded high prices. Poppy is no longer cultivated on the best of the soil everywhere, and, as observed by the Opium Agent, Bihar, it must be satisfied with such land as it gets, while Government must trust to more efficient supervision and to the grant of more aid in the way of loans for irrigation to secure better outturn. It may also perhaps be necessary, if the rise in the price of other produce continues, to raise the Government price of opium by 8 annas per seer, in order to keep pace with that rise. It is reported by the Bihar Agent that a well-known planter of Tirhut cultivated 30 bighas of land formerly under indigo with poppy last year, and that, encouraged by the success obtained, five more planters intend to try the experiment during the current season. The land which these planters are expected to devote to poppy cultivation during the present season is 75 bighas. These figures as yet are too insignificant for any general conclusions. It may be anticipated, however, that a successful season now will do much to restore the popularity of poppy cultivation.

Outturn.

2. In spite of the decrease in the area of cultivation, and the dryness of the season (the monsoon having closed early and hardly any rain fallen during the winter), the prospects up to the end of February continued favourable and promised a good outturn. But the setting in of strong westerly winds at the time of gathering the produce entirely upset all previous calculations, and proved to be particularly disastrous by drying up the juice which exudes from the capsules when lanced. These disadvantages were further aggravated by the occurrence of hailstorms in portions of the Benares Agency. The produce, reduced to a standard of 70 per cent. consistence, amounted only to 31,955 maunds 19 seers 2 chitaks in the Bihar Agency, and to 38,490 maunds 10 seers 13 chitaks in the Benares Agency, against 38,759 maunds 3 seers and 44,373 maunds 19 seers 2 chitaks, respectively, during the previous year. The total produce was 70,445 maunds 30 seers against 83,132 maunds 22 seers in 1890-91, and the average produce per bigha was 3 seers 6½ chitaks in the Bihar Agency and 4 seers 3 chitaks in the Benares Agency, against 3 seers 12½ chitaks and 4 seers 8 chitaks, respectively, in 1890-91. In the Bihar Agency the average produce per bigha was highest in Tehta, Gaya, and Shahabad, where it was 4 seers 2½ chitaks, 4 seers 2 chitaks, and 4 seers 0¾ chitaks, respectively, and lowest in Tirhut, where it was 1 seer 3½ chitaks. In the Benares Agency the highest average was in Ghazipur, 4 seers 13¾ chitaks, and the lowest in Etawa, 3 seers 8¼ chitaks. The average was higher in Gaya, Basti, Mirzapur, and Faizabad than in the previous year.

Manufacture.

3. The amount of provision opium manufactured during the season was 20,846 chests, eight cakes, in Bihar, and 12,833 chests in Benares, which was less than the quantity manufactured in the previous year by 988 chests, 12 cakes in the former, and 9,855 chests in the latter Agency. The great disparity in the outturn of the two Agencies is accounted for by the fact that more than 9,000 maunds of the Ghazipur drug, which was of too high a consistence for Benares provision opium, the standard consistence of which is 71°, were transferred to Bihar and there manufactured with the produce of that Agency for Bihar provision opium, of which the standard consistence is 75°. In consequence of abnormal climatic conditions, the consistence of opium at both the Agencies was unusually high, Bihar opium being manufactured at an average consistence of 77°, and Benares at an average of 74°, the former being two degrees above the standard and the latter three degrees. The fact of the standard consistence of the Benares provision opium having been raised from 70° to 71°, has been publicly notified.

Reserve.

4. The number of chests to be sold in 1893 has been fixed at 43,704, and the reserve on the 31st December 1893 will fall to 1,947 chests of Patna opium, with a deficit of 33 chests of Benares opium, which will have to be provided in 1893, contrary to the usual practice, from the manufacture of the produce of the cold weather of 1892-93. The prospects of the current season have been hitherto reported to be above the average, but experience has shown how delusive such forecasts may prove in the case of opium. Should the results of the outturn of the cold weather crop of 1892-93 be again unfavourable, the question of the reserve will, as the Board observe, assume a serious aspect.

Receipts and expenditure of opium.

5. The principal point in the Board's report which the Lieutenant-Governor has to criticize is the difficulty of finding out what the actual receipts and expenditure of opium were. The statement given in paragraph 4, page 1 of the Board's Report shows the quantity produced in the year, and the amount of provision opium, but does not include excise opium or opium manufactured for medical purposes. The Board are requested to devise a clear statement in maunds and seers reduced to a uniform consistence, of opium in stock, opium received in the year, opium used in different ways, and balance in stock at end of the year. The accounts give the expenditure in cakes, maunds, and chests, which is somewhat confusing.

Nepal opium.

6. The quantity of Nepal opium delivered amounted to 136 maunds only, against 157 maunds in the previous season. It is reported that the bad season was felt in Nepal also. Under the orders of Government, Nepal opium will in future be received from the Nepalese cultivators direct on the same terms as opium brought by British subjects, as the arrangement under which this opium used to be supplied through an intermediary approved by Government was found to be unsatisfactory.

Expenditure.

7. The expenditure in the Bihar Agency amounted to Rs. 73,73,691 against Rs. 88,19,349 in the preceding year, and in the Benares Agency to Rs. 88,72,927 against Rs. 1,02,28,196 in 1890-91. The combined expenditure in the two Agencies was thus Rs. 1,62,46,618, which is less than the expenditure in 1890-91 by Rs. 28,00,927. A detailed statement of the expenditure is furnished by the Benares Agent. The Bihar Agent explains that he has been unable to furnish the statement in consequence of Part IV of the Opium Manual containing all the revised forms and tables for calculation being still in the press. This explanation is accepted by the Board, but it appears to the Lieutenant-Governor that the Board need not have failed to obtain a detailed statement of the expenditure in the Bihar Agency if they had made any attempt to get it or had prescribed a form for Bihar. The Benares statement (reprinted in paragraph 41 of the Board's report) is arranged under 18 budget heads (which should have been numbered): these can be grouped under—

		Heads.
1.	Cost price of opium	3, 4, 5
2.	Establishment ...	1, 2, 7, 10, 11, 12
3.	Transit, weighment, and freight	6, 8
4.	Manufacturing	9
5.	Miscellaneous	13 to 18

The Bihar expenditure should be divided in the same way, and the rateable incidence of the several heads of expenditure should be divided over the quantity of opium produced so as to separate permanent establishment, which cannot vary, from the temporary or variable establishment which ought to rise and fall with the weight of the crop. The statement ought to show at a glance the cost per maund to Government divided into (1) price paid to cultivators; (2) cost of manufacturing; (3) cost of supervising establishment. Column 5 of the abstract statements for Bihar and Benares divided by column 3 shows the cost per maund to have been Rs. 231 in Bihar and Rs. 230 in Benares.

Outstanding balances.

8. In the Bihar Agency the outstanding balance of advances to cultivators is said to be Rs. 12,020, exclusive of Rs. 270 written off as irrecoverable. The Benares Agent states in paragraph 96 of his report that the balance on the 1st November 1891 on account of season 1891-92 was Rs. 1,49,735-12, the amount realised between 1st November 1891 and 1st November 1892 Rs. 1,38,017, and the net balance on the 1st November 1892 of advances for the season Rs. 11,718-12-1. These figures require explanation. The Opium Manual shows that in the Benares Agency the arrangements with cultivators are begun about the middle of August, and simultaneouly with the engagements advances are given at the prescribed rate, the first advance being about one-third of the estimated value of the return. No second advance is generally made in the Benares Agency. It is obvious that under this system the amount of advances for season 1891-92 on the 1st November 1891 would be much higher than Rs. 1,49,735-12. Statement B appended to the Benares Agent's report shows that the total amount of advances during 1891-92 for provision opium was Rs. 78,43,539, which was in excess of the value of the produce by Rs. 1,35,249. The Bihar Opium Agent considers it to be a specially unsatisfactory feature of the accounts of the year that the cultivators of Bihar should have had to refund out of the advances taken by them as much as Rs. 80,530, which sum exceeds the corresponding amount for any previous year except the year 1882-83, which is memorable for its disastrous blight. In His Honour's opinion the poor outturn fully explains why the advances exceeded the value of the crop brought in for weighment and the cultivators had to refund the balance; but it is an exceptional circumstance. In Benares the amount, viz. Rs. 1,38,017, which the cultivators had to refund for the year's advances far exceeded that in Bihar.

Irrigation.

9. Statement A of the Bihar Agency shows that out of a total area of 375,586 bighas, 63,057 bighas, or above 17 per cent., were unirrigated, against 81,678 bighas, or 20 per cent, in the preceding year. In the corresponding statement for the Benares Agency the unirrigated area is only 8,345 bighas, or a little above 2 per cent. The Bihar statement reduces the bighas into acres, which should in future be done in the Benares statement, the Agency bigha in both Bihar and Benares being equal to $\frac{12}{18}$ths of an acre. In the Bihar Agency a strong prejudice, which the Agent reports to be well founded, exists against the use of canal water for poppy cultivation in the Shahabad and Patna districts. The amount advanced for the construction and repairs of wells was Rs. 49,535, against Rs. 24,355 in the previous year in the Bihar Agency, and Rs. 11,359 against Rs. 15,583 in 1890-91 in the Benares Agency. The Benares Agent reports that the reasons which operate against the expansion of the system are (1) insecurity of the tenure on which the raiyats generally hold their lands; (2) fear of the cultivators of their inability to repay the loan; and (3) want of sound and sufficient security. It appears to Sir Charles Elliott to be very remarkable and contrary to the belief which has hitherto prevailed if the raiyat in Bihar feels more secure in his tenure than the raiyat in the North-Western Provinces. This matter will be brought to the notice of the Government of the North-Western Provinces.

Saw Mills.

10. The account furnished in the Board's report of the working of the Patna Saw Mills and Chest Department is very confused. From the report of the Bihar Opium Agent it appears that during the year 1891-92 22,388 chests were made, of which 11,892 were sâl and 10,496 mango wood, against 26,113 chests, all of sâl, in the previous year. The cost of a sâl wood chest was Rs. 5-14-7, and of a mango wood chest Rs. 2-7-5. The difference between these two prices represents the saving effected by the substitution of mango wood for sâl wood. The total amount of saving in this way is represented by Rs. 35,937. With a view to economy the Mill was, with the sanction of Government, closed for the month of October 1891, and for April, May, and June 1892. The net expenditure on account of the mills in 1891-92 is stated by the Board to have been Rs. 19,384, after deducting certain receipts, against Rs. 22,425 in the preceding year. The separate letter on this subject referred to by the Board shows, however, that the actual expenditure was Rs. 24,434 against Rs. 27,751. This shows a satisfactory saving. But it appears from the Bihar Agent's report that 33,000 ready-made chests purchased for contractors with lids were sent to Ghazipur. This appears to have been hardly wise, unless the cost of a purchased chest is less than that of a chest made at the Saw Mill, as primâ facie, instead of keeping the Mill closed for some months, it might have been utilized for the chests required for the Ghazipur Agency. The reason also why 33,000 chests were required for Ghazipur when 22,388 sufficed for Patna requires explanation.

Breaches of Opium Laws.

11. Compared with the year 1890-91, there was a decrease of 72 in the number of cases in Bengal, and an increase of 41 cases in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, the total number during the year 1891-92 being 501 in the former and 605 in the latter. Three of the cases in Bengal during the year were of considerable importance. In one case 19 seers of opium were sent up from Hooghly: it was reported that the opium was dropped by some up-country men who were passing through the town and ran away when challenged, leaving their property behind them. In another case four jars, containing about 3 maunds 15 seers, supposed to have been stolen during transit to Ghazipur out of a truck in the Bengal and North-Western Railway, were found on board some boats in the river at Calcutta. In May last about 11 maunds 35 seers of opium smuggled from Nepal were seized in a station on the Tirhut State Railway. The opium was concealed in packages said to contain spices. The Lieutenant-Governor notices with satisfaction that in the Bihar Agency, as well as in the Benares Agency, the requisite enquiries are made by the local opium officers to ascertain from what source the illicit drug in any case of smuggling which comes to light has been obtained. A large number of cases in Benares consisted of those in which a cultivator's wife or mother claimed to have retained a few grains of opium for medical purposes. The Agent did not think it necessary to punish the accused departmentally in addition to the punishment inflicted in the Criminal Court, as they were good cultivators. Mr. Rivett-Carnac considers that the existence of any organized contraband trade assisted by the cultivators is improbable, but he appears to think that smuggling to Calcutta is carried on by the purchase of excise opium at Rs. 16 per seer, which is the price fixed for the Patna

Division, and also for adjoining districts of the North Western Provinces. The propriety of raising this figure is now under discussion with the Board, and an additional argument for such a measure may be found in the fact that the State loses considerably by selling at the present price. The statistics of the average price of provision opium sold at Calcutta from October 1891 to September 1892 show that Bihar provision opium sold at Rs. 17 per seer. Considering the higher consistence of excise opium, Rs. 16 per seer represent a much lower price than the Calcutta price of provision opium.

Tours.

12. Mr. Stevens, while in charge of the Miscellaneous Revenue Department in the Board of Revenue, visited both the factories as well as the weighing station at Ekdari in the Nepal frontier. He submitted notes to Government of discussions with the local opium officers on (1) the question of obtaining Nepal opium through Mr. Cockell; (2) the partial introduction of the assamiwar system prevalent in the Benares Agency in a part of the Motihari Agency; and (3) an improved method of packing opium jars. Orders have been passed separately by Government on these matters. With regard to the introduction of the Benares system of engagements, the Lieutenant-Governor is of opinion that it is hardly worth while to discuss the merits of the system or to make an experiment in a single kothi, unless there is a definite intention of carrrying out a change. At present there is no such intention, and it is not worth while to enquire whether the reason given by Mr. Kemble, namely, the additional cost which the Benares system would entail, is valid or not. The Agents and the Sub-Deputy Agents made useful tours within their respective charges. Under orders of Government directing the mutual interchange of visits between the Factory Superintendents, the Superintendent of the Ghazipur Factory visited the Patna Factory in September last. The Lieutenant-Governor has no doubt that these visits will be of decided benefit to the factories and to the interests of Government by the interchange of ideas.

Merits of officers.

13. The Board have reported to Government the names of Messrs. Tytler, Ryves, Harrison, Bryson, Murray and Blair among the Sub-Deputy Opium Agents as having worked well in the Bihar Agency. The Benares Agent has not made any recommendations this year. Dr. Sedgefield, Dr. Owen and Mr. Gregory are favourably reported on for their able discharge of their duties. The Lieutenant-Governor has again to acknowledge the efficient management of the Opium Department by the Agents, Mr. Kemble, Mr. Rivett-Carnac, and Mr. Hopkins, who held charge during the year, and the careful supervision exercised by the Board of Revenue.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

BHAGALPUR DIVN.
27	Monghyr Feb. 25, '93	1·53	Continual showers. Weather damp and cold. The present weather is injurious to much of the rabi, but it is hoped the wheat and other late kinds may benefit to some extent. Poppy must suffer severely as the extraction had already commenced, and each day's rain takes away some of the value. The loss may be now roughly put down at 3 annas, and the outturn is likely to be less even than that of last year, although the land sown is 2,000 bighas more and the failure of crop reported was 300 bighas less than in the previous year. The renewed moisture will be very advantageous for indigo lands. Prices of common rice :—

The tori harvest is finished in Araria with a very fair outturn; elsewhere that crop is being reaped. The rain will also facilitate ploughing of the bhadoi lands. Fodder and water sufficient. 33	Gaya ,, 25, 93	2·14	Weather—very cloudy and rainy throughout the week. The rainfall has done some good to the late rabi crops, while it has done some injury to the early crops. The crops cut and stored in open fields have been specially damaged, but their proportion is still small. The weather still continues cloudy and rainy, and if there is no bright sunshine soon much damage will be done to the rabi crops. The repeated showers have washed off some lanced drugs of the poppy, and the high winds have done some damage to the plants. This crop is, however, still in flower in many places, and the damage will not be very serious if there is bright sunshine soon. Fodder and water for cattle sufficient.

Explanation.—... indicates that no rain has fallen. If the return for any day has not been received, the corresponding space is left blank. If any of the returns are wanting, the corresponding spaces in the total rainfall columns are left blank. With reference to the column of rainy days, the definition of a rainy day is when at least 0·1 inch of rain has fallen.

CALCUTTA, the 28th February 1893.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL FOR THE WEEK ENDING 8 A.M., SATURDAY, THE 25TH OF FEBRUARY 1893.

At the close of the previous week a barometric depression had passed in an easterly direction over Bengal, and on the 18th, or the last day of the week, had apparently reached Burma. Hence rain had been received at many stations in Bengal, and the falls were general and rather heavy in the eastern and southern districts, while conditions over Bengal remained very disturbed. On the 19th, or the first day of the present week, the barometric changes in Bengal were irregular, a low pressure area existed over the Central Provinces and the neighbouring parts of Orissa, and also over the northern parts of Madras. Pressure was also falling rather rapidly on this day at Darjeeling, pointing to the existence of disturbed weather in and near the Himalayas, and at Gnatong a snowstorm was reported, while a few rain showers also fell in parts of Bengal. On the 20th the area of low pressure had apparently passed over the north of the Bay, and pressure was generally rising over Bengal, though at Gnatong a fall had been reported. The weather from the 19th to the 20th had been very disturbed in Bengal, heavy rain had fallen at many stations, and in several cases the rain accompanied rather severe thunderstorms, while at Jessore hail was also reported. On the 21st the area of low pressure in the Bay apparently filled up or disappeared, and weather generally in Bengal improved rapidly and the sky cleared to a great extent, and only a few light showers were reported, and these were confined to parts of Orissa and South-East Bengal. In the hills, however, the disturbed conditions continued and Gnatong again reported a snowstorm. On this date, however, a fresh barometric disturbance or depression was entering North-Western India from the westward, which was advancing in an easterly direction, and on the 22nd one barometric depression was over the Central Provinces while a second large depression existed over the Punjab. Hence pressure was falling generally in Bengal except in and near the hills, and rain had recommenced at some of the Bihar and Chutia Nagpur stations, while at Gnatong snow was again reported. On the 23rd the depression from the Central Provinces had reached Orissa, and the depression in the Punjab had passed eastward into the hills, while a new depression had advanced from the westward into North-Western India. Hence again conditions were exceedingly disturbed and rain became general in Bengal, and on the 23rd heavy rain, exceeding one and two inches, was reported at many stations, while Gnatong again reported a snowstorm. On the 24th the depression in Orissa had advanced a little in an easterly direction and had become more diffused, while pressure was generally rising slowly, and rain was again received in the southern districts of Bengal. Finally on the 25th pressure had again risen slowly in Bengal, and apparently the depression was moving from Orissa in a south-easterly direction, but weather in Bengal was still very disturbed, and over the whole of the south of the province the sky was heavily overcast, though from the 24th to the 25th the rainfall reported was confined to parts of South-West Bengal, Bihar and Chutia Nagpur. Hence throughout the whole week and quite up to its close very unsettled weather prevailed in Bengal, and considerable amounts of rain had fallen over the whole province.

Pressure.—Notwithstanding the passage of several depressions over and near the province during the week, the general pressure has been in excess of the normal by from about 0·02″ to 0·04.″ At the extreme western and south-western stations, however, which have been mainly affected by the passage of the depressions, pressure has been in slight defect of the normal, and this has been the case at Gopalpur, False Point, and Cuttack in Orissa, and also at Hazaribagh and Ranchi. At Darjeeling also pressure has been no less than 0·04″ in defect of the normal.

Temperature.—Owing to the unusually heavy rainfall during the week, and the heavily clouded skies in the plains, and to the comparatively large snowfall in the hills, temperature has been unusually low during the week, and the mean of the province has been no less than 4·1° in defect of the normal. This defect has been largest in South-West Bengal, South Bihar and Chota Nagpur, where it has been about 6° and upwards.

The distribution of temperature during the week and its variation from the normal value are best seen in the table below, where the average maximum, minimum and mean temperatures for the week at nine typical stations in different districts of the province are compared with the normal values for the period. It will be seen that the defects have again been largest in the day or maximum temperatures, which have been in many cases 10° and upwards in defect, and at Burdwan the day temperature has been even 14·1° lower than usual. At Calcutta the defect in the maximum temperature has been 9·7°:—

Rainfall.—The falls during the week have been exceedingly heavy, and have averaged nearly two and-a-half inches in Chota Nagpur and South-West Bengal, more than one and-a-half inches in East Bengal and South Bihar, an inch and-a-quarter in Orissa and North Bengal, and about two-thirds of an inch in North Bihar. It is needless to say that these falls have been many times larger than the normal for the week.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Saturday, the 25th of February 1893:—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

o, overcast; g, gloomy; t, thunder; d, drizzling rain; p, passing temporary showers; ☈, thunderstorm; ≏, dew; ≡, fog.

IRRIGATION.

The 14th February 1893.

No. 35.—Notification.—The following rules, having reference to all the lines of navigation included in the following canal systems, viz., the Orissa Canals, the Midnapore Canal with branch to Narainghar, the Hijili Tidal Canal, the Orissa Coast Canal, and the Sone Canals, are proposed to be passed by the Lieutenant-Governor under the provisions of section XI of the "Canals Act, 1864," No. V (B.C.), in supersession of those now in force.

1. Every vessel, entering or passing along any of the above lines of navigation, shall be liable to measurement for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of toll the vessel should pay according to the schedule of rates authorized by Government to be charged on the line of navigation.

2. The tonnage of every vessel, except loose timber and raft, whether laden or empty, shall, for the purposes of the "Canals Act, 1864," and of these rules, be determined by the following measurements:—

(a) The product in feet of half the length of the vessel, measured along the water-line and round the contour of the vessel from centre of stem to centre of stern-post, multiplied by the interior greatest breadth of the vessel or by the greatest breadth of the cargo, should this overhang, or, as in the case of logs, be lashed alongside, multiplied by the greatest depth from the water-line to the bottom of the keel of the vessel, is to be taken as equal to the number of maunds upon which toll shall be levied.

(b) The measurement of the length is to be made in feet, rejecting fractions of a foot, and the measurement of the breadth and depth in feet and quarters of feet, rejecting portions of less than a quarter of a foot.

(c) In calculating the amount of toll to be levied, any portion of 100 maunds less than 10 maunds is to be omitted.

(d) In calculating the amount of toll to be levied on steamers, an allowance of one-third the total maundage as found under clauses a, b, and c is to be made for engine space.

3. Every vessel entering or passing along any of the above lines of navigation shall be furnished with a ticket on paying the prescribed toll. The ticket shall specify the station at which it has been issued, the name of the person in charge of the vessel, the date on which the voyage commenced, the point to which the vessel may proceed on the line of navigation the maundage of the vessel, the amount of toll charged, the number of days allowed for the voyage, and the date of such last day. The number of days so allowed without additional payment shall be calculated at the rate of one day for every eight miles, or portion of eight miles, to be traversed together with one day for every two hundred maunds of measurement. In the case of rafts, one day for every five miles shall be allowed.

4. Toll may be paid at the first station, either for the entire number of toll-stations on the line of navigation, or for any less number of stations.

5. The tickets thus given may be demanded for inspection by any duly authorised navigation officer, and must be kept on board and at hand for that purpose. They must be shown at each toll-station the vessel has to pass, as a passport that no further payment of toll is to be demanded. The tickets shall be delivered up at the last toll-station.

Navigation officers shall have authority to check-measure vessels whenever they consider it necessary, and if the toll due according to the check-measurement exceeds that originally paid, the difference shall be payable at the toll station of check-measurement, or at the next toll-station which the vessel may arrive at, if the check-measurement was made at some point other than a toll-station. The officer collecting the difference shall endorse the ticket, showing the measurements, and noting the amount recovered in excess of the toll originally paid.

6. Owners or hirers of vessels may compound, by the payment of a fixed sum, for the use of the whole or portion of any of the above lines of navigation for any period that may be agreed upon, not exceeding one year. Each vessel so compounded for shall be furnished with a ticket showing the amount of toll paid, the period for which the toll has been compounded for, and the limits of the line of navigation within which the vessel may pass. Such ticket shall be kept on board the vessel, and shall be produced when required under Rule 5, but shall be given up only on the date of the expiry of the period for which granted, and at the station from whence issued.

7. Duplicates of lost tickets, of which the numbers and dates of entry can be satisfactorily established, will be granted by the officers in charge of toll-stations on payment of a fee of one rupee.

8. Every vessel which does not complete its voyage within the number of days allowed by Rule 3 shall, for each day or part of a day in excess, be liable to an extra charge equal to the full amount of toll as determined by Rule 2. No charge for demurrage under this rule shall exceed rupees ten per month for any boat. The Superintending Engineer may at his discretion exempt any boats on any line of navigation, or any portion of a line of navigation, from the payment required by this rule.

9. The Superintending Engineer in charge of the Circle in which the line of navigation is situated, shall fix such places as he may consider necessary, at which vessels may remain while waiting for cargo or otherwise, without any charge. Any vessel which on the completion of a voyage or on entering the canal remains for a period of 24 hours or more at any place in the line of navigation other than one so fixed, shall be liable to an extra charge per diem as provided in rule 8, which shall be recoverable as toll.

10. The Superintending Engineer in charge of the Circle shall notify at what places on the line of navigation vessels may be ordinarily loaded or unloaded. Permission to load or unload at places other than those so notified, may be granted in special cases by the navigation officers. Should any vessel be loaded or unloaded at any place other than those notified by the Superintending Engineer, and without the permission specified above having been obtained, the person in charge of the vessel and the consignor or consignee of the goods shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to a fine not exceeding Rs. 10 for each offence.

11. Except with the written permission of a navigation officer, no goods or cargo may be deposited on any bank, berm, or land appertaining to the canal at places other than those notified by the Superintending Engineer of the Circle, as available for such a purpose. Any person depositing goods in contravention of the above rule, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to a fine not exceeding Rs. 50.

12. Navigation officers may order consignors, or consignees, or owners to remove their goods from the places notified as available for depositing cargo under rule 11. Goods not finally removed within a period of six days from the receipt of such order, shall be liable to a charge of four annas per 100 maunds, for each day or part of a day after the expiry of the six days, until finally removed.

13. No vessel of dimensions exceeding those which shall be notified for each line of navigation by the Superintending Engineer in charge of the Circle will be allowed to enter such line of navigation or to pass along it.

14. It will not be compulsory for the locks to be opened to single vessels of less than 500 maunds burden, except in the case of mail or despatch boats or passenger or cargo boats in tow of steam vessels; but the locks shall be opened for the passage of boats at least twice a day.

15. Mooring.—All vessels stopping at night must be moored head and stern, to the bank of the channel, or wherever specially ordered.

Only one line of vessels shall be allowed to pass along a canal or to make fast along and in a line with the canal banks or along and in a line with the banks of the river entrances to the locks, and no vessel shall be made fast, or be placed outside of vessels so secured, without the permission of a navigation officer. No vessel shall, however, be placed in such a position as to endanger the safety of other vessels, to obstruct their passage, or to impede the navigation.

16. Rule of the Road.—When under sail, vessels are to keep in the centre of the channel. When being tracked, vessels are, wherever practicable, to keep to starboard or right side of the channel. Vessels meeting in a canal, except when being tracked, must keep to their right when passing, and when one vessel overtakes another, the former must pass on the left. Vessels, one of which is sailing and the other steaming, meeting in a canal, the sailing vessel to keep to the leeward. A steamer passing any vessel is bound to go at a speed not greater than half speed.

17. Lights and Signals.—All vessels, whether travelling or moored in a line of navigation, must between sunset and sunrise carry a white light, in a lantern on the fore part of the vessel where it can be distinctly seen from ahead. All steam-vessels in motion shall carry the lights prescribed by the Board of Trade Regulations. Barges or boats attached to a steam-vessel, whether in motion or moored, shall carry the white light prescribed above.

Where signals are used no vessel shall enter or attempt to enter the entrance channel of a lock when a red flag or red light is displayed at the end of the lock next her. Steam-vessels approaching a lock shall whistle when a mile distant, and shall continue to whistle at intervals until the signal intimating that the lock is open or closed is displayed, or, if no signals are used, until arrival.

18. Crews and attendants.—Every vessel when stationary shall be securely fastened, and shall at all times have some person in attendance on board. Every vessel in motion shall have a sufficient crew.

19. Fittings.—Vessels must have their masts, high awnings, and funnels fitted so that they can be let down with ease and speed, and no bamboos or poles shall be erected on or by vessels when at anchor.

20. Conduct of navigation.—Vessels are prohibited from making fast to any portion of the lockgates or gearing, and steamers are prohibited from making fast the tow lines of their boats until the latter are clear of the locks. Steamers are prohibited from lashing boats or barges alongside while proceeding within locks. Towing ropes of a greater length than 50 feet are not to be used in a canal. The throwing of cinders into any canal is prohibited; they are to be deposited on the banks.

21. In every case of wreck or obstruction of the channel by sunken vessels, the Supervisor of the line of navigation or of a part of it may call upon the person in charge of the vessel to remove the same without delay, and shall give every reasonable assistance towards so doing. But should the owner of the vessel or raft be not forthcoming, or should he not use reasonable expedition in removing the obstruction, or should he decline or fail to use proper assistance which may be offered to him by the Supervisor, this officer may, under the provisions of section XIV of the Act, undertake the removal of the obstruction himself at the cost of the owner of the boat, recovering the expense in the manner laid down in section IX of the "Canals Act, 1864."

22. If the Supervisor be unable to ascertain the name and place of business or of abode of the owner of the cargo of any vessel or boats seized under the "Canals Act," he shall notify the seizure in the most public manner available.

23. In the event of any damage or injury being occasioned to the canal works by wilfulness or negligence on the part of any person in charge of a vessel, the navigation officers may detain the vessel at any point within the canal for a period not exceeding 48 hours; provided that, within that period, the navigation officers shall lodge a complaint against such person in charge of the vessel before a Magistrate under section XVI of the "Canals Act."

24. For any contravention of rules 15, 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20, the person in charge of the vessel shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to a fine not exceeding Rs 50.

25. All offences against the provisions of these rules shall be punishable as provided for in section XVIII of the "Canals Act, 1864," and all fines imposed may be recovered in the manner mentioned in section XVII of the same Act.

26. The term "navigation officers" as used in the foregoing rules shall include the persons alluded to in section VIII of the "Canals Act, 1864," and all Public Works Officers or Subordinates in charge of the canal not below the grade of sub-overseer.

27. The canals may be closed once a year for effecting the necessary repairs to them on one month's notice of the intention so to close them being given; but in the event of any sudden emergency, the canals may be closed at any time without prior notice, and no claim in such case by owners of vessels or others for compensation on account of detention shall be entertained.

IRRIGATION.

The 17th January 1893.

No. 11.—Notification.—It is hereby notified for general information that the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal proposes, under the provisions of section XI of Act V (B.C) of 1864, to pass the following rules in modification of those now in force in the Calcutta Canals and Tolly's Nala from 1st April 1893:—

I.—Every vessel on entering the Calcutta Canals or Tolly's Nala shall be liable to measurement for the purpose of ascertaining the tolls payable; and in case of any reasonable doubt arising, the Canal Officers at any toll-station shall have authority to measure a vessel notwithstanding that it was measured on entering the canal.

II.—The tonnage of every vessel, whether laden or empty, shall, for the purposes of Act V of 1864 (B L.C.) and of these rules, be determined by the following measurements:—

A.—The product in feet of quarter the length of the vessel from stem to stern, measured along the water line, multiplied by the interior greatest breadth of the vessel, multiplied by the depth from the waterline to the bottom of the vessel, is to be taken as equal to the number of maunds upon which toll shall be levied.

B.—The measurement of the length is to be made in feet, rejecting inches; the measurement of the breadth and depth is to be made in feet and quarters of a foot, rejecting portions of less than a quarter of a foot in net depth.

C.—In calculating the amount of toll to be levied, any portion of 100 maunds less than 10 maunds is to be omitted.

D.—Provided that in the case of vessels which entered the canals at Chitpore, Kidderpore, and Chetla empty for the purpose of loading therein, the depth shall be measured from the line of usual immersion as visible on the outside of the vessel to the bottom of the vessel, and not from the line of actual immersion at the time of measurement.

E.—In the case of steamers the tonnage, as determined by clauses A, B, C, and D, shall be reduced by one-third as an allowance for engine space.

III.—Every vessel entering the canals shall be furnished with a ticket on payment of the prescribed toll. The manjee's name, the date and hour of entry, the maundage of the vessel, the cargo it contains, and amount of toll charged, shall be entered in this ticket to identify the vessel on which toll has been paid.

IV.—Every person in charge of a boat, raft, or float, who shall pass in the canal without tendering the toll due, or who shall pass out of the canal without delivering to the toll-keeper the ticket of entrance and paying the rent that be due, shall be liable to be detained and punished according to section 10 of Act V of 1864.

V.—This ticket may be demanded and inspected by any Canal Officer, and must be kept on board and at hand for that purpose.

VI.—Every person in charge of boats entering the Calcutta Canals from the eastward must tender his toll ticket to the officer at Dhappa and Panspotta pass-stations to have it examined, stamped, and signed; and for those entering from the westward, must deliver up the toll tickets at the above pass-stations and receive in lieu a pass, which pass must be delivered to the toll-keeper at entrance of canals. Every such person must also pay all dues, or be liable to be detained and dealt with according to section 10 of Act V of 1864.

VII.—Every person in charge of a boat found in the canals (westward of the pass-station) with toll tickets unstamped or unsigned by a pass-station-keeper will be detained and treated as having no toll ticket under section 10 of Act V of 1864.

VIII.—The manjee or owner of every vessel not having a ticket on board and producible on demand shall be liable to the provisions of section 10 of the Canals Act.

IX.—Duplicates of lost tickets, of which the numbers and date of entry can be satisfactorily established, will be granted by the Collector on further payment of a sum equal to the original amount of toll.

X.—During the detention of any vessel under section 9 of these rules, or under any other provision of the Act, the duty of Canal Officers will be to see that the vessel or its cargo are not clandestinely removed; but they are in no way responsible for its safety, for which the manjee, owner, or agent must make their own arrangements.

XI.—The purchaser of a vessel sold under these rules, and under the Act, will have the option of taking it out of the canal on the day of purchase, or of taking out a fresh toll ticket at the rate fixed by the Schedule of Tolls in force for the time being.

XII.—No boat engaged by any officer of Government, whether civil or military, shall be exempt from toll, on the ground that the officer is travelling on public duty. The only exception of this rule shall be in the case of vessels specially engaged in the conveyance of troops on military duty.

XIII.—All vessels the bond fide property of Government, or employed on works connected with the maintenance or improvement of the canals, and duly certified as such, shall be exempted from these tolls and charges.

XIV.—Every vessel, raft, or float, which has paid toll, shall be allowed three days for passing through Circular Canals, and two days for Tolly's Nala between Gurreah and Kidderpore, and three days for Soorahs outside Dhappa Lock, the days of entering and of leaving being both included. In addition to these periods, they may, without further payment, remain in the canals for the further undermentioned periods, that is to say—

Circular Canal boats.—One day for every hundred maunds up to three hundred maunds of measurement, and one day for every two hundred maunds above three hundred maunds.

Tolly's Nala boats.—Two days for first hundred maunds, and one day for every hundred maunds above first hundred maunds.

Soorahs outside Dhappa Lock.—Same as for Tolly's Nala.

Floats in either channels.—Two days for any number of timbers not exceeding fifty, and one day for every additional fifty.

Rafts in either channels.—Two days for any number of bamboos not exceeding five hundred, and one day for every additional five hundred.

XV.—Every vessel, raft, or float remaining in any part of the aforesaid canals longer than the period allowed under the foregoing rules shall, for each day in excess of such period, be charged demurrage equal to one-half of the toll; and every vessel remaining more than thirty days in either of the canals shall, for each day in excess of thirty days, be charged demurrage equal to the full rate of toll, provided that in no case the demurrage charged shall exceed Rs. 5 per diem.

XVI.—Any vessel remaining in the canal more than two months without authority from the Supervisor shall be summarily removed.

XVII.—Boats requiring repairs shall be allowed to enter Dhappa Docks and remain there for a maximum period of thirty days, during which they will be charged at the rate of one-sixth part of the demurrage chargeable under Rule XV. Any boat remaining in the docks longer than thirty days without the special permission of the Supervisor shall pay demurrage at the full rate for such excess period.

XVIII.—No vessel shall be docked for repairs on the bank of the Calcutta Canal or of Tolly's Nala.

XIX.—Wherever mooring posts may have been put up by the Supervisor, vessels shall be made fast by the head and stern along the banks to such posts, and shall not be moored in any other manner.

XX.—The Supervisor may by notification prohibit the dropping of anchors or the putting up of bamboos or luggees in any part of the canals or on the banks; and in such parts no anchors shall be dropped, or luggees put up, under a penalty of fifty rupees, and of a fine not exceeding four rupees a day for continued disobedience of an order for removal issued by the Supervisor.

XXI.—Boats whilst loading or unloading in the canals will be allowed to use ladders; but the ladders must be gradually taken in as the water rises.

XXII.—As the water falls, the head and stern ropes must be loosened, and boats gradually pushed towards the centre of the canal: when the flood comes in, these two ropes must be gradually pulled in, and the boat kept as close to the bank as possible.

XXIII.—Only one boat shall be allowed to make fast along and in line with the canal banks, and no boat shall be made fast or be placed outside of boats so secured. No boat or raft shall be placed in such a position as to endanger the safety of other boats or obstruct the passage of other boats.

XXIV.—Boats passing through the canals shall keep in separate lines, empty boats keeping close to the bank and those that are laden in the centre.

XXV.—Hackeries, carts, bullocks, &c., using the canal roads shall, when stationary, be ranged on the side of the road farthest from the canal bank.

XXVI.—In portions of the canals where only one towing-path exists, vessels shall moor on the off side, and the towing-path side shall always be kept clear.

XXVII.—No persons shall place obstructions on the canal banks, roads, drains, or bridges (when such are on canal land), so as to impede a free passage along them or cause injury to them, or shall commit a nuisance, or deposit filth of any sort on the banks or in the canals.

XXVIII.—Any vessel, vehicle, or any other thing that may cause an obstruction to navigation, or to the banks, roads, drains, and bridges, or injury to the same, will be liable to be immediately removed and detained till all expenses incurred on account of removal, demands, and fines are paid. If a charge be not paid within ten days from date of detention, the said vessel, vehicle, or other thing will be sold to defray expenses.

XXIX.—"Whoever personally or by his or her servant infringes the provisions of any of the paragraphs 18, 19, and 20 to 27, both inclusive, of the foregoing rules, shall be liable, under section II, Act V of 1864 (B.C.), to a fine not exceeding Rs. 50 for any one such infringement, or to a fine not exceeding Rs. 5 a day for a continued infringement."

Vide Notification No. 22, dated 16th January 1882, published in the Calcutta Gazette of 18th January 1882, page 60.

XXX.—At the instance of the Collector of Tolls, any Magistrate who imposes a fine under section 11 or 16 of the Act may award any portion of such fine to the informer.

XXXI.—Any person who wilfully or negligently allows a vessel to sink in the canals shall be liable to a fine not exceeding Rs. 50.

XXXII.—In every case of wreck caused by negligence or otherwise, the Supervisor and his subordinates will give every assistance in removing the same.

XXXIII.—A notice shall be affixed on such wreck when recovered, calling on those concerned to pay to the Collector all toll which may be due, or fine which may have been adjudged, as well as the expenses incurred in the recovery or removal of the wreck; and intimating that, if the sum be not paid within fifteen days of the date of notice, the boat and its furniture, or so much of it as may be necessary for the recovery of the dues, will be sold, the proceeds of the sale being dealt with as directed in section 9 of the Act.

XXXIV.—Every Canal Officer is authorized to remove any vessel, anchor, pole, or other thing which he may find in a position which is in contravention of these rules, and to deal with it in such a manner as may be necessary to give effect to the rules.

XXXV.—Whenever any laden vessel is seized by a Canal Officer, it shall be the duty of the Supervisor to give immediate notice of the same to the owner or his agent, requiring the removal of the cargo without delay, and informing him that he will be required to pay all expenses necessary for the proper custody and storage of the same.

XXXVI.—If the Supervisor be unable to ascertain the name and place of business or of abode of the owner of the cargo of any vessel or boat seized under the Canals Act, he shall notify the seizure by advertisement in his office, and in one or more of the Calcutta newspapers or advertisement papers. Such notice shall call upon the owner to cause the immediate removal of the cargo, and to pay any necessary expenses incurred in providing for its proper custody and storage.

XXXVII.—The Supervisor may incur whatever expense he may think necessary for the proper custody and storage of the cargo of any vessel seized under the Canals Act; and if the cargo be not removed within ten days from the date of seizure, he may sell the same at public auction to the highest bidder, after giving ten days' notice of the same by advertisement in one or more Calcutta newspapers or advertisement papers and affixed in his office.

XXXVIII.—The money realized at such a sale shall be applied first to defray any expenditure that may have been incurred by the Supervisor on account of the cargo sold, and the balance, if any, shall be held in deposit to be paid to the owner of the said cargo on his applying for the same.

XXXIX.—No steamers are allowed to enter the Circular Canal without permission of the Supervisor at Chitpore or Canal Inspector at Dhappa. Steamers are not allowed to tow flats or cargo boats in the Circular Canal, but may tow one flat at a time in the new Canal. Any one infringing this rule is liable to a fine of Rs. 50.

SUPPLY OF PRINTED MAPS.

THE following Rules are published in supersession of those published in Part II of the Gazette of India of the 19th July 1890. Special attention is directed to the alteration in Rule 3 as to the authority for the issue of confidential maps:—

1. The Map Record and Issue Office, Calcutta, supplies printed maps on the public service, on book debit, when the value exceeds Rs. 50, and on cash payment (except in the case of the Public Works and Army Departments) when below that value. It also arranges for the colouring and mounting of maps when required. All charges for freight and postage of parcels must be borne by applicants themselves. Incidental charges for colouring, mounting and binding maps and for packing cases are included in the bills submitted by this office. When accounts are settled by book debit, the rules as to the disposal of the duplicate and triplicate copies of the invoice printed thereon must be strictly adhered to. Cash payments include payments by Money Order, Remittance Transfer Receipts and Drafts on Calcutta. Stamps and Receipts for payment into Treasuries are not accepted.

2. Maps can also be obtained by the general public from the abovementioned office on prepayment or by value payable post, as well as from the following Local Agents, who, however, have no authority to issue maps on the public service except on cash payment:—

ALLAHABAD.—Curator of Government Books.
AHMEDABAD.—Huzoor Deputy Collector.
LAHORE.—Munshi Gulab Sing.

RANGOON.—Superintendent, American Baptist Mission Press.
MANDALAY.—Manager, "Mandalay Herald Press."

3. All applications for maps on the public service should be made to the Officer in charge of the Map Record and Issue Office, 13, Wood Street, Calcutta, and should give full particulars as to the kind of map and its scale, and any other information that will guide this Office in knowing exactly what is required. In the case of confidential maps, the previous sanction of the Government of India in the Military Department must be obtained, except in the case of specially authorised officers. (N.B.—Trans-frontier maps are, as a general rule, confidential.)

4. The mode of transit and address or station to which the maps are to be sent should invariably be specified.

5. Indent forms for maps on the public service can be obtained from the officer in charge of the Map Record and Issue Office.

6. Lists of all newly published maps are periodically notified in the Gazettes of India and Local Governments.

3. Two discoloured patches, about one cable in extent and apparently very shallow, were seen with Saddle hill bearing S. 31° E. and Cone peak S. 5° W. Approximate position, lat. 9° 33½′ S., long. 149° 49′ E.

THE HON'BLE MR. WOODROFFE in reply said:—"Sir, there has been, if I may be permitted to say so, a not unprofitable discussion on this motion of mine, and it is admitted that, if this matter were now before the Council for the first time, the case which I have attempted to lay before the Council is one which could not be satisfactorily met, that it is, in other words, a strong case. But it is said, and this is the only answer that has been attempted, that this is not now before the Council for the first time, and that the industries concerned ought to be satisfied with the partial relief secured to them by the Bill as it left the Select Committee. But I say with great submission that the whole question, whether these commercial interests should be subjected to taxation for the maintenance of the fire-brigade, is before the Council. It is because the present state of things is undesirable, because the injustice of it is apparent, that legislation has been recommended and held to be absolutely necessary.

"It is said that, the Committee of 1891 favoured a proposition adverse to that for which I am contending. But it is to be observed from the proceedings of that Committee that, the Chamber of Commerce was not addressed till the fundamental lines had been previously settled. Sir Henry Harrison stated so in express terms. When the Chamber and other bodies came before that Committee they were met, so to speak, with a foregone conclusion on this point. But notwithstanding that, the general principle was over and over again asserted after the door had been practically closed to its admission. In the first meeting, at which Mr. Malcolm, the representative of the Chamber of Commerce, was present, he contended 'that jute warehouses should be placed on the same footing as regards taxation for the maintenance of the fire-brigade as residential houses, mills and depôts for goods other than jute;' and quoted figures to show that, the value of the property (not jute) destroyed by conflagrations was nearly equal to the value of the jute which had been burned. He returned to the charge again at a later meeting, and said that 'he could only repeat what he urged on the last occasion, namely, that to do justice to all and to conform to the practice of other countries, there should be equal taxation on all classes for the support of the fire-brigade, and that the proposal to reduce the fees on jute warehouses by 50 per cent. was only a tardy act of justice to jute industries; but not, in the opinion of the Chamber, that entire measure of justice which they were entitled to claim, which consisted in jute owners being subjected to equal taxation with others whose goods are likewise protected by the fire-brigade.'

"It was in consequence of that position of affairs, that in a letter of this Government to the Government of India, I find it stated that the recommendations which the Committee arrived at were arrived at mainly by a sort of compromise and did not profess to be passed on any definite principle whatever. It was, in fact, the result of that species of drift which the late Sir Henry Harrison, to whose memory so just a tribute was paid by the HON'BLE MR. COTTON the other day, pointed out, was not due to any deliberate policy on the part of the Government. For these reasons, I venture to submit that the conclusions to which the Fire-brigade Committee arrived, are not of much weight in this matter. It is true they did suggest that, the jute industry should be relieved to the extent of 50 per cent., but that suggestion was made tentatively. It was sought to ascertain if it was possible, whilst not ignoring that there existed great difficulty in carrying out that principle. It is said that the Bill as it has left the Select Committee provides a final solution of the difficulty. But I venture to think that, in the attempted solution proposed by the majority of the Committee, so many serious difficulties exist that the solution can only be described, as Sir George Jessel once said of a case before him:—'It reminds me of nothing so much as a cullender, it is so full of holes.'

"It was suggested by the HON'BLE MR. COTTON that Calcutta is not so extraordinary a place as I spoke of it in the language of sarcasm, and that its position on the borders of the tropics renders it incomparable to other large cities. Bombay is not so far from the equator as Calcutta. Rangoon is at about the same distance, and Madras is nearer the equator than Calcutta. Further, it is said that, but for the jute industry, the fire-brigade would not have been constituted in its present state of efficiency. That may be. But for the growth of inhabitants in this town, it would still perhaps be permeated with those large open sewers which existed some twenty years ago. The frightful mortality from cholera necessarily led to increased taxation for sanitary purposes. Could it be suggested that an aditional tax should be imposed upon persons coming into Calcutta so as to prevent the population from growing, and rendering it less necessary to construct sewers and other sanitary appliances? I trow not.

"Now as to the meaning of the word 'permanent' in regard to fires. It has been said that, those are important fires which for a length of time require the services of the fire-brigade. Surely that is not the test of importance in regard to fires! It may be of great importance to the fire-brigade as regards the amount of work it has to perform. But is it suggested that those fires are therefore the more dangerous? Not so. Which really are the most dangerous fires? The fires which are dangerous are those which blaze and spread within so short a space of time, that very often the fire-brigade is unable to come before the conflagration has most widely spread. I am therefore not surprised to find that, the time occupied in putting out fires in jute warehouses is three days in the one and in bastis only five hours.

"There is one further matter to which I desire to refer. The HON'BLE MR. COTTON referred to a paper which he laid before the Select Committee with respect to the rate of insurance, as showing that jute presses paid a premium of $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. The hon'ble gentleman said that a rate of $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. in jute press-houses is an excessive rate as compared with the rates of insurance on godowns with loose jute (2 per cent.) and on baled jute (one per cent.) and $\frac{1}{8}$ per cent. on private houses. But I wish to draw the Council's attention to the note which is set opposite to that statement in the paper. In that note, the Commercial Union Company through their manager point out that, the premium on jute presses is $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent., such premium is subject to a deduction of from 5 to 15 per cent, according to the nature of the appliances for putting out fires. But there is another note, and that the latest quotation which the writer had heard of was $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. less 30 per cent., or nearly one-third, so that the rates have come down to one-third of $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent.

"One word more as to another matter, and I conclude. It is with reference to the observation of the HON'BLE MR. LEE dealing with the question of Act II of 1888. I had not forgotten the language of section 37. I did not refer to it because it is irrelevant. It is irrelevant because, when the Municipal Act was passed, the cost of the fire-brigade was borne by the jute and other industries, and the amendment of the Fire-brigade Act was not then in the contemplation of the Legislature. Consequently, although section 36 says, that the maintenance of the fire-brigade is one of the proper objects of municipal expenditure, it did not find a place in section 37. The object of my amendment is to remedy that state of affairs.

"THE HON'BLE MR. LEE referred at some length to the discussion which took place on the passing of Act II of 1888, with respect to education. But with every respect for educational projects, I for one do not see that the preservation of life and the protection of property from fire, stand on the same footing as education.

"Again, it is observed that, there is a project here of having special rates, which extend to all classes of property, and in that I am at one in saying that, I recognise to the full, the propriety of the imposition of these rates if there are to be differential rates on occupiers rather than upon the owners of houses. That, however, is a matter for subsequent consideration.

"I do not make any observations about the proportion of jute fires to other fires. I could not follow, though with every desire to do so, the HON'BLE MR. LEE in his attempted explanation of this matter. I still understand him to say that, 90 per cent. of the property consumed belongs to the jute industry. With the HON'BLE MR. RISLEY, I venture to express the opinion that, the value of property consumed is no element whatever in the consideration of the matter now before the Council.

"The time has now arrived in which this question, which has been so repeatedly brought forward, but which has hitherto not received that full discussion which is necessary, should receive its final solution. There can be but one final solution—the acceptance of the principle of a general rate of taxation. If that solution is not arrived at on the present occasion, I feel sure that the time will come when the justice and fairness of the demand which I now formulate in this Council in this matter will render itself more and more apparent."

THE HON'BLE MR. WOODROFFE'S Motion being put to the vote the Council divided:—

Ayes 4.	Noes 7.
The Hon'ble Mr. Playfair.	The Hon'ble Maulvi Syed Fazl Imam, Khan Bahadur.
The Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder.	The Hon'ble Mr. Wallis.

The Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe.	The Hon'ble Mr. Lee.

	The Hon'ble Mr. Cotton.
	The Hon'ble Mr. Allen.

So the Motion was negatived.

The Motion, that the Report of the Select Committee be taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill, was then put to the vote and agreed to.

THE EMBANKMENT REPORTS FOR 1891-92.

No. 278*I*.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL,—PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.

Irrigation.

Dated Calcutta, the 7th March 1893.

RESOLUTION.

READ—

The Embankment Reports for 1891-92.

The public embankments in Bengal are of two classes—

First.—Embankments the property of Government which are maintained at the public expense.

Second.—Embankments maintained by Government officers at the cost of the persons interested.

In the first class there are—

A.—The embankments in Orissa which are maintained under Act XXXII of 1855.

B.—The embankments enumerated in Schedule D of Act VI (B.C.) of 1873, among which are included those of the Burdwan Ráj estate taken over in 1804, and some additional lengths which have at various times been added to the schedule under the provisions of section 43 of Act II (B.C.) of 1882, as also two short lengths of embankments in the Pabna and Bankura districts.

Embankments of the second class are situated in several districts, the most important being those on the banks of the river Gandak in the Champaran, Muzaffarpur and Saran districts, and those in the Midnapore district. These again are divided into two classes—

C.—Those in which the cost of maintenance is recovered from the persons interested by the payment of a fixed annual charge under a contract extending over a term of years not exceeding 30, as provided for in sections 63-68 of Act II (B.C.) of 1882.

D.—Those on which the cost of maintenance is recovered from the persons benefitted by an annual apportionment of the actual charges.

2. The lengths of embankments in each class and the total charges for maintenance during the year were as follows :—

Embankments.	Miles.	Feet.	Actual cost of works and repairs.	Charges of the year (inclusive of establishment and tools and plant).	Corresponding charges for 1890-91.

Corresponding total for 1890-91 ...	.....	.....	3,84,252	5,35,096	.....

The distribution of the above by districts is given in the appended statement B.

(A) Embankments of the first class in Orissa.

3. In Orissa the total length of the embankments at the close of the year was less than that in 1890-91 by 45 miles 2,920 feet, owing to the formal exclusion from the list of certain embankments which had been superseded by more recently-constructed canal and other embankments. All these embankments are now being re-classified according to their comparative utility for purposes connected with the new settlement in progress in Orissa, and further reductions may not improbably be effected. The cost of repairs fell from Rs. 96,991 in 1890-91 to Rs. 77,565 in 1891-92, notwithstanding heavy damages caused by floods and by a cyclone which visited the district during the year under review.

4. In addition to the ordinary repairs to embankments, certain original works were carried out during the year at a cost of Rs 13,803, the principal of which was the construction of six groynes at Pattamundi close to the canal in order to prevent further erosion of the right bank of the river Brahmani.

(B) Embankments of the first class—Schedule D and other Government embankments in Pabna and Bankura districts.

5. The total length of Schedule D embankments was nearly the same as last year. Two Government embankments in Pabna and Bankura were added during the year, but have not yet been brought on the schedule. Decreases occurred owing to the abandonment of 3 miles 4,082 feet of embankments in the Burdwan and Hooghly districts, while 2 miles 1,690 feet were added in the Rajshahi district. The actual charges for repairs, however, increased from Rs. 1,82,276 in the previous year to Rs. 2,37,275 in 1891-92. The main causes of the increase, amounting to Rs. 54,999, were as follows

6. A new embankment, called the Godágari road embankment, 2 miles 1,690 feet in length, was constructed in the Rajshahi district at a cost of Rs. 24,934 for the protection of the country north of Rampur-Boalia up to the Baral river, while four small retired lines of embankment, costing Rs. 5,860, in addition to Rs. 2,892 for land compensation, were necessitated in the 24-Parganas district by the encroachment of the rivers Hooghly and Bidiadhari and Diamond Harbour Creek, which seriously threatened the safety of the embankments at those places. The removal of portions of the embankments, including 3¼ miles of Schedule D and 1½ miles of Takávi embankments on the right bank of the Damodar river to allow a free passage for the flood spill, coupled with the necessity for filling in breaches made by the floods, caused an expenditure of Rs. 24,013 in the Burdwan district, and in Midnapore Rs. 9,125 were spent on emergent repairs due to flood damages and the construction of retired lines. The last-mentioned district was the only one in which any high floods occurred, and here they were of ordinary character.

7. In the four districts mentioned above the cost of repairing these embankments aggregated Rs. 73,273 more than in the previous year, and savings were effected to the extent of Rs. 12,322 in the Murshidabad and Rs. 7,382 in the Hooghly districts. In theformer of these two districts the level to which the flood of the Bhagirathi river rose during the year was the lowest since the year 1883, but notwithstanding this the embankment was breached rather extensively in the 23rd mile at Mahula. No damage, however, resulted owing to the dwarf bunds which had been thrown up in rear of the main embankment during the year 1890-91 for the protection of the town of Berhampore. A diversion channel for the Gobra nala, involving a weir at the outfall, was constructed in rear of the Lalthákuri bund, and acted effectively in intercepting drainage water and thus preventing percolation under that embankment.

8. The embankments, which protect the Burdwan Ráj Estate in the districts of Burdwan, Hooghly, Birbhum, and Midnapore are kept up by Government in consideration of an addition of Rs. 53,742 to the land revenue of the estate. The cost of repairs during the year amounted to Rs. 89,246, against Rs. 69,794 in 1890-91.

9. The Government embankment in Pabna alluded to above and situated on the right bank of the river Ichamati is 5,150 feet in length, and was constructed in 1890-91 for the protection of the Pabna civil station. It was repaired during the year at a cost of Rs. 443. The other embankment added during the year at Bankura is 4,600 feet in length, and was constructed in 1889-90 for the protection of the Government estates Pithaipur and Rajarbari from the floods of the river Darkeswar. During the year Rs. 702 was expended on protective works.

(C) Embankments maintained by contract.

10. The length of embankments maintained by Government under contract with the persons interested was increased during the year by 4 miles 1,901 feet owing to the construction of retired lines in the Champaran district. The sums payable under contract compared with the outlay, including book charges for establishment and tools and plant, on account of the maintenance of these embankments, from the introduction of the system to the end of 1891-92 are shown in the following statement:—

The total amount payable yearly by the persons interested is Rs. 1,02,315, while the expenditure incurred purely on works and repairs amounted to Rs. 92,707, and including all charges to Rs. 1,35,214.* Government is therefore a loser of Rs. 32,899 on the results of the year.

11. Looking at the result of the year under review, the expenditure on repair works only in Midnapore, Muzaffarpur and Saran was within the contract amount, while in Champaran it was more than four times the amount owing to the erosion of the banks of the river Gandak, necessitating the construction of retired lines. In Saran a further expenditure of Rs. 8,759 was incurred by Government in surveying the river Gogra as a preliminary to deciding the question of embanking one or both banks. The cost of this survey is not included in the figures given above. The survey has been completed, and detailed estimates are under preparation for an embankment along the north bank from Gatni to Chapra.

(D) Embankments maintained on repayment of actual cost.

12. A decrease of 1 mile 2,047 feet occurred in the length of the embankments maintained under the system of annual apportionment of the actual charges, and the cost of repairs, excluding charges for establishment and tools and plant also fell from Rs. 14,551 in 1890-91 to Rs. 13,398 in the year under review.

13. The principal embankments maintained under this system are the Turkí main embankment on the right bank of the Bagmati river, in the Muzaffarpur district, and the Bazitpur and Monghyr embankments on the left bank of the river Ganges in the Darbhanga and Monghyr districts The repairs of the Turkí bund were carried out at a cost of Rs. 5,617, against Rs. 8,228 in 1890-91, the reduction being mainly due to the absence of heavy floods. A scheme, having for its object the protection of a considerable tract of country from the floods of the river Bagmati, and involving the construction of a masonry weir in the Turki embankment, and raising a portion of the Titariya road at an estimated cost of Rs. 19,970, has been approved by the Chief Engineer in the Irrigation Department, and a notification for carrying out the work under the provisions of section 14 of Act II (B.C.) of 1882 was published in Part I, page 1141 of the Calcutta Gazette of 21st December 1892. The amount of the estimate was deposited in the Muzaffarpur Collectorate in January 1892 by the proprietors of the Káuti Concern, who are the persons principally interested in the work. Ordinary repairs of the Bazitpur and Monghyr embankments were carried out during the year at a cost comparing favourably with that incurred in 1890-91, no damage having been caused to the embankments by floods.

* Exclusive of a deduction of Rs. 5,217 under suspense accounts, which reduces the amount to Rs. 1,29,997.

14. In this class (D) are also included six drainage schemes carried out under the provisions of Act VI (B.C.) of 1880, the heaviest expenditure having been Rs. 77,375 on the Dainan basin scheme in Midnapur, including Rs. 37,954 for the construction of a sluice at Srirámpur, which was completed in August 1891.

15. An amended estimate, amounting to Rs. 65,344, for capitalization of the maintenance charges of the Dankúni Drainage Project was sanctioned in Bengal Government No. 1793*I.*, dated 21st December 1891, the date of apportionment of the capitalized amount being fixed as 1st April 1891, and an estimate, amounting to Rs. 5,178, being sanctioned to provide for the cost of repairs and maintenance during the year 1891-92, against which an expenditure of Rs. 4,070 was incurred. The annual cost of maintenance is calculated at Rs. 4,390, and it is expected that, on the average of a number of years, this amount will not be exceeded.

16. Details of the expenditure incurred during the year under review, the recoveries made and outstanding balances at the beginning and end of the year for each of the works in class D are given in the appended table A.

17. Among other works chargeable to the Provincial grant for agricultural works, the most important is the conversion of the Balliagahi Branch Canal into a drain, which was undertaken with the double object of improving the bed of the Rasúlpur river by causing an increased scour and of draining a tract of country known as the Barachauka jalla, and that lying to the west of the Argawal circuit embankment. In the above respects the work has so far proved successful, and it has further proved to be of considerable use as a navigation channel. The expenditure of the year amounted to Rs. 53,464. A sum of Rs. 1,119 was spent on remodelling the Partapkhali khal to provide for the drainage of a tract of 16 square miles of country in the Midnapore district. Repairs to the Balli Bhil drainage works involved an expenditure of Rs. 1,902. The question of the drainage of the south of the Midnapore district, involving proposals for the removal of the Argawal and Udbadal circuit embankments, and schemes for the retirement of the marginal embankments on the Rupnarayan, and for the abandonment of 31 miles of the Bhagirathi embankment in the Murshidabad district are still under consideration.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

C. W. ODLING,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

GIFT OF LAND REQUIRED FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF THE HOWRAH FORESHORE ROAD.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL, PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.

Dated Calcutta, the 7th March 1893.

Notification No. 59.—The following correspondence is published for general information.

F. J. JOHNSTONE,
Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

No. 681R.L., dated Burdwan, the 10th February 1893.

From—A. POWER, Esq., Commissioner of the Burdwan Division,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Public Works Department.

WITH reference to your No. 6492C., dated the 21st December, to the address of the Board of Revenue, I have the honour to submit copy of a letter written by the Mukhtear of Moharani Swarnamoyi of Kasimbazar, to the Covenanted Deputy Collector of Howrah, waiving all her claims to compensation for her land in front of Shalimar House, required to be taken up for the new road connecting Howrah with the Botanical Gardens. It is reported that the actual value of the land is small, but the Moharani might have put in claims for severance which would have amounted to many thousands of rupees, which would have been very difficult to settle, and which, if accepted, would have made the road so expensive that it would have been impossible to construct it.

2. The road will not only be a great boon to the public, uniting Calcutta and Howrah with the Botanical Gardens along the riverside, but will also save a circuitous journey.

3. Mr. Grierson has suggested that she may be publicly thanked by Government for this very handsome gift. I support the Magistrate's recommendation.

Dated the 28th January 1893.

From—MOHARANI SWARNAMOYI, by her Mukhtear BABU TROYLUCKO NATH BARAT,
To—The Covenanted Deputy Collector, Howrah.

WITH reference to the notice No. 4 of 1892-93, dated the 21st December 1892, served upon me, requiring me to file a claim in respect of the acquisition of land required for the foreshore road in front of my Shalimar property in the village of Sibpur, I beg to state that I forego all my claims for compensation in respect of the acquisition of land aforesaid claimable under Act X of 1870.

No. 1272C., dated Calcutta, the 1st March 1893.

From—F. J. JOHNSTONE, Esq., Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal, P. W. Dept.,
To—The Commissioner of the Burdwan Division.

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 681R.L., dated the 13th February 1893, submitting, for information, copy of a letter (dated the 28th January 1893) from the Mukhtear of the Moharani Swarnomoyi, of Kasimbazar, waiving all her claims to compensation for the land in front of Shalimar House required for constructing the Howrah foreshore road.

2. The actual value of the land given is small, but you rightly say that the Moharani might have put in claims for severance which would have amounted to many thousands of rupees. These, as you remark, would no doubt have been very difficult to settle, and, if accepted, would have made the foreshore road so very expensive that it would have been impossible to construct it.

3. In reply, I am to state that the Lieutenant-Governor notes with satisfaction this graceful act on the part of the Moharani in foregoing all her claims to compensation, and I am desired to request that you will convey to her the thanks of His Honour for her handsome gift, which will now enable the Government to proceed with the construction of the road, which will be a great boon to the public.

4. The correspondence on this subject will be published in the Calcutta Gazette for general information.

LIBERALITY OF RAJA NAM NARAIN SING AND BABUS SURUP NARAIN SING, TORAL NARAIN SING AND RAMESHAR NATH SING, ZAMINDARS IN THE DISTRICT OF HAZARIBAGH.

No. 764Med., dated Calcutta, the 1st March 1893.

From—H. H. RISLEY, Esq., C.I.E., Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal, Municipal Dept.,
To—The Commissioner of the Chota Nagpur Division.

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 250T.M., dated the 25th January 1893, with which you forward a copy of a letter from the Honorary Secretary to the Dufferin Fund Committee, Ranchi Branch, reporting that the following donations were made to the Fund on the occasion of the visit of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor to Chota Nagpur in November last:—

		Rs.
1.	Raja Nam Narain Sing, of Ramgurh	5,000
2.	Babu Surup Narain Sing, of Padma	1,500
3.	„ Toral Narain Sing, of Gowar	2,000
4.	„ Rameshar Nath Sing, of Kunda	1,000

You report that it is proposed to spend all the money subscribed in founding a hospital for women in the town of Hazaribagh, with the exception of Rs. 500, which is intended by Babu Surup Narain Sing for the benefit of the people of Lohardaga.

2. In reply, I am directed to say that the Lieutenant-Governor accepts the donations, and to request that you will be so good as to convey to the donors an expression of His Honour's thanks for their liberality and public spirit. This letter will be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

Slight damage is reported to have been done to peas and opium by rain, but the favourable weather which has followed has given an impetus to the later sowing of poppy, that it will fully if not more than make up for the slight loss sustained by the first sowing. Price of common rice at Sasaram has risen by 4 chitaks in the rupee; elsewhere it is stationary. Cattle in good condition with sufficient fodder and water.

The results of observations at the Alipore Observatory are not rigorously comparable with the registers of past years (at the Park Street Observatory). The barometer is about 8 feet higher at Alipore, and, other things being equal, reads therefore ·003 lower. The diurnal range of temperature is also greater at Alipore, and the mean temperature apparently about 2·1 lower; and, finally, the thermometer which furnished the record of temperature at the Surveyor-General's Office during 20 years and upwards is found to read 0·6 higher than the Kew standard thermometer, which is the standard of reference at the present Observatory.

* Mean of 6 days.

Explanation.—Summary.—The normal means of air pressure and temperature are the arithmetical average or means of the reading during the same period. The humidity of the atmosphere is expressed at percentage, saturated air being presented by 100. A clear sky is denoted by 0 and an overcast sky by 01. rainfall the normal mean are the numerical means or average of the rainfall in that district determined from the returns sent in by the subdivisional station district, i.e., from total rainfall at the subdivisional stations in the district sending in returns divided by the number of stations. A rainy day is one or for the week ending Saturday, the 4th of March 1893.

Explanation.—... indicates that no rain has fallen. If the return for any day has not been received, the corresponding space is left blank. If any of the returns are wanting, the corresponding spaces in the total rainfall columns are left blank. With reference to the column of rainy days, the definition of a rainy day is when at least 0·1 inch of rain has fallen.

CALCUTTA, the 7th March 1893.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL FOR THE WEEK ENDING 8 A.M., SATURDAY, THE 4TH OF MARCH 1893.

At the close of the previous week a barometric depression had passed through Orissa travelling in an easterly direction, and conditions in Bengal on the 25th of February, or the last day of that week, were unusually disturbed over practically the whole province. Skies were heavily clouded, and abnormal north-easterly winds prevailed over a considerable part of the province, but on the other hand pressure was in excess of the normal by amounts ranging up to about a tenth of an inch. On the 26th, or the first day of the present week, the pressure changes were decidedly irregular, while temperature had fallen rapidly, and fairly general rain had been received from the 25th to the 26th, the falls being as a rule not heavy. The effects of the depression had, however, to a great extent disappeared, and the sky was clearing rapidly on the 26th in all districts. On the 27th pressure had risen moderately and by nearly equal amounts in all districts, and temperature had also risen rather briskly. A steady north-westerly wind current had set in over the whole province except at one or two stations in Orissa, the sky was only lightly clouded, weather had become fine and settled, and rainfall was practically entirely absent. From this date up till the end of the week, the changes of meteorological conditions have been of comparatively little importance except as regards temperature, and fine and fairly settled weather has prevailed, while there has been a steady increase in the temperature. Thus for the 24 hours from the 27th to the 28th of February, the mean temperature of a large part of the province was from 10° to 12° below the normal, and this defect has been steadily reduced till on March 4th it only equalled from 4° to 6°. Pressure, on the other hand, fell slowly on February 28th and on March 1st and 2nd, but on the 3rd and 4th it commenced to increase again, and on the 4th it was in excess of the normal by amounts ranging generally from 0·12″ to 0·16″. Throughout the whole of the last five days of the week a steady westerly and north-westerly wind has been blowing over the greater part of the province, though towards the close of the week there was a distinct tendency for south-westerly winds to set in at the southern stations. Skies have also been generally only lightly clouded, and from the 26th of February up till March the 4th practically no rain whatever was reported over the whole of Bengal.

Pressure.—The variations of pressure during the week have been small, and the average pressure for the week has been in excess of the normal by amounts ranging from about 0·11″ at the eastern stations up to 0·15″ in the west of the province.

Temperature—As stated previously, has been rising steadily almost throughout the week, and the very abnormal conditions of temperature which obtained during the second half of February have partially disappeared, though even at the close of the week under review the mean temperature of the province was from 4° to 6° lower than usual. The mean temperature of the whole province for the week averaged 7·7° below the normal for the period, while in South-West Bengal and Chota Nagpur the defect has equalled nearly 10°.

The distribution of temperature during the week and its variation from the normal value are best seen in the table below, where the average maximum, minimum and mean temperatures for the week at nine typical stations in different districts of the province are compared with the normal values for the period. The defect, it will be seen, has been most marked in the maximum or day temperatures, which at such stations as Cuttack, Calcutta, Burdwan, Patna, Gaya and Hazaribagh have been from 10° to 13° in defect of the normal:—

Rainfall.—The rainfall during the week has been small, the heaviest falls having occurred in Orissa, where they have averaged 0·62 inch. In the other divisions the falls have generally averaged about a tenth of an inch and less. Hence the only division in which the fall has been above or even equal to the normal has been Orissa, where it has been about twice as much as usual.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Saturday, the 4th of March 1893:—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

IRRIGATION.

The 14th February 1893.

No. 35.—Notification.—The following rules, having reference to all the lines of navigation included in the following canal systems, viz., the Orissa Canals, the Midnapore Canal with branch to Narainghar, the Hijili Tidal Canal, the Orissa Coast Canal, and the Sone Canals, are proposed to be passed by the Lieutenant-Governor under the provisions of section XI of the "Canals Act, 1864," No. V (B.C.), in supersession of those now in force.

1. Every vessel, entering or passing along any of the above lines of navigation, shall be liable to measurement for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of toll the vessel should pay according to the schedule of rates authorized by Government to be charged on the line of navigation.

2. The tonnage of every vessel, except loose timber and raft, whether laden or empty, shall, for the purposes of the "Canals Act, 1864," and of these rules, be determined by the following measurements:—

(a) The product in feet of half the length of the vessel, measured along the water-line and round the contour of the vessel from centre of stem to centre of stern-post, multiplied by the interior greatest breadth of the vessel or by the greatest breadth of the cargo, should this overhang, or, as in the case of logs, be lashed alongside, multiplied by the greatest depth from the water-line to the bottom of the keel of the vessel, is to be taken as equal to the number of maunds upon which toll shall be levied.

(b) The measurement of the length is to be made in feet, rejecting fractions of a foot, and the measurement of the breadth and depth in feet and quarters of feet, rejecting portions of less than a quarter of a foot.

(c) In calculating the amount of toll to be levied, any portion of 100 maunds less than 10 maunds is to be omitted.

(d) In calculating the amount of toll to be levied on steamers, an allowance of one-third the total maundage as found under clauses a, b, and c is to be made for engine space.

3. Every vessel entering or passing along any of the above lines of navigation shall be furnished with a ticket on paying the prescribed toll. The ticket shall specify the station at which it has been issued, the name of the person in charge of the vessel, the date on which the voyage commenced, the point to which the vessel may proceed on the line of navigation the maundage of the vessel, the amount of toll charged, the number of days allowed for the voyage, and the date of such last day. The number of days so allowed without additional payment shall be calculated at the rate of one day for every eight miles, or portion of eight miles, to be traversed together with one day for every two hundred maunds of measurement. In the case of rafts, one day for every five miles shall be allowed.

4. Toll may be paid at the first station, either for the entire number of toll-stations on the line of navigation, or for any less number of stations.

5. The tickets thus given may be demanded for inspection by any duly authorised navigation officer, and must be kept on board and at hand for that purpose. They must be shown at each toll-station the vessel has to pass, as a passport that no further payment of toll is to be demanded. The tickets shall be delivered up at the last toll-station.

Navigation officers shall have authority to check-measure vessels whenever they consider it necessary, and if the toll due according to the check-measurement exceeds that originally paid, the difference shall be payable at the toll station of check-measurement, or at the next toll-station which the vessel may arrive at, if the check-measurement was made at some point other than a toll-station. The officer collecting the difference shall endorse the ticket, showing the measurements, and noting the amount recovered in excess of the toll originally paid.

6. Owners or hirers of vessels may compound, by the payment of a fixed sum, for the use of the whole or portion of any of the above lines of navigation for any period that may be agreed upon, not exceeding one year. Each vessel so compounded for shall be furnished with a ticket showing the amount of toll paid, the period for which the toll has been compounded for, and the limits of the line of navigation within which the vessel may pass. Such ticket shall be kept on board the vessel, and shall be produced when required under Rule 5, but shall be given up only on the date of the expiry of the period for which granted, and at the station from whence issued.

7. Duplicates of lost tickets, of which the numbers and dates of entry can be satisfactorily established, will be granted by the officers in charge of toll-stations on payment of a fee of one rupee.

8. Every vessel which does not complete its voyage within the number of days allowed by Rule 3 shall, for each day or part of a day in excess, be liable to an extra charge equal to the full amount of toll as determined by Rule 2. No charge for demurrage under this rule shall exceed rupees ten per month for any boat. The Superintending Engineer may at his discretion exempt any boats on any line of navigation, or any portion of a line of navigation, from the payment required by this rule.

9. The Superintending Engineer in charge of the Circle in which the line of navigation is situated, shall fix such places as he may consider necessary, at which vessels may remain while waiting for cargo or otherwise, without any charge. Any vessel which on the completion of a voyage or on entering the canal remains for a period of 24 hours or more at any place in the line of navigation other than one so fixed, shall be liable to an extra charge per diem as provided in rule 8, which shall be recoverable as toll.

10. The Superintending Engineer in charge of the Circle shall notify at what places on the line of navigation vessels may be ordinarily loaded or unloaded. Permission to load or unload at places other than those so notified, may be granted in special cases by the navigation officers. Should any vessel be loaded or unloaded at any place other than those notified by the Superintending Engineer, and without the permission specified above having been obtained, the person in charge of the vessel and the consignor or consignee of the goods shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to a fine not exceeding Rs. 10 for each offence.

11. Except with the written permission of a navigation officer, no goods or cargo may be deposited on any bank, berm, or land appertaining to the canal at places other than those notified by the Superintending Engineer of the Circle, as available for such a purpose. Any person depositing goods in contravention of the above rule, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to a fine not exceeding Rs. 50.

12. Navigation officers may order consignors, or consignees, or owners to remove their goods from the places notified as available for depositing cargo under rule 11. Goods not finally removed within a period of six days from the receipt of such order, shall be liable to a charge of four annas per 100 maunds, for each day or part of a day after the expiry of the six days, until finally removed.

13. No vessel of dimensions exceeding those which shall be notified for each line of navigation by the Superintending Engineer in charge of the Circle will be allowed to enter such line of navigation or to pass along it.

14. It will not be compulsory for the locks to be opened to single vessels of less than 500 maunds burden, except in the case of mail or despatch boats or passenger or cargo boats in tow of steam vessels; but the locks shall be opened for the passage of boats at least twice a day.

15. Mooring.—All vessels stopping at night must be moored head and stern, to the bank of the channel, or wherever specially ordered.

Only one line of vessels shall be allowed to pass along a canal or to make fast along and in a line with the canal banks or along and in a line with the banks of the river entrances to the locks, and no vessel shall be made fast, or be placed outside of vessels so secured, without the permission of a navigation officer. No vessel shall, however, be placed in such a position as to endanger the safety of other vessels, to obstruct their passage, or to impede the navigation.

16. Rule of the Road.—When under sail, vessels are to keep in the centre of the channel. When being tracked, vessels are, wherever practicable, to keep to starboard or right side of the channel. Vessels meeting in a canal, except when being tracked, must keep to their right when passing, and when one vessel overtakes another, the former must pass on the left. Vessels, one of which is sailing and the other steaming, meeting in a canal, the sailing vessel to keep to the leeward. A steamer passing any vessel is bound to go at a speed not greater than half speed.

17. Lights and Signals —All vessels, whether travelling or moored in a line of navigation, must between sunset and sunrise carry a white light, in a lantern on the fore part of the vessel where it can be distinctly seen from ahead. All steam-vessels in motion shall carry the lights prescribed by the Board of Trade Regulations. Barges or boats attached to a steam-vessel, whether in motion or moored, shall carry the white light prescribed above.

Where signals are used no vessel shall enter or attempt to enter the entrance channel of a lock when a red flag or red light is displayed at the end of the lock next her. Steam-vessels approaching a lock shall whistle when a mile distant, and shall continue to whistle at intervals until the signal intimating that the lock is open or closed is displayed, or, if no signals are used, until arrival.

18. Crews and attendants.—Every vessel when stationary shall be securely fastened, and shall at all times have some person in attendance on board. Every vessel in motion shall have a sufficient crew.

19. Fittings.—Vessels must have their masts, high awnings, and funnels fitted so that they can be let down with ease and speed, and no bamboos or poles shall be erected on or by vessels when at anchor.

20. Conduct of navigation.—Vessels are prohibited from making fast to any portion of the lockgates or gearing, and steamers are prohibited from making fast the tow lines of their boats until the latter are clear of the locks. Steamers are prohibited from lashing boats or barges alongside while proceeding within locks. Towing ropes of a greater length than 50 feet are not to be used in a canal. The throwing of cinders into any canal is prohibited; they are to be deposited on the banks.

21. In every case of wreck or obstruction of the channel by sunken vessels, the Supervisor of the line of navigation or of a part of it may call upon the person in charge of the vessel to remove the same without delay, and shall give every reasonable assistance towards so doing. But should the owner of the vessel or raft be not forthcoming, or should he not use reasonable expedition in removing the obstruction, or should he decline or fail to use proper assistance which may be offered to him by the Supervisor, this officer may, under the provisions of section XIV of the Act, undertake the removal of the obstruction himself at the cost of the owner of the boat, recovering the expense in the manner laid down in section IX of the "Canals Act, 1864."

22. If the Supervisor be unable to ascertain the name and place of business or of abode of the owner of the cargo of any vessel or boats seized under the "Canals Act," he shall notify the seizure in the most public manner available.

23. In the event of any damage or injury being occasioned to the canal works by wilfulness or negligence on the part of any person in charge of a vessel, the navigation officers may detain the vessel at any point within the canal for a period not exceeding 48 hours; provided that, within that period, the navigation officers shall lodge a complaint against such person in charge of the vessel before a Magistrate under section XVI of the "Canals Act."

24. For any contravention of rules 15, 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20, the person in charge of the vessel shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to a fine not exceeding Rs. 50.

25. All offences against the provisions of these rules shall be punishable as provided for in section XVIII of the "Canals Act, 1864," and all fines imposed may be recovered in the manner mentioned in section XVII of the same Act.

26. The term "navigation officers" as used in the foregoing rules shall include the persons alluded to in section VIII of the "Canals Act, 1864," and all Public Works Officers or Subordinates in charge of the canal not below the grade of sub-overseer.

27. The canals may be closed once a year for effecting the necessary repairs to them on one month's notice of the intention so to close them being given; but in the event of any sudden emergency, the canals may be closed at any time without prior notice, and no claim in such case by owners of vessels or others for compensation on account of detention shall be entertained.

IRRIGATION.

The 17th January 1893.

No. 11.—Notification.—It is hereby notified for general information that the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal proposes, under the provisions of section XI of Act V (B.C.) of 1864, to pass the following rules in modification of those now in force in the Calcutta Canals and Tolly's Nala from 1st April 1893:—

I.—Every vessel on entering the Calcutta Canals or Tolly's Nala shall be liable to measurement for the purpose of ascertaining the tolls payable; and in case of any reasonable doubt arising, the Canal Officers at any toll-station shall have authority to measure a vessel notwithstanding that it was measured on entering the canal.

II.—The tonnage of every vessel, whether laden or empty, shall, for the purposes of Act V of 1864 (B.L.C.) and of these rules, be determined by the following measurements:—

A.—The product in feet of quarter the length of the vessel from stem to stern, measured along the water line, multiplied by the interior greatest breadth of the vessel, multiplied by the depth from the waterline to the bottom of the vessel, is to be taken as equal to the number of maunds upon which toll shall be levied.

B.—The measurement of the length is to be made in feet, rejecting inches; the measurement of the breadth and depth is to be made in feet and quarters of a foot, rejecting portions of less than a quarter of a foot in net depth.

C.—In calculating the amount of toll to be levied, any portion of 100 maunds less than 10 maunds is to be omitted.

D.—Provided that in the case of vessels which entered the canals at Chitpore, Kidderpore, and Chetla empty for the purpose of loading therein, the depth shall be measured from the line of usual immersion as visible on the outside of the vessel to the bottom of the vessel, and not from the line of actual immersion at the time of measurement.

E.—In the case of steamers the tonnage, as determined by clauses A, B, C, and D, shall be reduced by one-third as an allowance for engine space.

III.—Every vessel entering the canals shall be furnished with a ticket on payment of the prescribed toll. The manjee's name, the date and hour of entry, the maundage of the vessel, the cargo it contains, and amount of toll charged, shall be entered in this ticket to identify the vessel on which toll has been paid.

IV.—Every person in charge of a boat, raft, or float, who shall pass in the canal without tendering the toll due, or who shall pass out of the canal without delivering to the toll-keeper the ticket of entrance and paying the rent that be due, shall be liable to be detained and punished according to section 10 of Act V of 1864.

V.—This ticket may be demanded and inspected by any Canal Officer, and must be kept on board and at hand for that purpose.

VI.—Every person in charge of boats entering the Calcutta Canals from the eastward must tender his toll ticket to the officer at Dhappa and Panspotta pass-stations to have it examined, stamped, and signed; and for those entering from the westward, must deliver up the toll tickets at the above pass-stations and receive in lieu a pass, which pass must be delivered to the toll-keeper at entrance of canals. Every such person must also pay all dues, or be liable to be detained and dealt with according to section 10 of Act V of 1864.

VII.—Every person in charge of a boat found in the canals (westward of the pass-station) with toll tickets unstamped or unsigned by a pass-station-keeper will be detained and treated as having no toll ticket under section 10 of Act V of 1864.

VIII.—The manjee or owner of every vessel not having a ticket on board and producible on demand shall be liable to the provisions of section 10 of the Canals Act.

IX.—Duplicates of lost tickets, of which the numbers and date of entry can be satisfactorily established, will be granted by the Collector on further payment of a sum equal to the original amount of toll.

X.—During the detention of any vessel under section 9 of these rules, or under any other provision of the Act, the duty of Canal Officers will be to see that the vessel or its cargo are not clandestinely removed; but they are in no way responsible for its safety, for which the manjee, owner, or agent must make their own arrangements.

XI.—The purchaser of a vessel sold under these rules, and under the Act, will have the option of taking it out of the canal on the day of purchase, or of taking out a fresh toll ticket at the rate fixed by the Schedule of Tolls in force for the time being.

XII.—No boat engaged by any officer of Government, whether civil or military, shall be exempt from toll, on the ground that the officer is travelling on public duty. The only exception of this rule shall be in the case of vessels specially engaged in the conveyance of troops on military duty.

XIII.—All vessels the bonâ fide property of Government, or employed on works connected with the maintenance or improvement of the canals, and duly certified as such, shall be exempted from these tolls and charges.

XIV.—Every vessel, raft, or float, which has paid toll, shall be allowed three days for passing through Circular Canals, and two days for Tolly's Nala between Gurreah and Kidderpore, and three days for Soorahs outside Dhappa Lock, the days of entering and of leaving being both included. In addition to these periods, they may, without further payment, remain in the canals for the further undermentioned periods, that is to say—

Circular Canal boats.—One day for every hundred maunds up to three hundred maunds of measurement, and one day for every two hundred maunds above three hundred maunds.

Tolly's Nala boats.—Two days for first hundred maunds, and one day for every hundred maunds above first hundred maunds.

Soorahs outside Dhappa Lock.—Same as for Tolly's Nala.

Floats in either channels.—Two days for any number of timbers not exceeding fifty, and one day for every additional fifty.

Rafts in either channels.—Two days for any number of bamboos not exceeding five hundred, and one day for every additional five hundred.

XV.—Every vessel, raft, or float remaining in any part of the aforesaid canals longer than the period allowed under the foregoing rules shall, for each day in excess of such period, be charged demurrage equal to one-half of the toll; and every vessel remaining more than thirty days in either of the canals shall, for each day in excess of thirty days, be charged demurrage equal to the full rate of toll, provided that in no case the demurrage charged shall exceed Rs. 5 per diem.

XVI.—Any vessel remaining in the canal more than two months without authority from the Supervisor shall be summarily removed.

XVII.—Boats requiring repairs shall be allowed to enter Dhappa Docks and remain there for a maximum period of thirty days, during which they will be charged at the rate of one-sixth part of the demurrage chargeable under Rule XV. Any boat remaining in the docks longer than thirty days without the special permission of the Supervisor shall pay demurrage at the full rate for such excess period.

XVIII.—No vessel shall be docked for repairs on the bank of the Calcutta Canal or of Tolly's Nala.

XIX.—Wherever mooring posts may have been put up by the Supervisor, vessels shall be made fast by the head and stern along the banks to such posts, and shall not be moored in any other manner.

XX.—The Supervisor may by notification prohibit the dropping of anchors or the putting up of bamboos or luggees in any part of the canals or on the banks; and in such parts no anchors shall be dropped, or luggees put up, under a penalty of fifty rupees, and of a fine not exceeding four rupees a day for continued disobedience of an order for removal issued by the Supervisor.

XXI.—Boats whilst loading or unloading in the canals will be allowed to use ladders; but the ladders must be gradually taken in as the water rises.

XXII.—As the water falls, the head and stern ropes must be loosened, and boats gradually pushed towards the centre of the canal: when the flood comes in, these two ropes must be gradually pulled in, and the boat kept as close to the bank as possible.

XXIII.—Only one boat shall be allowed to make fast along and in line with the canal banks, and no boat shall be made fast or be placed outside of boats so secured. No boat or raft shall be placed in such a position as to endanger the safety of other boats or obstruct the passage of other boats.

XXIV.—Boats passing through the canals shall keep in separate lines, empty boats keeping close to the bank and those that are laden in the centre.

XXV.—Hackeries, carts, bullocks, &c., using the canal roads shall, when stationary, be ranged on the side of the road farthest from the canal bank.

XXVI.—In portions of the canals where only one towing-path exists, vessels shall moor on the off side, and the towing-path side shall always be kept clear.

XXVII.—No persons shall place obstructions on the canal banks, roads, drains, or bridges (when such are on canal land), so as to impede a free passage along them or cause injury to them, or shall commit a nuisance, or deposit filth of any sort on the banks or in the canals.

XXVIII.—Any vessel, vehicle, or any other thing that may cause an obstruction to navigation, or to the banks, roads, drains, and bridges, or injury to the same, will be liable to be immediately removed and detained till all expenses incurred on account of removal, demands, and fines are paid. If a charge be not paid within ten days from date of detention, the said vessel, vehicle, or other thing will be sold to defray expenses.

XXIX.—"Whoever personally or by his or her servant infringes the provisions of any of the paragraphs 18, 19, and 20 to 27, both inclusive, of the foregoing rules, shall be liable, under section II, Act V of 1864 (B C.), to a fine not exceeding Rs. 50 for any one such infringement, or to a fine not exceeding Rs. 5 a day for a continued infringement."

Vide Notification No. 22, dated 16th January 1882, published in the Calcutta Gazette of 18th January 1882, page 60.

XXX.—At the instance of the Collector of Tolls, any Magistrate who imposes a fine under section 11 or 16 of the Act may award any portion of such fine to the informer.

XXXI.—Any person who wilfully or negligently allows a vessel to sink in the canals shall be liable to a fine not exceeding Rs. 50.

XXXII.—In every case of wreck caused by negligence or otherwise, the Supervisor and his subordinates will give every assistance in removing the same.

XXXIII.—A notice shall be affixed on such wreck when recovered, calling on those concerned to pay to the Collector all toll which may be due, or fine which may have been adjudged, as well as the expenses incurred in the recovery or removal of the wreck; and intimating that, if the sum be not paid within fifteen days of the date of notice, the boat and its furniture, or so much of it as may be necessary for the recovery of the dues, will be sold, the proceeds of the sale being dealt with as directed in section 9 of the Act.

XXXIV.—Every Canal Officer is authorized to remove any vessel, anchor, pole, or other thing which he may find in a position which is in contravention of these rules, and to deal with it in such a manner as may be necessary to give effect to the rules.

XXXV.—Whenever any laden vessel is seized by a Canal Officer, it shall be the duty of the Supervisor to give immediate notice of the same to the owner or his agent, requiring the removal of the cargo without delay, and informing him that he will be required to pay all expenses necessary for the proper custody and storage of the same.

XXXVI.—If the Supervisor be unable to ascertain the name and place of business or of abode of the owner of the cargo of any vessel or boat seized under the Canals Act, he shall notify the seizure by advertisement in his office, and in one or more of the Calcutta newspapers or advertisement papers. Such notice shall call upon the owner to cause the immediate removal of the cargo, and to pay any necessary expenses incurred in providing for its proper custody and storage.

XXXVII.—The Supervisor may incur whatever expense he may think necessary for the proper custody and storage of the cargo of any vessel seized under the Canals Act; and if the cargo be not removed within ten days from the date of seizure, he may sell the same at public auction to the highest bidder, after giving ten days' notice of the same by advertisement in one or more Calcutta newspapers or advertisement papers and affixed in his office.

XXXVIII.—The money realized at such a sale shall be applied first to defray any expenditure that may have been incurred by the Supervisor on account of the cargo sold, and the balance, if any, shall be held in deposit to be paid to the owner of the said cargo on his applying for the same.

XXXIX.—No steamers are allowed to enter the Circular Canal without permission of the Supervisor at Chitpore or Canal Inspector at Dhappa. Steamers are not allowed to tow flats or cargo boats in the Circular Canal, but may tow one flat at a time in the new Canal. Any one infringing this rule is liable to a fine of Rs. 50.

Abstract of the Proceedings of the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the provisions of the Act of Parliament, 24 and 25 Vic., Cap. 67.

The Council met at the Council Chamber on Saturday, the 25th February, 1893.

Present:

The HON'BLE SIR CHARLES ALFRED ELLIOTT, K.C.S.I., Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, presiding.

The HON'BLE J. T. WOODROFFE, Offg. Advocate-General.

The HON'BLE T. T. ALLEN.

The HON'BLE H. J. S. COTTON, C.S.I.

The HON'BLE H. H. RISLEY, C.I.E.

The HON'BLE J. LAMBERT, C.I.E.

The HON'BLE H. LEE.

THE HON'BLE DR. MAHENDRA LAL SIRCAR, C.I.E.

The HON'BLE A. H. WALLIS.

The HON'BLE GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER.

The HON'BLE P. PLAYFAIR.

The HON'BLE MAHARAJAH RAVANESHWAR PROSAD SING BAHADUR.

NEW MEMBER.

The Hon'ble Maharajah Ravaneshwar Prosad Sing Bahadur took his seat in Council.

LICENSED WAREHOUSE AND FIRE-BRIGADE BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. Cotton moved that the clauses of the Bill for the regulation of Warehouses and the maintenance of a Fire-brigade be considered for settlement in the form recommended by the Select Committee.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe moved that, in clause (9) of section 3, the word "coir" be omitted.

He said:—"It is right that I should explain how, notwithstanding that the Bill as settled by the Select Committee, of which I was a member, deals with 'coir' as an inflammable substance, this amendment comes to be moved by me. At the time when the Bill was before the Select Committee, a memorial was placed before us from the Secretary to the Calcutta Trades' Association, in which it was urged that 'coir' was not inflammable; that if thrown on a live fire, it would not blaze but only smoulder; that seventy-five per cent. of the rope made in Bengal is made of imported coir yarn, and that during the eighty years these roperies had been in existence, no fire had occurred in them.

"I believe the Select Committee were much impressed by this memorial, and they would not have included 'coir' amongst the highly inflammable substances, were it not for a fire having occurred in which a considerable amount of coir had been destroyed. Under these circumstances, 'coir' was put into the clauses of the Bill when it was passing through the Select Committee. Since then a further representation has been made on the subject, not only to myself, but also, I believe, to other members of the Council, with the result that we are satisfied that the article, though inflammable, is not of that extremely inflammable character which would justify its retention in this clause. It can, however, hereafter be dealt with under section 26, clause (a), of the Bill, which provides that the Commissioners may, for the purpose of further providing the cost of the fire-brigade, levy a rate not exceeding two and-a-half per cent. on buildings employed for the storage of any other inflammable substance or thing not specifically mentioned in clause (9) of section 3. With these explanations and observations, I move this amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. Lambert said:—"As far as I am aware, there has been only one fire in a godown in which coir and cocoanut fibre is stored, and that occurred on the 11th of January last. It was not a very important fire; and there are not many store-houses which would contribute to this tax, if coir were included amongst the inflammable articles. On these grounds, I support the amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. Wallis said:—"Since this question was considered by the Select Committee, it has been represented to me by one or two firms interested in the coir industry that 'coir' should not be included amongst goods of a highly inflammable nature, as coir yarn of itself will not burn. I am glad to hear the Hon'ble Mr. Lambert say that he has no knowledge of any other case of fire in a coir godown. I may mention that the fire which recently took place in Ezra Street was in a very small godown about 50 feet long by 10 feet by 8 feet in measurement, which contained 3,500 bundles of coir of 30lb each, and 50 bales of coir fibre. Out of this, 2,100 bundles coir yarn and the 50 bales of coir fibre were untouched by fire; the remaining 1,400 bundles were damaged, but half the yarn was picked out the next day and sold: not a single bundle was wholly burnt, and the damage was chiefly confined to four inches of the ends of the bundles. The fire was caused by the mats in which the fibre was packed catching fire, and when these were burnt, the fire was deprived of fuel, and did not spread. The godown adjoining which was only separated by a wooden door was burnt through, and yet the coir yarn in that godown, though resting against the door, did not communicate the fire to the contents. The fire broke out at 7 P.M., and for two hours after the brigade arrived there was no water available, yet the fire was put out about midnight. This shows that a coir godown is not so dangerous as to justify it being classed under the definition of 'warehouse.'"

The Hon'ble MR. PLAYFAIR said:—"I support the amendment proposed by the learned Advocate-General. Coir, I understand, is not inflammable, neither is ship-chandlery as distinguished from the articles separately mentioned under section 3, nor is linseed oil; and when the vendors of these articles realize, as their more alert neighbours have done, that their godowns and yards are about to be specially taxed for the support of the fire-brigade, it is fully to be expected that they, too, will raise a protest. I would suggest, with your Honour's approval, that 'ship-chandlery' and 'linseed oil' be also omitted from clause (9) of section 3 of the Bill. And if your Honour will permit this amendment to be put to the Council without formal notice, I beg leave to submit it."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE'S motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. PLAYFAIR'S motions that, in clause (5) of section 3, the words "nor linseed oil" be inserted after the figures "1886," and that in clause (9) of the same section, the word "ship-chandlery" be omitted, were also put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER said:—"As the amendments Nos. 2 to 6 in the List of Business standing against my name relate to the same matter, I ask permission to refer to them together as one amendment. The matters involved in these amendments relate to the power of the Commissioners to grant or refuse licenses. The Select Committee have introduced an alteration in section 6 of the original Bill, the effect of which is to withdraw the power of granting or refusing licenses from the Commissioners and to put that power in the hands of the Chairman. The system of granting licenses to warehouses was first introduced by Act IV of 1866, which provided that licenses should be obtained from the Justices. Then Act II of 1872 repealed so much of Act IV of 1866 as related to the granting and refusing of licenses to jute warehouses, and that Act provided that it should be within the discretion of the Justices at a special meeting to grant or refuse licenses; and Act V of 1879 conferred those powers on the Commissioners at a special meeting. Act IV of 1883, which repealed Act V of 1879, also retained these powers in the Commissioners at a special meeting.

"The Committee which was appointed in 1891 under the presidency of Sir Henry Harrison recommended, amongst other things, that the power of granting licenses should remain with the Municipality, and the Bill, which was introduced into this Council by the late Sir Henry Harrison, than whom I may say, without fear of contradiction, few persons can claim greater experience in these matters, left the power of the Commissioners in this behalf untouched; but the Select Committee have thought fit to withdraw this power from the Commissioners. They, however, did not assign any reason in their Report why this power has been withdrawn from the Commissioners. They merely say that this power has been reserved to the Chairman, but why it has been taken from the Commissioners and given to the Chairman does not appear. Nor do I find anything in the statement made by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill when presenting the Report of the Select Committee showing why it is that the Select Committee thought fit to take away this power from the Commissioners.

"It seems to me, Sir, that this proposal of the Select Committee is opposed to the spirit of Local Self-Government, which, I take it, it is the intention of the Government of this Province to encourage, develop and extend as far as practicable. With reference to this provision of the amended Bill, I find that the Commissioners have sent in a report in support of my amendment, in which they say:—

'Section 8 of the Bill modifying section 6 of the present Fire-Brigade Act (Act IV of 1883, B.C.)—The Commissioners must beg leave to protest against this section, which deprives them of the power which they now possess to grant licenses to jute warehouses, and vests this power in the Chairman or in a Committee appointed with the consent of the Chairman. This provision is in conflict with the principle which runs through the whole of the present Municipal Act, by which the Commissioners in meeting direct and control the proceedings of the Chairman in all matters. Nor, indeed, has any case been made out for this change in the law. For in the only instance where there has been some hesitation on the part of the Commissioners to grant a license to a jute warehouse, viz., in respect of premises No. 15, Kassi Mitter's Ghat Street, belonging to Messrs. Finlay, Muir & Co., such license was eventually granted on the conditions suggested by the Commissioners being accepted by Messrs. Finlay, Muir & Co. And even if it were admitted that the Commissioners made a mistake in this case, they submit that one isolated instance like this is not sufficient ground to justify the withdrawal from them of this power, which they claim that they have on the whole satisfactorily exercised.'

"I find that the Hon'ble Mr. Lee, the Chairman of the Corporation, was a member of the Select Committee of the Council on this Bill; but whether in agreeing with the Committee he referred the matter to the Commissioners and obtained their assent to this provision or not, does not appear. We find, however, that the Commissioners themselves protest against this alteration, and ask that the power of granting licenses be restored to them. As no reason has been assigned why this power has been taken away from the Commissioners, I submit that it ought not to be taken away; and if this view is accepted by the Council, section 9 of the Bill will be unnecessary. I therefore move that in section 5, the words 'Chairman of the' be omitted, the effect of which will be to restore the power which the Commissioners have exercised for over twenty-six years."

The Hon'ble MR. PLAYFAIR said:—"The views of the mercantile community, including the Hydraulic Press Association, upon the amendment proposed by the hon'ble member, may be found in the letter addressed by the Chamber of Commerce, dated the 22nd of September last, to the Government of Bengal, and are couched in these words which I ask permission to read:—

'In dealing with the general question of the grant of a license, the Committee of the Chamber of Commerce would point out that, under the existing Act, the machinery employed is as cumbrous and unbusiness-like as it is possible to conceive. By section 6 of Act IV (B.C.) of 1883, the granting of a license rests within the discretion of the Commissioners at a special meeting. It is impossible that such a system should work smoothly or well. The Committee would therefore suggest that, however the questions dealt with in this letter may be settled, there should be a provision of law confining the granting, refusing, cancelling or re-granting of licenses, if licenses are to be resorted to, to a small working committee, composed of, say, the Chairman of a municipality and three or four Commissioners holding office for a given time.'

"I believe I am correct in saying that, out of respect to these views, the Select Committee drafted sections 6, 7, 8 and 9 of the Bill now before Council, conferring power upon the Chairman of the Commissioners to grant licenses. If the procedure in the granting of licenses has been 'unbusiness-like' and 'cumbrous' in the past, when only a limited number of licenses have been required in connection with jute and cotton warehouses, the inconvenience to the public under the same system is likely to be much enhanced by the additional number of licenses made compulsory on trades specified in clause (g) of section 3 of the Bill. It has become all the more necessary, therefore, that the routine observed in the consideration and granting of licenses should be altered. It is a general experience that large Committees impede and protract the despatch of business; and, in public estimation, the Commissioners in general meeting have not escaped from this fault. I hold that a license should be obtainable by any person whose premises are constructed in conformity with the requirements of the Act and are situated in a locality recognized as suitable for the trade. Such license should be forthcoming promptly after inspection, and the inspection should be made on application. To protect traders from inconvenience and possible loss, it is necessary that it should be so. It has been a great hardship to jute merchants to have to wait weeks, and in some instances many months, before a license is granted, and while the Municipal Commissioners in general meeting assembled hold an academic discussion over the application. I cannot, therefore, support the amendment proposed by the hon'ble member."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE said:—"I feel bound to oppose this motion. By grouping all these motions together, the hon'ble member has not, I venture to think, a little obscured the real question at issue. As regards the proposed amendment to section 5, for instance, it is obviously unnecessary for an applicant for a license to do more than to apply in writing to the Chairman of the Commissioners. The case is the same as regards the proposed amendment of section 6. The real question is in respect of sections 7 and 8, and the suggested omission of section 9, which provides that the Commissioners can have, and in all probability will almost invariably have, in the form of a Special Committee therein provided for, the power to exercise the functions of the Chairman under this Act with his consent. It appears to me that it is not only on the ground of the delays which have taken place in the granting of licenses, as explained to us in Select Committee, but also that there has been not unfrequently something which is described on the other side of the Atlantic as 'lobbying'—various persons putting pressure on the Commissioners to vote for the grant or refusal of licenses—that it is eminently desirable that the power of granting or refusing licenses should be vested in the Chairman, and, with his consent, in a Special Committee of the Commissioners. The Select Committee in framing this section of the Bill had in view the selection of Commissioners who, from their position, knowledge and experience, would be able to exercise proper and due control in the matter of granting or refusing licenses.

"I cannot, however, sit down without referring to the observation of the hon'ble mover of these amendments that he did not know whether Mr. Lee, who was the Chairman of the Corporation and a member of the Select Committee, had the consent of the Commissioners to vote in the manner in which he did. It seems to me that there is involved in that observation a suggestion which is not tolerable. I venture to assert that hon'ble members of this Council, whether in Council or in Select Committee, do not stand in the position of delegates, and are not and cannot for one moment be supposed to be bound by any orders or any directions emanating from any source whatever."

The Hon'ble MR. COTTON said:—"I think it possible to suggest an arrangement which may meet the suggestion of the hon'ble mover of these amendments, and also, perhaps, be accepted by the gentlemen opposite who have opposed it. I do think there is considerable force in the contention of the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder that the innovation introduced in the Bill is an encroahment on the powers which have been exercised for a great many years by the Municipal Commissioners of Calcutta; and I would be exceedingly reluctant to identify myself with any such encroachment. But this is due, I think, mainly to the fact that, as the law now stands, licenses can only be granted by the Municipal Commissioners at a special meeting convened for the purpose. This means, in effect, that the whole of the Commissioners in a body deliberate on the question, and there can be no doubt whatever that, when an executive matter of this kind is entrusted to a representative body of men like the Commissioners, it is apt to be badly handled; it is apt to be greatly delayed; and, as the learned Advocate-General has pointed out, there is great risk of what he has described as 'lobbying' or backstairs influence. I certainly think that it is very undesirable that questions of this nature should be taken up at a special meeting of the Commissioners. At the same time, I do not think sufficient cause has been made out for withdrawing the power of granting these licenses from the Commissioners altogether; and I conceive that this question of granting or refusing licenses to jute warehouses is eminently a power which should be dealt with by a Select Committee of the Commissioners appointed by the Commissioners for the purpose.

"This suggestion will, I believe, meet with the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder's acceptance, and I hope that hon'ble members opposite will not object to it. It will come to this that, instead of the power resting in the Chairman and the Chairman approving of the appointment of a Select Committee for the purpose, the power will rest in the Commissioners and the Commissioners will appoint a Committee. In this way the rights of the Municipal Commissioners will not be in any way interfered with, while the matter may expect to receive as prompt and fair treatment as it would do under the present provisions of the Bill. I may add, with regard to the question of despatch in dealing with those applications, that it is dealt with by a separate section of the Bill (section 7), to which I see no objection has been taken; and if that section becomes law, I do not think there can be any reasonable grounds for apprehending unnecessary delay in the disposal of applications for the licensing of warehouses.

"If this suggestion of mine meets with the approval of the Council, the necessary verbal alterations needed in the Bill will be drafted without difficulty by the Secretary. I do not wish to commit myself to them while addressing the Council."

The Hon'ble MR. WALLIS said:—"I think the hon'ble mover of the amendment has rather overrated the danger to municipal authority and privilege from the adoption of the recommendations of the Select Committee. The object, as I understood it in Select Committee, was to appoint a Special Committee to consider these questions of granting licenses where applications are submitted; but I cannot agree with the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill that a Special Committee should be appointed on each occasion. [The Hon'ble Mr. Cotton said:—'My idea was that a Standing Committee should be appointed, not a Special Committee in each case.'] Then I fail to see the difference between the proposal made by the Hon'ble Mr. Cotton and the provision contained in the Bill. As I take it, the effect of the amendment proposed by the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder would be that the existing Act shall remain in its present form. It has been shown by the Hon'ble Mr. Playfair that the working of this portion of the Act has proved unsatisfactory; that it has caused endless delays, and consequent inconvenience and loss to those applying for licenses. The object, and I think the effect, of section 9 of the Bill will be the appointment, with the sanction of the Chairman of the Commissioners, of a Special Committee which would always consider all applications for jute licenses, or the licensing for places coming under the definition of warehouses; and I think such a Committee would be better able to do the work than a Committee which may be appointed from time to time. I see that the Committee of 1891 recommended that this power should be left in the hands of the several municipalities concerned; and the proposal in the Bill provides that the granting or refusal of licenses will be in the hands of a certain number of the Commissioners specially appointed by their colleagues on that behalf."

The Hon'ble MR. LEE said:—"At the first meeting of this Council this Session, Your Honour observed, in explaining why the Fire-brigade Bill should be proceeded with while other measures should be for the present dropped, that—

'The Fire-brigade Bill is one of purely local interest, and the interests concerned in it are interests which, I understand, will be represented in much the same way in the revised Council as they are now. I believe, for instance, that it is intended that the Calcutta Municipality shall be represented in the enlarged Council; and for that reason I obtained sanction to the appointment to the Council of the Chairman of the Calcutta Corporation to represent the Municipality while the present Bill is under discussion, in order that the Municipality may not be worse of, but may be as fully represented now as hereafter.'

"Sir, an executive officer who, during the eighteen years that he has had the honour of serving Her Majesty, has steadily set his face against the manufacture of speeches, as calculated rather to hinder than to advance work, must be but an inefficient spokesman of the Municipal Commissioners. But the duty has been thrown upon me, and I must endeavour to meet it.

"The principles that have hitherto guided the Legislature in respect of the imposition of taxes and the granting of licenses under the Jute Warehouses and Fire-brigade acts are now being attacked in more ways than one. The sums concerned are comparatively small; but the principles involved are important. The first principle that has been attacked has been that the sanitary funds of the Municipal Commissioners should not be whittled away. That attack was repelled last Saturday. It will have to be met again to-day. The next principle that is attacked is, that the Municipal Commissioners of Calcutta should continue to have the control of the location of the objectionable trades in the city—objectionable from whatever cause. At present the Municipal Commissioners have the power, and exercise it, of locating hide godowns, mills for the pressing of oil, for the crushing of bones, offensive and dangerous trades of all kinds; and it is suggested that they should not have that power as regards the location of jute warehouses. There is only this difference between their powers in respect of hide godowns and the like and jute warehouses that a special safeguard is added to the public as regards jute warehouses. That, I understand, was the cause of the introduction of the words 'at a Special Meeting' in the last law; that only at a special meeting can the Commissioners give sanction to the licensing of new jute warehouses. In respect of all other objectionable and offensive trades and dangerous trades, applications for licenses come to the Secretary to the Corporation. The responsible officers of the Corporation, the Health Officer and the Engineer, report, and the Chairman, as a rule, grants or refuses the licenses without any further ado. In doubtful cases, he refers the papers to the General Committee; and the proceedings of the General Committee are then confirmed or rejected in general meeting. Now, Sir, it is proposed to make jute warehouses an exception to this general rule; and not only to take away this special safeguard, that is supposed to be added to the public by means of which the fact becomes publicly known when it is proposed to open a jute warehouse in a particular spot, so that the owners of adjacent properties might protest if need be, but it is proposed to take away altogether the controlling voice of the Commissioners as a body in respect of licenses for jute warehouses.

"The general principle, as I have shown, is, that the Chairman acts in executive matters on his own responsibility, but subject to the control, in special cases, of the Commissioners. In matters of this kind, really small matters but matters of sentiment, no wise Council, and I am sure not this Council, will interfere, unless a strong case is made out to necessitate the interference. What case has been made out? I have taken the trouble to go through the instances in which the Chairman and the Commissioners have for a time differed as to whether licenses should be granted or should not be granted to jute warehouses. I find that since the 3rd of March, 1887, there have been but four such cases; and in the end, in each of those cases, a satisfactory solution has been come to and the Chairman and the Commissioners have come in accord, the Chairman's view always prevailing. I believe that the real cause for this suggested change has been the delay regarding one particular license. In that case, a license has been granted. It was a doubtful case. I myself thought that the license should have been granted from the first; Sir Henry Harrison thought the same; the voting was very close; but it was a doubtful case; there was no cart space, and frequently it has been required that there should be cart space. It was not the licensing of a new warehouse, but simply the licensing for a particular purpose, of a shed, which had already been used for the purposes of a warehouse. It was simply that a license should be granted for sorting jute in a shed where warehouse work was being conducted. So that really it was not an extremely important matter, though much has been made of it. In regard to the Report from the Municipal Commissioners, which has already been referred to twice, I must inform the learned Advocate-General that I did not sign that Report. I did not sit as a member of the Committee when it framed the report, and I have only made two marginal notes in the report. Unfortunately, the letter with which I forwarded this Report, in my capacity of Chairman, to the Secretary of the Legislative Department, has not been put before the Council, because of an accident. The letter went to the wrong Secretary; but I explained in that letter that I did not form a member of that Special Committee. However, the remarks of that Committee, on this particular point at all events, have my entire concurrence, where they say :—

'Even if it were admitted that the Commissioners made a mistake in this case, they submit that one isolated instance like this is not sufficient ground to justify the withdrawal from them of this power, which they claim they have on the whole satisfactorily exercised.'

"Since the year 1887, there have been refused altogether 13 applications for licenses; and four were pending when the statement, I hold in my hand, was prepared. In one case the reasons given for refusing a license were that the site was unsuitable, and no passage was left convenient for the fire-brigade. That was the one case which was refused in 1887. Five cases were refused in 1888-89; two cases because no plans were supplied; two for want of cart space, and one, because the site was both unsuitable and the cart space was insufficient. In 1889-90 one application was refused for want of cart space; in 1890-91, two were refused, one because no plan was submitted, and one for want of cart space; and last year four were refused, one for want of cart space, and three because no plans were submitted. On the other hand, the number of applications sanctioned was 24.

"Without pressing on the Council in this case the wisdom of Paschal's aphorism that 'much of the mischief of this world would be avoided if men would be but content to sit quiet in their parlours,' I trust that the Council will see that it would be discreet to let well alone. I have had to listen to a certain amount of raillery aimed at the Commissioners, of whom I am Chairman. The consideration whether it is possible or impossible to inflict physical hurt on a Corporation; whether it is possible or impossible that in the hereafter the seventy-five Commissioners can be found congregated around the throne of 'imperial Satan,' is no argument. As Chairman, I recognise the compliment offered in this proposal, but I would beg respectfully to decline it, when it involves a slur on the co-adjutors with whom I have worked daily, almost hourly, in harmony for the last three years. I support the amendment of the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder if, as I understand, he accepts the suggestion of the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill."

The Hon'ble MR. ALLEN said:—"I am at a considerable disadvantage in dealing with the amendment before us, having very partially and indistinctly heard what has fallen from the hon'ble members who last addressed the Council, the Hon'ble Mr. Lee and the Hon'ble Mr. Cotton; and therefore I must ask to be excused if, in any way, I blunder over their explanations of the subject under discussion. The case seems to me a very simple one. The Bill, having been introduced into this Council, was referred to a chosen number of its members, in order that they might examine it closely and make their report to this Council. It is to be presumed that, in selecting the members of that Committee, the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill selected those whom he thought most likely to be conversant with the matters which would come before them, and most competent to offer an opinion which this Council would be wise to accept. Well, Sir, this Bill was made over to those members, and after repeated meetings, discussions and consideration of the papers placed before them, and collecting all the information that could be obtained, they have submitted a Report to this Council, and they have recommended that the granting of licenses should rest with the Chairman of the Commissioners, subject to that modification which section 9 provides. The hon'ble member opposite has, however, brought forward an amendment which, as far as I can understand his reasons, has no other foundation than the fact that, in former times, the grant of licenses was not in the Chairman but in the Commissioners. That fact, no doubt, had considerable influence with the Select Committee, and was given full weight to before they recommended any departure from the previous practice; and I think it would be singularly unwise for this Council to revert to that old discredited practice, simply because it was the old practice. I do not very well understand what the suggestion of the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill has been. Apparently, he is going half-way to meet the amendment, and I do not see how, if that is his intention, he can at this stage propose any change. The amendment before the Council is either to be accepted or to be negatived. When a decision has been passed upon that amendment, it will then be open to the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill to consider what modification he thinks proper. But, as far as I understand his amendment, it is, I believe, nothing more than what is already provided for in section 9. He proposes that the Commissioners shall elect a few of their number as a Special Committee to deal with the matter. That is exactly what is laid down in section 9. The section runs thus:—

'With the consent of the Chairman of the Commissioners, any Special Committee of the Commissioners, not less than three or more than five in number, whom the Commissioners in meeting shall in that behalf appoint, may exercise the powers and discretion under this Act vested in the Chairman of the Commissioners.'

"That is what I understand the Hon'ble Mr. Cotton proposes, with this exception that possibly he does not require the consent of the Chairman as a preliminary. In no way is that suggestion before the Council. The question is, whether we should accept or reject the amendment of the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder.

"Frequent reference has been made to the late Sir Henry Harrison; his sayings and opinions have been dragged into this discussion, and he has been appealed to as if he were a sort of veiled prophet whose opinions are to be accepted, simply because they were his. When the Municipal Consolidation Bill was passing through this Council, I had the opportunity of sitting day after day at that table with Sir Henry Harrison; when in Select Committee we were discussing the clauses one by one, it was his repeated remark, and a point he strongly insisted upon, that such cases as these, the making of appointments, the granting of license, executive matters of that kind, were exactly the business which Municipal Commissioners are totally unfit to be entrusted with. For whenever the case of individuals came before them, they were solicited out of doors by the parties interested.

"The learned Advocate-General has also alluded to the practice of 'lobbying,' as a possible danger. I certainly consider that the people of this country have nothing to learn from those across the Atlantic, and that the art of outdoor nobbling members is as well understood here as it ever will be in America. It is urged that, if this function be left with the Municipal Commissioners of Calcutta, the trade of Calcutta will be exposed to certain inconveniences. A priori it would seem to anybody that an executive matter like this is not a proper thing to be discussed by some 70 or 80 men, and carried 'yea' or 'nay' simply by a majority; yet I have no doubt that those who are interested in procuring licenses, if they go about it in the right way, would never fail to obtain a majority or be refused a license. But I cannot understand how any person, who really values the principle of Local Self-Government, can desire that such temptations to divert the Commissioners from a straightforward mode of discharging public functions should be put before them. It is not wise to trust little children in sweet shops; and certainly those who value Local Self-Government should desire to keep the Commissioners to their proper functions of advising, discussing general measures, passing general resolutions and controlling their Chairman; but not of dealing in detail with matters of this nature, where private interests are so much involved.

"The hon'ble member who last sat down has spoken as if he had been singled out, and a personal compliment was paid to him by this provision in the Bill. Has the hon'ble member a life-estate in the Chairmanship of the Calcutta Corporation? But I was not aware, Sir, that when a clause of this kind is put into a law, declaring that certain duties shall be discharged by a Chairman or other public officer, that any compliment whatever is meant to the individual who for the moment happens to be Chairman or fills the office designated. I protest against such an idea. In passing Bills here, we are supposed to make provision for something more than one or two years ahead. I am aware that the Acts of this Council have a very limited life, and there is hardly one of them which has lasted above five years without amendment. But we must not assume that this will be the fate of this Bill; and even if it exists for only five years, what probability is there of the hon'ble member opposite being the Chairman of the Municipality for that period?

"But putting all these considerations aside, I will give one reason why, in my opinion, the Chairman of the Commissioners is the proper person to be trusted with this function, and not the Commissioners. When a function of this nature is thrown upon a large body of some 70 or 80 persons, it is impossible to attach the responsibility, when that function is dishonorably, or arbitrarily, or vexatiously, performed. But when we throw the duty upon the Chairman of the Commissioners, if he acts arbitrarily, the responsibility can easily be fixed; and the fact that he is acting under this sense of responsibility is no small guarantee and security for the public. I quite believe that the Chairman of the Calcutta Corporation may be as weak, as arbitrary, and as oppressive in the discharge of his functions as the Commissioners themselves; but if he is, it is perfectly plain to see where the fault lies, and the indignation aroused by such behaviour will probably lead to a change.

"For this reason, therefore, that by throwing the responsibility upon the Chairman, we know to whom to attribute any misconduct: I say that this alone is a good ground why the Report, which has been made to this Council by the Select Committee, should be accepted and the Bill should not be altered in the sense of this amendment."

The Hon'ble MR. LAMBERT said:—"I must take leave to doubt whether the amendment put forward by the hon'ble mover represents the unanimous views of the Commissioners. The Council will notice that the question has never been brought before the members of the Corporation in meeting, nor has the Report of the Special Committee been presented to the general body of Commissioners. I believe that many Commissioners agree with me in thinking that the section of the Bill, as it now stands, is a wise one. In the first place it is of great importance that applications for licenses to store jute should be dealt with promptly, but there were many instances in which this had not been the case. It was this consideration which led to the framing of the clause which it was sought to amend. Then, again, it is desirable that licenses should be granted with due regard to the convenience of the general public, and this was what the framers of the Act had in view when cart space was required. Over and over again have applications been referred to me for my opinion by the Chairman of the Corporation, and over and over again have I urged that, in the interests of the general community, licenses should not be granted when there is no cart space and when obstruction to the ordinary traffic in the streets would ensue. These remonstrances on my part have almost invariably been disregarded.

"The jute industry is a very important interest, but in dealing with applications to store jute, other considerations come in, and persons not engaged in that trades strongly object to be shut out of the use of the streets which lead to their shops and houses for hours together by a string of jute carts. The case of Messrs. Finlay, Muir and Company has been referred to. In this case, application to assort jute in a warehouse in the native part of the town was brought forward on the 18th of April, 1890; and, strange as it might seem, it was nevertheless absolutely the case, that the license was not granted until the 23rd of February, 1893, exactly two days ago. This application was frequently before the Commissioners, and was every now and then referred backwards and forwards from the General Committee to the Special Committee, and from one Sub-Committee to another, without any result, until two days before the Council met. In July, 1890, Sir Henry Harrison, when he was the Chairman, used all his eloquence at a general meeting of the Commissioners to implore the Commissioners, in the general interests of the town, to lay aside all private feelings when dealing with matters of this kind; but a very large and influential section of the Corporation voted on that application, and it was refused It was notorious that, when such applications came up, there was much canvassing and much private influence was brought to bear; and I have reason to know that a considerable number of the Commissioners are now willing to rid themselves of all responsibility in this matter, because they find that the best interests of the town will be secured by leaving the matter in the hands of their Chairman and possibly a Special Committee."

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER said in reply:—"As I understand the suggestion made by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill to be, that while the power, which I ask to be restored to the Commissioners, should not be restored to them but to a Special Committee to be appointed by them for the purpose. If that is the suggestion of the hon'ble member, then I have no hesitation in accepting that suggestion."

The Hon'ble MR. ALLEN rose to order:—"The hon'ble member, who has just spoken, has an amendment on the agenda paper which he should either leave or ask leave to withdraw."

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"I think we are in danger of getting somewhat out of order in the course of this discussion; but considering how far things have gone, I think it will be best in the hon'ble mover of the amendment to state the form of the amendment which he wishes to be put to the Council, and on his making his statement, I shall be prepared to decide whether that amendment should be put to the Council on the present occasion; whether the original amendment should be adhered to, or whether the discussion should be deferred to the next meeting of the Council."

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER said:—"My present proposal is this, that in section 5, after the words 'application in writing,' the words 'to a Special Committee of the Commissioners to be appointed by them' be substituted for the words 'Chairman of the Commissioners.'"

The Hon'ble MR. COTTON said:—"I should like to make a brief suggestion to the Council. If we now involve ourselves in matters of detailed drafting, we shall get into difficulties. It would be a simpler plan to decide on the principle whether the Commissioners should be directed under the Act to appoint a Special Committee to grant or to refuse licenses, or whether the power should be left as drafted in the Bill to the Chairman. The exact drafting can be determined after due deliberation."

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"I wish to make one remark on a collateral subject, before proceeding to the particular amendment before the Council. I wish to refer to what I venture to call the weighty and statesmanlike remarks of the Advocate-General on the subject of delegation. We are now on the eve of an important reconstruction of this Council, the details of which are at present unknown. But we are aware that there will be a considerable extension and expansion of the principle of representation, and I think it very important that it should be understood to what extent and of what character the representation ought to be. I do not venture to forecast what orders we may receive from the Secretary of State or from the Government of India on this subject. But I wish most emphatically to record my agreement with what has fallen from the Advocate-General that, however much a member of this Council may be a representative of any Corporation, or of any interest, or of any body or association existing in these provinces, he will, on his appointment as a member of this Council, act according to his lights and according to his conscience. His position ought not to be that of a delegate, and he ought not to be called upon to record his vote in accordance with the views of his constituents whom he represents, unless he heartily and personally agrees with them. His position will then be that, if he disagrees with those who sent him, he will have the power either of resigning or of persisting in retaining his appointment in opposition to those whom he represents, in the belief that they will, in the course of time, come to change their minds; and their only control over him will be, unless they change their minds, that they will not re-elect him on the next occasion. I trust we shall never be in a position in this Council in which any member can be called upon to confess, or in which any insinuation can be made that he did or did not consult his constituency, or that he is or is not acting in accordance with the votes passed in the preliminary discussions in this Council.

"Now, turning to the immediate subject before us, I think what has fallen from the Legal Remembrancer is a matter well worthy of our consideration. A Council of this kind is in some danger of falling into habits of an irresponsible debating society. It is extremely important that honorary members should realize the onerous and public position in which they are placed, and that they should come to this Council thoroughly prepared to state the views they have formed, and to put them in a form in which they can be submitted for the opinion of their colleagues. The President has, under the Rules, power to receive amendments of which notice has not been previously given, and that power I have thought it right to exercise to-day in a matter which involved a very small point of detail; and even then, I felt some doubt whether it was right to have recourse to it. But I am quite sure that it is not right that any important amendment or change of any kind should be placed before the Council which may be the subject of debate and discussion and voting in this Council without having a full and sufficient opportunity of considering it beforehand. And I feel sure that what my hon'ble friend was driving at, but did not give full expression to in his speech, is worthy of our consideration; and that is the responsibility of the position occupied by a member of the Select Committee of this Council. The Select Committee sat to discuss the Bill which was drafted for submission to the Council, and to alter and amend it at their pleasure and with all the information before them. They have power to record their views in any form they liked, and any member of the minority may dissent separately or collectively from the opinion of the majority. But I do hold that, we shall find it very difficult to carry on the business of this Council if any members of the Select Committee feel themselves individually or in a body at liberty to depart from the views to which they put their signatures, unless some important new facts are brought to their notice of which they were not aware before, and which would justify them in altering their opinion, just as much as a judge may alter in review his decisions upon facts not brought to his notice at the time of trial.

"Upon this occasion, we have a definite proposal put before us by the Hon'ble Gonesh Chunder Chunder, which involves an important principle, and it is quite possible for us to vote upon it; but a subsequent amendment which was brought forward by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, and which the hon'ble mover of the first amendment is willing to accept, is one which has not been formulated and which it will be difficult to formulate, and which it will be impossible for the Council to discuss or vote upon on the present occasion. I think, therefore, that the best plan to pursue is to put the amendments of the hon'ble member separately and not collectively; it will follow, if it is determined to retain the word 'Chairman' in the manner in which the Select Committee places it in the Bill, that the principle, which is under discussion, will have been settled, and there will remain no further opportunity for proposing that a Select Committee should be appointed on behalf of the Commissioners to exercise their powers. But if the Council decides to cut out the word 'Chairman,' not perhaps in section 5, where it naturally occurs independently of the principle before us, but in sections 6, 7 and 8, then it will be open to us to alter section 9, so as to provide that the power which the preceding sections have given to the Commissioners to grant or refuse licenses shall be exercised by a Special Committee to be appointed by the Commissioners either in each case or as a standing body for that purpose. But that amendment it will be impossible to put to the vote until it has been formally and properly drawn out."

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER'S Motion that in section 5, the words "Chairman of the" be omitted, was put and negatived.

The Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder's Motions that—

(1) in section 6, the words "Chairman of the" and "of the Chairman" be omitted; also that in line 20 of the same section, the words "at a special meeting" be inserted after the word "Commissioners," and that in line 21, the words "from the Commissioners" be omitted:

(2) in line 4 of section 7, the words "Chairman of the" be omitted, and that the words "by an order in writing under the hand of the Chairman of the Commissioners setting forth the grounds for such refusal" be also omitted:

(3) in section 8, the words "Chairman of the" be omitted:

being put, the Council divided:—

Ayes 4.	Noes 7.
The Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder.	The Hon'ble Maharajah Ravaneshwar Prosad Sing Bahadur.
The Hon'ble Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar.	The Hon'ble Mr. Playfair.
The Hon'ble Mr. Lee.	The Hon'ble Mr. Wallis.
The Hon'ble Mr. Cotton.	The Hon'ble Mr. Lambert.
	The Hon'ble Mr. Risley.
	The Hon'ble Mr. Allen.
	The Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe.

So the Motions were negatived.

The Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder's Motion that section 9 be omit tedwas also put and negatived.

The Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe, by leave, withdrew the Motion of which he had given notice that, for the first paragraph and the first proviso of section 10, the following be substituted:—

'The annual fee payable in respect of any license shall not exceed one hundred rupees.'

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER moved that, in line 5 of section 10, the words "five per cent. on" be inserted after the word "less."

He said:—"I thought that the wording of the section, as it now stood, was perhaps an oversight on the part of the Select Committee; for I cannot conceive that the Select Committee could have seriously meant to lay down that the whole cost of the appliances for extinguishing fires should be deducted from the annual value of the warehouse. I could well understand their proposing to deduct the whole cost of these appliances against the whole value of the warehouse; but the result of the provision, as it stands in the Bill, will be, as I take it, to deduct the capital outlay on account of appliances from the income of the property, which appears to me to be absurd. Let us take a concrete case. If the annual value of a warehouse be Rs. 3,000, the capital value would perhaps be sixteen times that amount, or Rs. 48,000; and if the owner laid out, say, Rs. 3,000 in fire-extinguishing appliances, that is to say, one year's income of the warehouse, he would be exempted entirely from paying any annual fee in respect of the warehouse, because the fee would have to be fixed on the annual value of the warehouse, minus the cost of the outlay for appliances for extinguishing fires; and there would be nothing upon which to fix the annual fee to be paid by the warehouse. I do not think that that could have been intended by the Select Committee. To allow 5 per cent. on the amount of the outlay for extinguishing fires from the annual value would, I submit, be reasonable, and therefore I propose to insert the words 'five per cent. on' after the word 'less.'"

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE said:—"The principle, Sir, if I may take upon myself to be in some measure the spokesman of the Select Committee which prevailed in our minds when the Bill was going through Committee, found expression in section 10. Subject to the matter which was discussed and decided at the last meeting as to the advisability of defraying the cost of the fire-brigade by a general rate, we considered that it was above all things desirable, in the language of the letter of the Government, dated the 3rd of February, 1892, to which reference has already been made in the course of the debate on this Bill, that comparatively innocent storage godowns should not have to pay the same license fee as dangerously unprotected warehouses.

"There has already been placed before the Council very full details of the important preventive measures which have been taken by various jute warehouse owners for the protection of their premises and the prevention of the spread of fire from them to those of their neighbours. In cases of this kind, it is not possible to protect one's self without protecting one's immediate and even more remote neighbours. It was therefore thought just that, in determining the amount on which the annual license fee should be collected, there should be taken on the one hand the annual value of the warehouse as it is assessed to the payment of municipal taxes, and on the other the capitalised value of the outlay incurred in the rendering of those premises, as far as possible, free from risk of fire.

"It is obvious that, if in any warehouse there has been an outlay incurred which renders it wholely free from the risk of fire, there is no reason why it should be subject to special taxation. Such instances, however, are probably rare. But to the extent to which immunity has been secured, justice demands that the assessable value should be obtained by deducting from the rateable value of the warehouse the outlay incurred in respect of the means and appliances therein and appertaining thereto for preventing or extinguishing fires. That result will not be obtained by merely deducting 5 per cent. per annum on such outlay from the annual value. It may happen that one owner expends many thousand rupees in fire-proof floors, fire-proof divisions, increased lengths of hose, and appliances of all sorts and descriptions for preventing and extinguishing fires; while alongside there may be another jute warehouse equally large, without any fire-preventing appliances whatever. The owner of the latter has taken no means to protect himself, and in so doing, exposes his neighbour to great risk. His position is that he has protected his jute or cotton or anything else which comes within the scope of the Bill from the effects of the weather, and that he either takes the risk of fire upon himself or insures himself against it. But that leaves out of consideration the danger to which the neighbouring property is exposed by the continuance of such a state of things. And if I understand aright the views expressed by the Council, it is proposed to impose a special duty on hazardous trades even in respect of matters of general public convenience, because there is a certain special danger appertaining to them which renders them liable to be taxed for that purpose. The hon'ble mover of the amendment has, I venture to think, failed to appreciate the reasons which led the Committee to arrive at the conclusion they did, and erroneously supposes that it would be fair merely to take from the annual value 5 per cent. on the outlay for such appliances. The section deals with two matters; first, the annual value for municipal taxes, and secondly, the outlay incurred in respect of means and appliances for preventing and extinguishing fires: 10 per cent., and subject to certain limitations, makes an assessment on the differences of these two sums. That, I submit, is a fair and just mode of dealing with the annual fee payable for a license, on the supposition accepted by this Council that there shall be a special taxation on commercial industries to meet the cost of the fire-brigade. For these reasons, I am unable to assent to the proposition of the hon'ble mover of the amendment in this matter, and will record my vote against it."

The Hon'ble Mr. Cotton said:—"I am bound to say that, in my opinion, the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder has indicated a blot in this measure. I have understood the section as drafted to convey the meaning that the license fee up to 10 per cent. per annum might be levied on the annual value of a warehouse, less the annual value of the outlay incurred in respect of protecting it. But on closely examining the section, I see that that is not the meaning the words convey; and, as the learned Advocate-General has explained, the section as it stands undoubtedly means that the total outlay incurred in providing means and appliances for preventing or extinguishing fires has to be deducted from the annual value of the warehouse on which the license fee has to be calculated. If this provision is passed into law, it will, in my opinion, stultify itself. The annual value of a warehouse, as it is assessed to the payment of municipal taxes, is 5 per cent. of the total capitalised value of the warehouse; that is to say, if a warehouse is constructed at a cost or an estimated cost of one lakh of rupees, the annual value to which it is assessed by the Municipality is Rs. 5,000. Now, Sir, it may well be that in such a warehouse the proprietors have incurred an expense of Rs. 5,000 for its protection from fire; it may be that they have incurred an expense of Rs. 10,000. In such a case the warehouse would, if this section were to become law, be entirely exempted from taxation. Now that certainly was not the meaning of the Select Committee.

"The suggestion that a deduction should be made from the annual value on account of costs incurred for the protection of warehouses from fire was made by my friend the learned Advocate-General, and it commended itself to the unanimous sense of the Committee on the ground that it was only fair and reasonable that a deduction should be made on account of expenditure so incurred; but I, for one, and I believe I speak on behalf of other hon'ble members of the Committee, never understood that the whole value should be deducted from the annual value of the warehouse. If the section of the Bill, as it now stands, be passed, it will mean this, that wherever an expense of 5 or 10 per cent. on the total value of the warehouse is incurred for fire-preventing appliances, there the warehouse will be entirely exempted from the payment of any special license-fee. The hon'ble mover of the amendment has conveyed the meaning I had in my mind when I assented to the provision of the Bill by inserting the words 'less 5 per cent. of the outlay.' We might have more correctly said less the annual value of the outlay, which I thought the words meant. But I see that the words in the section do not convey that meaning, and therefore I accept the amendment of the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder."

The Hon'ble MR. PLAYFAIR said:—"I do not agree with the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill. I understood that the cost of private fire-engines and other appliances was to be deducted from the annual value of the warehouse. If those amendments were carried, it would be a departure from the principle on which the Bill is drafted. I do not think a building would be entirely free from taxation. It will come in for taxation under clause (a) of section 26; so that it will not be entirely exempt."

The Hon'ble MR. WALLIS said:—"As a member of the Select Committee, Sir, I understood that if the cost of a warehouse is shown to be a lakh of rupees, and the cost of appliances provided for extinguishing and preventing fire was put down at a cost of Rs. 5,000, the value of the property for the purposes of assessment would be Rs. 95,000, and upon that value the fees under the Act would be levied."

The Hon'ble MR. LEE said:—"My understanding of the intention of the Select Committee is the same as that of the Hon'ble Mr. Wallis."

The Hon'ble MR. LAMBERT said:—"I also understood the intention of the Select Committee to be the same as explained by the Hon'ble Mr. Wallis."

The Hon'ble MR. ALLEN said:—"It appears to me that the mistake has arisen from the use of the words 'annual value' instead of 'capitalised value' by the members of the Select Committee. On the other hand, it is necessary to notice that some of the outlay for the prevention and extinguishing of fire may be of a recurring character, as, for instance, the expenditure on the employment of chaukidars and the establishment for working fire-engines, while the outlay on the engines and other appliances themselves will be incurred once for all. The principle of the amendment would be fair if 10 per cent. of the capitalised value of the appliances were taken, but the recurring items would form an annual charge."

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER in reply said:—"The learned Advocate-General's amendment to my amendment amounts to this: that if all the warehouses in Calcutta and the Suburbs only spent a sum equivalent to the annual value of the warehouses, they would all be exempted from the payment of taxation on this account; and the provision of the Bill that 50 per cent. of the expenditure on the fire-brigade should be contributed by certain trades would be nullified. I do not think it was ever intended that a house in which a hazardous trade is to be carried on would be exempted from the payment of any license fee, if a certain amount of money were expended in providing certain appliances."

"The Hon'ble Mr. Allen's objection amounts to this: he says that, instead of the 5 per cent. being taken from the annual value, the same should be taken from the capitalised value of the warehouse. [The Hon'ble Mr. Allen said:—'I take no objection to the principle of your amendment.'] As the Hon'ble Mr. Cotton has told you, the principle upon which the warehouse is assessed is by taking 5 per cent. of the cost of the building. If that be so, it is only fair that, on the outlay for appliances, the same rate should be taken. When you have to deduct the outlay for the expenditure on account of certain appliances of a warehouse, it is only fair to deduct 5 per cent. upon the outlay for those appliances. If the assessment were to be fixed upon the whole value of the warehouse, then, no doubt, the whole expense of the outlay for appliances would be deducted. But when you are dealing with the income of the property, which the annual value represents, you can set against that only the annual value of the outlay for appliances. On no principle can you deduct the capital value of the outlay for appliances from the income of the property. Therefore, I submit that 5 per cent. on the annual value is a reasonable sum to allow for such outlay."

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"It appears that the majority of the Select Committee meant to apply to the words a different meaning from what the Advocate-General understood them to mean; and as we are dealing with a matter which is a question of words, it behoves us to be extremely careful in drawing up an amendment. It is suggested by the Hon'ble the Legal Remembrancer that the sum to be deducted should be not only a proportion of the capital outlay, but also the recurring cost of the establishment kept up for working the appliances and for keeping watch; and in order that this may be properly considered and the necessary amendments be formulated, the consideration of the question will be postponed to the next meeting of the Council."

The further consideration of the Motion was postponed.

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER also moved that, in the first proviso to section 10, the words "that the annual fee payable by any owner or occupier in respect of any license shall not exceed seven hundred and fifty rupees and" be omitted.

He said:—"Under this Act we have to raise a specified amount by imposing a percentage rate on the annual value of warehouses. That being so, the provision which I am seeking to amend is opposed to one of the fundamental principles of political economy, namely, equality of taxation. The effect would be to make warehouses of larger value bear a less share of the burden to the loss and detriment of less valuable property. I think I shall best express my meaning by putting certain figures before the Council. Let us say that there are 100 warehouses to be assessed of the total annual value of 5 lakhs, and that the sum required to be raised for the purposes of this Act is Rs. 30,000 a year; that five of these houses are of the annual value of Rs. 15,000. If we assess these 100 houses, which I have already stated to be of the total annual value of 5 lakhs at a uniform rate of 6 per cent., we will get Rs. 30,000, the amount required for the purposes of the fire-brigade. But if five of these houses are of the annual value of Rs. 15,000, the tax on each of these houses, taking it at 6 per cent., will be Rs. 900, and if a maximum limit of Rs. 750 is prescribed in the Bill, these five warehouses will pay Rs. 150 a year, less than what a rate of 6 per cent. will produce. Therefore, the less amount of Rs. 750, which these five warehouses will pay under that limit must be borne and paid by the other 95 houses. Because all the warehouses together will have to pay Rs. 30,000 towards the fund, and the amount which these five warehouses will not pay, calculating the rate at 6 per cent., will have to be levied from the other 95 warehouses; that is to say, they will have to pay 3 annas per cent. more than 6 per cent.; so that these 95 warehouses will have to pay Rs. 6-3 per cent., whereas the other five warehouses of the assessments of Rs. 15,000 each will get off by paying merely at the rate of 5 per cent. Therefore, it will be unreasonable and inequitable to assess the more valuable warehouses at a less rate than the less valuable warehouses, and this will surely be the result if this maximum limit were allowed. I therefore move that the words indicated in my amendment be omitted from section 10."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE said:—"I think it desirable that there should be no misunderstanding in this matter. When the Bill was in Committee, detailed statements were laid before us—statements showing the deficiency which would arise from making Rs. 500 the maximum, the limit which was first suggested. After consideration, we adopted the limit of Rs. 750. There must in some instances be some inequality in the incidence of this tax; but that is only one of the many difficulties which must be encountered in any attempt to impose differential taxation. From the figured statement in which the Rs. 750 limit was adopted and upon which this section was based, the sum required for the maintenance of the fire-brigade would be met if the rates therein mentioned were imposed to the extent therein allowed. We were assured by the Commissioner of Police, who from his intimate acquaintance of the matter could speak with authority, that the expenses of the fire-brigade are now ascertained, and that there is no room for any great alteration. The Select Committee was assured that, with a maximum limit of Rs. 750 on warehouses, and the levy of a quarter per cent. on bastis and one-and-a-half anna per cent. on pucca buildings, the expenses of the fire-brigade would be met. If the statements which had been submitted were correct, there will be a surplus over the expenses of the fire-brigade, and there will be no necessity of taxing these industries to the uttermost."

The Hon'ble MR. LEE said:—"As a member of the Select Committee, I was opposed to any limit, and if I had correctly understood the responsibility attaching to a member who signed the Report, I would have recorded a dissent on this and other matters. It was as representing the views of the majority, and because I did not wish to obtrude in a separate note of dissent my opinions in every point on which I disagreed with that majority that I refrained from writing a note of dissent. I thought that Rs. 750 was a very much better limit than Rs 500; but I could not but say, and say to the end, that, in my opinion, it is hardly fair to relieve the rich at the expense of the poor. The calculation which I have now heard from the hon'ble mover of the amendment seems to be quite clear that the owners of small warehouses, whether of jute, hide, wood or coal, would pay; under the present drafting of the Bill, over 6 per cent. on the annual value, whilst the owners of exceptionally valuable warehouses, would pay less than 5 per cent. on the annual value. The maximum that can be levied on warehouses is to be at the rate of 10 per cent. on the annual value, and it is not to exceed altogether one-half of the cost of the fire-brigade. As it is, we find that jute warehouses yielding 10 per cent. on the valuation are in themselves able to meet the whole cost of the fire-brigade Here, as has been observed, they are not to pay more than half the cost, and it results that nobody could pay more than 5 per cent. unless you bring some other controlling influence, such as that which is brought in here. If the proposal of the learned Advocate-General, which was the first suggested, that no one should pay more than Rs. 100, then the poorer class of warehouses would have been, as the hon'ble member (Mr. Playfair) pointed out at the last meeting, most grossly and unfairly assessed in comparison with the rich. This limit of Rs. 750 would only lessen the unfairness, but will not remove it. I therefore hope I may be considered to have the liberty of voting with the hon'ble mover of the amendment."

The Hon'ble MR. PLAYFAIR said:—"I endorse the views expressed by the learned Advocate-General. I think the speech of the hon'ble member, the Chairman of the Corporation, is somewhat in accord with the views expressed by the minority at the meeting of this Council a week ago. We have already got a differential tax, and, as I said at the last meeting, we shall be taxing the owners of small warehouses more than the rich."

The Hon'ble MR. ALLEN said:—"The mover of this amendment has appealed to political economy and principles of taxation in support of his proposal; but the Chairman of the Corporation endorses this amendment on a new principle. It is this: that having got the jute industry, which hitherto has provided all the funds required for the fire-brigade, under their thumb, it should be kept there. But, Sir, the measure is in no sense one of taxation, and the only reason why I voted against the Advocate-General at the last meeting was that the principle underlying this Bill is that men who introduce a special danger into a community are bound to contribute towards neutralising that danger. The measure of contribution should be determined by the extent of the danger. So far from large jute warehouses and mills causing danger in proportion to their size and value, probably the exact opposite takes place, because the more valuable are better provided with means against the danger more or less incident to all jute warehouses. Therefore, it is not fair that the more valuable properties should pay an unlimited rate to the full extent of their value. The value of a property should not enter into consideration, except to a limited extent. It is perfectly fair that the more dangerous class of warehouses, from which there is greater probability of fires, should pay as much. What has taken place in some municipalities where jute mills and factories are located is possibly known to more than one member of the Council present. If the 10 per cent. rate be allowed to run up according to the value without any limit, the effect will be simply to throw the whole charge on a few valuable warehouses and to exempt small ones."

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER in reply said: "It seems to me that the argument of the learned Advocate-General in opposing the present amendment would apply very well if the question were one between inflammable trades on the one hand and other trades on the other which would have to pay the tax. But these arguments cannot apply as between inflammable trades themselves. The question involved in this amendment is whether or not there should be equality of taxation between those persons. If all the most valuable warehouses were provided with appliances for the prevention of fires, it would no doubt be a good ground for asking that they should not be taxed more than a certain amount; but as the Council understood from the learned Advocate-General, when the last amendment was under consideration, that it so happens that one warehouse provides itself with all kinds of appliances against fire while the adjoining warehouse has nothing of the kind. It would therefore be inequitable not to tax small and large warehouses on the same scale, or to limit the tax on large warehouses to a certain amount only. The Hon'ble Mr. Allen seems to think that an unlimited rate of taxation would be imposed on the large warehouses, but it was not so because the rate would be uniform. What is wanted is that the same rate should be put upon all warehouses irrespective of its value or condition. But to impose a less rate of taxation on warehouses of large value and a higher rate on smaller warehouses would be wrong principle."

The Motion being put, the Council divided:—

Ayes 5.	Noes 6.
The Hon'ble Maharajah Ravaneshwar Prosad Sing Bahadur.	The Hon'ble Mr. Playfair.
The Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder.	The Hon'ble Mr. Wallis.
The Hon'ble Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar.	The Hon'ble Mr. Lambert.
The Hon'ble Mr. Lee.	The Hon'ble Mr. Risley.
The Hon'ble Mr. Cotton.	The Hon'ble Mr. Allen.
	The Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe.

So the Motion was negatived.

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER also moved that, in line 5 of section 10, the word "seventy-five" be substituted for "fifty."

He said:—"As this amendment of mine is based upon the figures furnished to me by the Hon'ble Mr. Lee, I shall expect him to explain to the Council in detail those figures. I shall only content myself by pointing out to the Council that the Committee of 1891 recommended that the whole of the expense of the fire-brigade should be met in this way, namely, 40 per cent. by jute warehouses; 20 per cent. by other inflammable articles, except hay, straw, wood and coal; 10 per cent. by hay, straw, wood and coal, and 30 per cent by the Municipality. That was the recommendation of the Committee. The original Bill, which was based on those recommendations, provided that 60 per cent. should be paid by jute, cotton and other inflammable articles, not including hay, straw, wood and coal, and that the remaining 40 per cent. be paid by the Municipality; the Municipality being entitled to recoup itself to the extent of 10 per cent. from hay, straw, wood and coal. The Select Committee, by their amended Bill, have taken away hay, straw, wood and coal from the Municipality, and included them within the hazardous articles coming under the Act; and they have fixed the liability upon those articles at 50 per cent., leaving the other 50 per cent. to be recovered from the Municipality; so that, in lieu of 70 per cent., the trade in hazardous goods will have to pay only 50 per cent.

"According to the figures in the Hon'ble Mr. Lee's statement, if jute and other hazardous articles enumerated in the Bill were made to pay 70 per cent. instead of 50 per cent., jute alone would pay Rs. 30,000 instead of Rs. 68,900, which they are now paying. I submit, therefore, that it would not be unreasonable to raise the rate from 50 per cent. to 75 per cent. to the relief of persons who are owners of other properties."

The Hon'ble MR. LEE said:—"None of us who had the pleasure of listening to the lucid speech with which the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill opened the proceedings last Saturday week but must have been struck by the great discrepancy between his speech and the figured statement that accompanied it. The speech represented the views of the Select Committee. The figures, as I shall presently show, are at variance with the prevailing note that runs through the speech. Mr. Cotton says:—

'It appeared to us that, in imposing a tax for the maintenance of a particular object, the fair and reasonable principle would be to apportion that tax on different members of the community in proportion to the advantages which it is estimated they will gain from that object.'

"And later on, after explaining that the fire-brigade at its present strength is entirely due to that industry, he observed:—

'In the Report which I now have the honour to lay on the table, we have stated that we think that it is unfair to levy the whole rate on any one industry. At the same time I must distinctly affirm that the fire-brigade was established in Calcutta in order to meet the requirements of the jute trade; and that the great majority of important fires occur, and always have occurred, in jute warehouses. If it were not for these jute warehouses, I do not hesitate to say that the maintenance of the fire-brigade on anything like its present scale would be unnecessary. I do not know whether I am justified in saying that this city would be in a position to go back to the state of things which existed twenty years ago; but certain it is that the brigade, in its present state of efficiency and completeness, would not be required. It is on account of the jute warehouses that the brigade is maintained in its present organisation. For these reasons, the majority of the Committee considered that the jute industry should still continue to pay a large proportion of the funds required for the maintenance of the fire-brigade.'

"And then, in dealing with the contributions from other persons assessed to the fund, he observed:—

'The individual risk which any individual house-owner may run in this city may be infinitesimal. Residential house-owners in Calcutta do not insure their houses, either in the north of the town, where the permanent residents of Calcutta mostly dwell, or in the south, where European residents live; and I believe I am well within the truth in saying that the insurance of houses and furniture in this city is practically unknown.'

"After a few more remarks, he observed:—

'The circumstances are amply sufficient to justify the Legislature in imposing a very low rate on the rate-payers at large to assist in meeting any deficit which the other means of taxation placed in the hands of the Municipality may fail to supply. The protection which ordinary householders derive from fires not being allowed to spread may be inappreciable in any particular case, but it is obvious that such a general risk exists, and that it is at all times within possibility that fires may break out in residential houses.'

"Now, with such a statement as this, why is it that the demand made from the general fund to the account of the brigade is so heavy? If a considerable proportion is to be borne by the jute industry, it is of the same value as the water in the Irishman's peg—a thimbleful of the Rs. 41,600 to be levied in Calcutta: the jute trade is to pay but Rs. 8,600! Taxes on other property are to pay Rs. 25,000, and Rs. 8,000 are to be drawn from warehouses of hay, straw, wood and coal.

"These latter now pay the Commissioners annually about Rs. 13,000, and we are to lose the odd Rs. 5,000—for what reason, I know not. Nobody asks for the reduction. Thus it will be seen that the Commissioners suffer a loss of Rs. 38,000, for the general ratepayer, whether basti-owner or the owner of other property, is to pay Rs. 25,000, and the Rs. 13,000 now realised from hay, wood, straw, &c., depôts is to be withdrawn from the Commissioners; Rs. 8,000 of it being paid to the fire-brigade fund, and the remainder dropped altogether. I say, therefore, that the speech of the hon'ble member is not in accord with his figures. Therefore, I feel myself entitled to oppose this provision of the Bill, though my name is to be found affixed to the Report which accompanied it.

"There is another reason why I am entitled to press the amendment of the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder. I was under the impression, which impression turns out to be wrong, that the sum levied now from jute warehouses was pressing so hardly on them that it had the effect of driving them from the city. That, I thought, would be an important fact. I should be extremely sorry to see any portion of the industry put out of an area which it otherwise would have chosen for itself. But I find that since the year 1872 there were in Calcutta 114 warehouses, and in the Suburbs 52. They did diminish up to a certain point, but since the year 1888-89, I find that the numbers have been these:—In Calcutta proper in 1888, there were 69 licensed warehouses; at the present moment there are 80 in the town proper. In the suburban area in 1888, there were 112 warehouses. There came 25 of them to Calcutta at the time of the amalgamation They have increased to 31. There were 73 of the 112 at Cossipur-Chitpur, and these have increased to 85; the balance (except one) are at Manicktollah; so that the pressure on the jute industry of the existing taxation has not been oppressive to any perceptible degree, and it has not repressed the natural expansion of trade in Calcutta.

"As regards the figures which have been quoted by the hon'ble mover of the amendment, I would say that the sum of Rs. 68,900, levied from jute under the existing law, is perhaps comparable with Rs. 30,000 which his amendment would produce from jute. But I would prefer to compare the Rs. 30,000 with Rs. 66,550, which is the amount of the direct license fees now levied. There are other extra assets of the jute fund, which go to make up the Rs. 68,900, which is leviable and is being paid by jute. This will show that if the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder's amendment be carried, the relief to the jute trade will be over 50 per cent. of the tax they are now paying; and that, I think, will be sufficient.

"But there is a further fact to bear in mind in connection with other warehouses. The fees shown, as leviable from these warehouses are now over Rs. 14,000. The amount actually collected—and here I would draw the attention of the Hon'ble Mr. Playfair to the fact that you must not confuse the amount leviable, whether by taxation on the general rate or from special industries, with the amount which actually comes into the coffers of the Corporation—is about Rs. 13,000; and if these rates now recommended be fixed, it will bring in from them about Rs. 12,000. The remainder will be a relief to those industries. But I know of no necessity for affording them any greater relief at the expense of the general rate-payer.

"I have claimed the support of the majority of the Select Committee to the present amendment on the ground of true consistency with their views. The mere fact that the Bill, as it has been amended, will result in certain figures which the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill has laid before the Council, does not compel them to sanction those figures. We have seen, in respect of the last motion but one, that the Bill did not express the views of the majority of the Select Committee; and, similarly—I can speak of only one member of the majority—I venture to urge that the Bill as now drafted does not really represent the views of the majority."

The Hon'ble MR. COTTON said:—"I am not surprised at the speech of my hon'ble friend the Chairman of the Corporation. I am not surprised that he should support the amendment moved by the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder. But I am somewhat surprised that he considers that the opinion of the majority of the Select Committee coincide with his view on this subject. There was no question more discussed, more disputed in Select Committee than the proportion, the maximum proportion of the expenses of the fire-brigade, which should be leviable on account of licenses for warehouses; and, as I thought, it was unanimously agreed that the amount should not exceed half, or as the Bill puts it, 50 per cent. of the total amount. The Hon'ble Mr. Lee and the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder represent, as in my humble judgment they are entitled if not bound to do, the opinions of the Calcutta Municipality. That Municipality is very largely interested in the discussions now going on in this Council, as well as the mercantile community so ably represented by the Hon'ble Mr. Playfair and the learned Advocate-General.

"I was obliged, as it appeared to me in the interests of fairness, to oppose the hon'ble members who represent the mercantile community in the proposal which was brought forward last week that the whole burden of the fire-brigade should be borne by the general rate-payers; and to-day I feel myself equally bound to oppose the motion brought forward on behalf of the general rate-payers, that is to say, that an unduly large proportion of the cost of the fire-brigade should be borne by certain special industries. When I find myself as it were between two fires—when I find that the line I have endeavoured to take up is attacked by the mercantile community on the one hand and by the Corporation on the other—I am more and more confirmed in the belief that the middle course I have endeavoured to steer throughout these discussions is the safe and fair one. Certain it is that one of the main objects we have always had before us in our deliberations is to relieve the jute industry from the undue burden which has been cast upon it in the past. The more I reflect over it the more I feel that the jute trade has been unfairly taxed by the burden which it has borne for so many years, by not only maintaining the whole of the fire-brigade but the cost of the establishment maintained by the Municipality, of which a very considerable share has gone into the coffers of the Municipality; and also by the appropriation of considerable surplus funds paid by the the jute industry, which have been devoted to local improvements in the town. Something like Rs. 1,26,000 has, as you have been told, been diverted from the Fire-brigade Fund in this way; and I do think the mercantile community have some cause for complaint; and this being so, I understand that the unanimous opinion of the Select Committee, which considered very carefully how far we could readjust and alleviate the burden now borne by the jute industry, was that fees from warehouses should not exceed 50 per cent. of the funds required.

"We thought, and I hope you will by a decisive majority confirm our recommendation, that the license fees from warehouses, not only jute and cotton, but also all those specially inflammable materials mentioned in clause (9) of section 3 of the Bill taken together, should not contribute more than one-half the amount required for the maintenance of the fire-brigade. This is one of the most important principles in the Bill. If that is abrogated and set aside, and it is decided that such fees should be maintained at the larger proportion of 75 per cent., then I hope the community, which have been so long agitating in this matter, will justly renew the complaints so often made. They are not, I am aware, satisfied with the particular proposals made in this Bill. No one, as I said before, will ever be satisfied when he is called upon to pay a rate, or tax, or fee, or whatever it may be called. It devolves on the Legislature to impose these rates and fees with the greatest possible amount of fairness, and that is what we have endeavoured to do. The best proof of our success is that both sides object. I attach very great importance to that fact. It is not at this stage of the Bill that I deem it necessary to detain you to show how largely the fire-brigade is used in extinguishing other fires than those from jute warehouses. My remarks under this head may be postponed until we discuss the rates proposed to be levied on bastis and on the general community. I confine my remarks now to what I consider to be the injustice of raising the proposed fees to be levied on account of licenses from warehouses."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE said: "Sir, it is with great pleasure I find myself at one with the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill on this occasion. The only point I take exception to is that I do not claim the honour of representing the mercantile community. I was hitherto under the impression that I occupied an entirely different position. But I would desire to add my voice to the observation which has fallen from the Hon'ble Mr. Cotton as to the suggestion that the adoption of 75 per cent. would be in accordance with the principle which guided the Select Committee is without the slightest foundation. The matter was long and carefully discussed, and we arrived at the conclusion, which is enunciated in the Bill, subject to the principle which was raised by the dissentient minority of the Select Committee. But once that principle was negatived in the Select Committee as it was negatived here, we proceeded on the principle which the Hon'ble Mr. Cotton has affirmed that a contribution not exceeding 50 per cent. from warehouses would be fair. In this particular instance the mercantile community has adopted that middle course which so commends itself to the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill. The Hon'ble Mr. Playfair has not, I observe, moved any amendment to reduce the rate from 50 per cent. The principle once being accepted, I think it would be well, in any case in which the Select Committee has come to a unanimous conclusion, that we should, as far as possible, avoid accepting any principle of a different character.

"The hon'ble mover of the amendment has referred to certain figures which he says were laid before us by the Hon'ble Mr. Lee. I can only say that I have not seen them. Those figures have not been, so far as I am aware, placed before the Council. I therefore support the Hon'ble Mr. Cotton in the view he has taken. The Hon'ble Mr. Lee spoke as if there had been a deprivation of the income the Corporation was entitled to in the shape of fees from hay, straw, wood and coal depôts. It has been conceded that these trades are not noxious trades. The only ground upon which fees upon them were levied was the inflammable nature of those materials; and yet these fees which were imposed year after year by the Corporation were not devoted to the fire-brigade. For these reasons I shall vote against the amendment."

The Motion was also put and negatived.

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER also moved that section 20 be omitted.

He said:—"It seems to me that the provisions of this section will be very hard and oppressive on the owners and occupiers of warehouses. Before I put forward any argument of my own, I would lay before the Council the Memorial of the National Chamber of Commerce. They said:—

'Section 20.—This is altogether new. It will be a fearful instrument of oppression in the hands of subordinate police officers and constables, and lead to frivolous prosecutions. It is an admitted fact that the whole length of the Strand Road, from the Bonded Warehouse to Hatkholla, the whole of Burra Bazar, Jorabagan and Hatkholla, Komertolly, Chitpore and Belliaghatta, and other busy centres of trade and commerce, and all thoroughfares near godowns are more or less blocked up with carts, and the right of public traffic is thereby obstructed. This is a necessary evil incidental to a large place of business like Calcutta; but no one has ever complained of such obstruction or ever entertained the idea of prosecuting any member of the mercantile community for such an offence.'

"We all know that most of the existing jute warehouses have no separate places for loading and unloading carts, and that notwithstanding this licenses are given, and the result will be that they will be subject to daily prosecutions because they will not be able to help themselves; and furthermore

I say that the provisions of this law will clash against the provisions of the Calcutta Police Act IV of 1866, section 66, clause 7, which provides that 'whoever causes any cart or truck, with or without horses or cattle, to remain or stand longer than may be necessary for loading or unloading, except at places lawfully appointed for the purpose, shall be liable, on summary conviction, to punishment.' So that, under the provisions of this Act, people are allowed to keep their carts in public thoroughfares for the purpose of loading and unloading. It appears to me that the provisions of section 20 of this Bill clash with the provisions of the Police Act; for the Police Act allows carts to be on the streets for the purpose of loading and unloading, whereas the present Bill would prohibit it. I therefore submit that, having regard to the fact that the Merchants represented by the National Chamber of Commerce raise the objection, this section ought to be omitted."

The Hon'ble MR. LAMBERT said:—"That the Council has heard from the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder that he brings this motion forward chiefly on behalf of the Bengal National Chamber of Commerce, but I cannot ascertain that any other public body has objected to this section. The letter of the Honorary Secretary of that Association says that the section is altogether new. This is hardly a correct way of putting it. Clause 3, section 6, of Act IV of 1883, requires that space be reserved for carts, and by section 14 of the Act, whoever breaks any conditions of the license renders himself liable to prosecution and fine up to Rs. 50. In the present Bill also, obstruction of a thoroughfare is made punishable, but the penalty is reduced to Rs. 10.

"Next it is said that 'it will be a fearful instrument of oppression in the hands of subordinate police officers and lead to frivolous prosecutions.' But this is not so. All that the subordinate police will be able to do will be to report whether obstruction has been caused. Enquiry will follow, and no summons will be asked for unless, in the opinion of the Commissioner or Deputy Commissioner, a case is established. The section confers no power of summary arrest. At present the unfortunate cartman, and not the man for whose benefit the obstruction is caused, is punishable.

"Further, the letter says that no one has complained of the want of any such provision. That is a mistake. Complaints are frequent, and have been so for many years past. They come in from various sources, generally from the residents of the locality and from tradesmen, and in some cases from the Municipality. I have in my hand a list of cases of obstruction during the last six months from the Koomartolee Section. It shews from August 1892 to January 1893 that 103 cartmen have been prosecuted, and six owners of jute warehouses were also successfully prosecuted for the same offence. Further, in his letter the Honorary Secretary says that in all the busy parts of the town, streets are congested by traffic. This is true, but it is only in the locality of jute warehouses that one or two owners appropriate a whole street for hours together by a long string of carts. The persons who are responsible for these obstructions ought to be easily reached, and that is the aim of section 20 of the Bill. If this section becomes law, rules will be provided for each locality, by which the owners or occupiers of jute warehouses will know how to conduct their business without interference from the police; and the convenience of the public will also be recognized.

"It has been suggested that this section of the Bill will clash with the Police Act; but it merely cannot be the intention of the Police Act that whole strings of carts shall be allowed to stand on a street for hours together while loading and unloading. I apprehend it refers to one or two carts and not to a long line of carts. I think that this section is wanted to show the owners of jute warehouses that they have a special liability, and that they should conform to such regulations as are required for each locality. As I said before, if this section becomes law, special regulations will be drawn up for each locality, and no punishment will be awarded so long as they comply with those regulations."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE said:—"The question which is involved in this amendment commends itself to me. The words used in this section are

'whoever impairs or causes to be impaired the right of public traffic.' I do not read those words in the sense in which the hon'ble member the Commissioner of Police, does. I take it that roads are made for the public; nor am I aware that any person who has occasion to use carts on the roads in Calcutta is restricted to the use of one cart at a time. All members of the public have a right to use any public road, subject to the use thereof by all other members of the public.

"The Bill provides that space shall be reserved for the loading and unloading of carts on land appertaining to warehouses. That does not mean that the public roads shall not be used by more than one cart at a time. Section 66, sub-section 7, of Act IV of 1866, imposes a fine upon any person who causes any cart to remain or stand longer than is necessary for loading or unloading, except in a place lawfully appointed for the purpose so as to cause obstruction in a thoroughfare. From the difference in opinion between the hon'ble mover of the amendment and the hon'ble member, the Commissioner of Police, it is evident that this clause (section 20) is read in a different light from what I understood in Committee. But seeing that the section is capable of the construction which the Commissioner of Police puts upon it, I shall support the hon'ble mover of the amendment. It was never understood that the business of a warehouse should be stopped after each cart was unloaded and another cart fetched."

The Hon'ble MR. COTTON said:—"I think this question is by no means free from difficulty, and for my own part I am much influenced by the opinion expressed in the letter of the National Chamber of Commerce. It is true that the Municipal Commissioners were, in the early days of the Municipality, in the habit of granting licenses very freely for jute warehouses; and that in a very large number of cases no provision whatever was made for cart space, that is to say, there was no space whatever within the premises where carts could enter and turn round. I conceive that the Municipal Commissioners erred in their discretion in the interests of jute and commerce, and granted licenses more freely than was prudent. I have inspected some of these warehouses, and have found the bulk of the carts loaded with jute waiting outside. That is a serious matter. I confess that the representation of the National Chamber of Commerce has influenced me very much on this point. I had not realised until I read their memorial and received a deputation of their members how keenly this question would be felt; and I do think that the power of prosecuting the owners or occupiers of warehouses, under such an exceptional provision as this, should not be conferred without further deliberation. I can understand that a carriage or cart which blocks the way, and will not move on when ordered by the police, may be run in; but I do not know whether it will be wise or whether it could be justifiable to prosecute the owner or occupier of a warehouse under a penal provision of this kind.

"The section found its place in the Bill in this way. Under the old law it was a condition of granting a license that there should be sufficient space for the loading and unloading of carts. We have struck that out, and this penalty clause was put in, under which the owner or occupier of a warehouse may be fined if his carts block the way. I doubt whether it was wise to omit the provision about cart space and provide this penalty clause instead. On a full consideration of the objections taken by the National Chamber of Commerce, I think this Council would do well to accept the amendment of the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder and omit this provision, leaving all necessary action to clear away and maintain the thoroughfares to the police under the existing law."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE explained, in reference to what had fallen from the Hon'ble Mr. Cotton, that in section 6 a sub-section (c) was inserted, which required to be set forth in the application license "the space, if any, which has been reserved for the loading and unloading of carts," in order to show what space was left in the premises for carts to be brought in.

The Hon'ble MR. ALLEN said:—"I think that as this section has been inserted in the Bill, it will be much wiser to let it stand. The learned Advocate-General's principle seems to be that any one who has a large business is at liberty to monopolise the streets. But there are individuals who have no business, and they are just as well entitled to pass through the streets. It is not the fact that a continuous string of carts is allowed in a street, for there is a bye-law in Calcutta, which requires an open space to be left after a certain number of carts. The only persons who disregard this bye-law are the Government carts, and they apparently pay no respect to it. I understand, however, this section has rather reference to carts leaving the line and blocking the traffic while unloading. It will be for the Magistrate to construe its true meaning, and it may be as well to let it remain in the Bill."

The Hon'ble MR. PLAYFAIR said:—"This is a section in regard to which there was considerable discussion in the Select Committee. The traffic which is referred to is principally jute, and I think it will operate with hardship to the native jute merchants whose warehouses abut on the streets, and therefore I would support the amendment."

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"So far as the main principles of the Bill are concerned, that is, as regards the incidence and distribution of the taxation which is to supply the funds for keeping up the fire-brigade, I have declared my intention of not intervening in the debate or attempting to influence the decisions of the Council, and I adhere to that view. This, however, is a different question relating to the administration of the Police regulations of the town; and although I desire fully to recognise what the Hon'ble Mr. Allen has said that, as a rule, the views of the Select Committee ought to be supported, yet as the matter had not been fully considered in the light put forward by the National Chamber of Commerce, the members of which would be chiefly affected by this provision, it comes under the category of a case upon which new light has been thrown since the redrafting of the Bill by the Select Committee; and as it is now pointed out that police power already exists to maintain the proper regulation of the traffic in streets, it seems to me unnecessary that any special clause should be included in this Bill, with the view of giving special powers for the regulation of any particular class of traffic. Therefore, I should advise the Council to support the amendment of the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Saturday, the 4th March, 1893.

LICENSED WAREHOUSE AND FIRE-BRIGADE BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. COTTON moved that the clauses of the Bill for the regulation of Warehouses and the maintenance of a Fire-brigade be further considered for settlement in the form recommended by the Select Committee.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER said:—"As section 3 of the Bill was passed at the last meeting of the Council, I ask for special leave to move the following amendment:—

'That in clause (5) of section 3, the words or mustard be inserted after the word linseed.'

The Hon'ble the President said:—"As this is an amendment to remedy an oversight in a section already passed, sanction is given."

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER continued:—"At the last meeting it was unanimously agreed that linseed-oil should be taken out of the operation of this Act. I move that mustard-oil be also taken out of it on the ground that mustard-oil is less inflammable than linseed-oil. The Hon'ble Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar will, I am confident, support the ground I have ventured to urge, and I do not think there are many places in this City in which mustard-oil is stored in large quantities. There is not much of an export trade in it, and the quantity of oil imported and made here is substantially less than the quantity of other oils brought here for the purposes of the export trade. Furthermore, mustard oil is very largely used, especially by the poorer classes in these Provinces, in the preparation of their food, and an additional tax upon it will enhance its value and will ultimately have to be borne by its consumers."

The Hon'ble DR. MAHENDRA LAL SIRCAR said:—"I have no hesitation in stating that mustard-oil is no more inflammable than linseed-oil, and I go further and say that neither is castor-oil nor cocoanut-oil more inflammable than linseed-oil. They are, if at all, less inflammable than linseed-oil. It will require a very little amount of consideration to say that their character is not inflammable.

For these reasons I do not see why the word 'oil' should be retained in the Bill, and I ask the permission of the President to move that clause (5) of section 3 be omitted, and that in clause (9) of the same section, the word 'oil' be also omitted."

The Hon'ble MR. COTTON said:—"I concur in the proposal to add the word 'mustard-oil' to linseed-oil, as being an article exempted from the operation of this Bill. But when cocoanut-oil and castor-oil are mentioned as being non-inflammable materials, I can only express my surprise. I was always under the impression that cocoanut-oil was largely used in the whole of this country in lighting cherags and buttees, which form the universal means of illumination in houses over the greater part of this country. It was certainly universal until petroleum was, in a great measure, substituted for cocoanut-oil. I should say that cocoanut-oil is, strictly speaking, inflammable and should be included among the substances to be kept in warehouses under the Bill, but I do not desire to oppose the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder's motion that 'mustard-oil' should be excluded."

The Hon'ble MR. LAMBERT said:—"I know of no large godown in the city which is used exclusively for the storage of mustard-oil, nor in my recollection has there been any fire in which the storing of mustard-oil in small quantities has caused any serious difficulty. No doubt, whenever fire breaks out in premises where oil of any kind is stored, the fire burns more fiercely and is much more difficult to extinguish. But as regards mustard-oil, I see no special reason why it should not be excluded from the operation of the Bill."

The Hon'ble Maulvi SYED FAZL IMAM, KHAN BAHADUR, said:—"In my capacity of Vice-Chairman of the Patna Municipality, I have had long personal experience of places in which the oils which have been referred to are manufactured and stored in large quantities. There is no doubt, as has been observed by the Hon'ble Mr. Lee, that oils when once ignited prove a source of great danger, and that the flames do not admit of prompt extinguishing. Yet oils cannot possibly be compared to jute, cotton, straw, wood, &c., in the matter of inflammability; and when the Council has agreed to exempt linseed-oil from the operation of the Bill, I think there can be no objection to place mustard-oil on the same footing. For these reasons I will support the amendment of the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder."

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"The Hon'ble Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar has asked permission to move as an amendment that the whole of clause (5) of section 3, the definition of 'oil,' be omitted, and that the word 'oil' be omitted from clause (9). As we have already admitted a cognate amendment which was not strictly in order, I see no objection to this further amendment being put."

The Hon'ble DR. MAHENDRA LAL SIRCAR said:—"My reason for proposing this amendment is, that in simple fairness we cannot retain castor-oil and cocoanut-oil among the articles which are to be subject to the operation of this Bill, if we exclude mustard-oil and linseed-oil. They are on the same footing as far as the risk of fire is concerned, and if we exclude the latter, why should not we exclude the former also?"

The Hon'ble MR. LEE said:—"I believe, Sir, that the Commissioner of Police will be able to support me in saying that it makes very little difference what the oil stored be once the building catches fire. I think that if linseed-oil and mustard-oil are left out of the Bill, all oils should be left out—not only on the general principle which has been suggested, but also because it would be very inconvenient in working to have exceptions. It would be most inconvenient to have the different classes of oil divided, some as taxable and some as not taxable under this Act. An oil vendor has all kinds of oil. We are to exclude small quantities of assessable articles, and it would therefore be necessary for the officer appointed by the Commissioner of Police to inspect these warehouses, and see what is taxable and what is not taxable; that he should make out a list showing so many canisters of linseed-oil, so much of mustard-oil, and so much of cocoanut-oil, and unless he counts up the number of canisters of each kind of oil he would be unable to say whether it was taxable or not. The quantities of each kind of oil would vary from day to day, and it would be very difficult to say in each case whether it was a warehouse under the Act or it was not. I think it should be laid down in a manner clear and understandable. I therefore agree with the Hon'ble Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar that oil should be altogether omitted from clauses 5 and 9 of section 3."

The Hon'ble MR. LAMBERT said:—"It is very difficult to make out a stronger case against castor-oil and cocoanut-oil than as regards mustard-oil and linseed-oil; and, as far as I am aware, there are no large warehouses in this City used exclusively for the storage of any of these oils. Therefore, I agree to the proposed amendment."

The Motions were put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. LEE said:—"Before the business next on the list is proceeded with I wish, with the permission of the President, to ask whether the amendment left undecided in the first part of section 10, which was moved by the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder at the last meeting of the Council, has been withdrawn."

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"The Council has not yet reached the amendment to which the hon'ble member has referred. The Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe has asked leave to introduce an amendment to section 9, by the addition of the words 'the proceedings of such Committee shall not be submitted to the Commissioners in meeting, or be subject to revision by them.' This is an amendment of which notice has not been given. But considering that it appears that, by an oversight, the section as it stands may have an effect which the Select Committee had not foreseen, and possibly the Council may not have foreseen, I will allow the amendment proposed by the Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe to be brought on now."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE said:—"When section 9 was before them, the majority of the Council was in favour of vesting in a Special Committee, to be appointed by the Commissioners in meeting with the consent of the Chairman the powers and discretion vested in the Chairman in regard to granting or withholding licenses for warehouses under this Act; that is to say, the Council considered it desirable that this matter should be placed in the hands of a small body of persons and should not be brought up for debate before a large unwieldy tribunal, such as the whole body of the Commissioners. Since that discussion, my attention has been called to the wording of section 66 of Act II of 1888, the Calcutta Municipal Consolidation Act, and it has been suggested that the proceedings of this Special Committee might thereunder be subject to revision by the Commissioners in meeting. For my own part, I do not think so, nor do I consider that the Committee appointed under this Act would be bound by any Resolution passed by the Commissioners in the matter. But however the decisions of the Special Committee appointed under section 9 of this Act, with the consent of the Chairman, be thought to be subject to revision, and to be brought up for discussion and debate, prolonged it may be for a very considerable period of time, it is desirable so to amend this section that there shall be no room for a contention which, if successful, would, in some cases at least, render the investigations which might be made and the decision which might be arrived at by the Special Committee, simply labour lost. I therefore move that section 9 be amended by the addition of the words 'the proceedings of such Committee shall not be submitted to the Commissioners in meeting, or be subject to revision by them.'"

The Hon'ble MR. COTTON said :—"I think this is emphatically a proposal of which notice should have been given. It appears to me to be a matter of very great importance that a proposal should be sprung upon us at the eleventh hour, setting aside a principle which has been definitely established by an Act of the Legislature. By section 56 of Act II of 1888, it is laid down that the action of Committees is subject to confirmation by a general meeting of the Commissioners. This is emphatically one of those principles which establishes the principle of Local Self-Government, dealing with local affairs in this Metropolis. The proposal of the learned Advocate-General entirely sets aside this important principle, and if it is to be adequately discussed at a meeting of this Council, I think we should have received notice of it beforehand. The Bill, as it is before the Council, places the grant of licenses in the hands of the Chairman of the Commissioners. It removes this power from the Commissioners in whose hands the power was formerly vested; but it authorises the Commissioners with the consent of the Chairman to appoint a small Committee to consider applications for licenses. The law, as it now stands in the Bill before you, whittles away the power of the Commissioners to the very smallest possible extent—to a far larger extent than I think is wise or proper. The learned Advocate-General informs you that by a large majority this revision in the law was carried. I think myself that it was a comparatively small majority. But be that as it may, there is no doubt that the Bill, as drafted, deprives the Municipal Commissioners of Calcutta of a very valuable privilege. The proposal led to a very unmerited and unjust attack upon the Commissioners by a member of this Council. [The President said :—"I must ask the hon'ble member to withdraw the word 'unjust.' It appears to me to be a term which should not be applied by one member of this Council to another."] In deference to the President, I withdraw the word "unjust," although it expresses no more than my own personal feelings on the subject. The Hon'ble Mr. Allen is a Master of flouts and gibes, and loses no opportunity of girding at one time at the High Court; at another time at the Calcutta Commissioners, and at another time at this Hon'ble Council itself. [The President said :—"I must ask the hon'ble member to confine himself to what is before the Council. I think it very undesirable and a very unfortunate thing if occasion is taken in proceedings like these to bring forward occurrences which took place two years ago, and which we all wish to forget. We are not here for personal debate; we are deciding the question whether an amendment should be agreed to or not, and I must again ask the hon'ble member to confine himself to the question before us."] The Hon'ble Mr. Allen indulged in a long diatribe upon the conduct of the Municipal Commissioners of Calcutta. [The President said :—"I must again point out to the hon'ble member that we are not discussing what the Hon'ble Mr. Allen said, but we are discussing a particular question, whether a particular amendment should be made in a particular section of the Bill before the House."] If this provision is added to the Bill, it will materially impair the powers of the Commissioners. I think that time should be allowed to the Council to consider the effect of the proposal."

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said :—"The President has, under the Rules, the power of admitting amendments of which notice has not been given, and I have admitted this amendment under the impression that it corrects a mistake which had occurred, and will set things practically in the position in which they were supposed to be placed when the Select Committee passed the draft of the Bill which we are now considering. If it is a fact that the Select Committee had, before them, when this section was considered and agreed to by them, the possibility that the decision of the Special Committee under section 9 might be subject to the general consideration of the Commissioners in meeting and to revision by them, and if it was their intention that it should be so subject, then it is obvious that what has fallen from my hon'ble friend, Mr. Cotton, is a matter of very considerable importance, and therefore time should be allowed for the consideration of an amendment which would alter the intention of the Select Committee. But if the Select Committee did not anticipate or intend such a result, then the amendment merely carries out their objects and involves no change in principle. I think, therefore, under such circumstances, that it will be better to put the question to the House. The Council knows how far they understood that the Special Committee were to be authorised under section 9 to give a final decision, and how far they were under the impression that the decision of the Special Committee would be subject to revision under section 66 of the Municipal Act by the Commissioners at large. Those who understood the ninth section to imply a final decision on the part of the Special Committee would perhaps consider that we might proceed at once to the consideration of the amendment, which only clears away any doubt as to that intention. Those who consider that a new principle has been introduced will probably desire that it should be deferred for the next meeting of the Council. I therefore ask the Council whether they will consider this amendment to-day or postpone it to the next meeting of the Council."

The Hon'ble MR. LEE said:—"I had two reasons for voting that the consideration of this matter had better stand over till next Saturday. One was that there seems to be some heat in the atmosphere, and the other that I had a proposal which I hoped would have met the wishes of all, and that therefore this particular amendment might have been withdrawn in favour of another. The Bill if passed now would have an effect that was not wanted by those who advocated the passing of section 9 in its present form. It is more or less by an accident, I consider, that it was passed. It was rather, I think, in opposition to the amendment which was moved by the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder, and in disapproval of my remarks thereon, than by way of expression of their own views, that the votes were recorded by a small majority last Saturday. I am sure it was not the wish of that majority that licenses for hay, wood, straw, and coal should form the subjects of debate before a Standing Committee, that in all these cases opinions should be recorded in shorthand and the proceedings reported to the Commissioners as they would have to be and published. There are no less than 343 woodyards in Calcutta, and every one of these has to take out a license. The power of licensing wood godowns is vested in the Commissioners; and as I tried to explain last Saturday, but failed to convey to hon'ble members, the result is that the licensing of these warehouses for wood, hay, straw, coal, rags, bamboos, tallow, and wax is dealt with as routine work by the Chairman. There is a section of the Act, which I thought would have been present in the minds of hon'ble members, that vests in the Chairman the powers of the Commissioners subject to control in meeting; therefore the business is done with expedition when routine matters are left to the "Commissioners." But if such routine matters are to be made over to the Standing Committee, I say surely that you will waste a great deal of time. The fact was remarked upon by Your Honour in the Resolution on last-year's Administration Report of the Calcutta Municipality that there are no less than 280 meetings of the Commissioners either in Committee or in general or special meeting last year—more meetings than there are working days or as many. It is now proposed to add another Committee, which would have to deal with the licenses of 343 wood warehouses, 86 straw warehouses, 20 bamboo warehouses, 26 coal warehouses and 10 tallow and wax warehouses, and 111 jute warehouses. Therefore, I regret, Sir, that this motion, which has been somewhat suddenly brought forward, could not have been postponed until next Saturday. I venture to hope that, if this motion be lost now, it will not be a bar to a proposal being brought forward next Saturday which will restore the work to a reasonable groove. For these reasons I must record my opinion against the amendment."

The Hon'ble MR. ALLEN said:—"It appears to me that there is some misapprehension about the learned Advocate-General's amendment, and that it is absolutely unnecessary. It is perfectly true that the Commissioners, acting under the powers conferred upon them by Act II of 1888, have the right of controlling in meeting all special Committees, and also their Chairman, when they deal with matters provided for in that Act; but surely this Bill is quite outside anything covered by Act II of 1888. It provides for a special service for a special purpose, and it throws the responsibility of granting certain licenses on the Chairman of the Commissioners of Calcutta. I cannot conceive that under those general powers of Act II of 1888, the Commissioners would have any power to interfere with their Chairman when he acts under the authority of this Bill on a business totally outside anything dealt with in Act II of 1888. Then we have a section, No. 9, allowing the Commissioners, with the consent of the Chairman, to appoint a Special Committee to exercise the powers which by this Bill are given to the Chairman. Suppose that an Act for the prevention of contagious diseases throws on the Chairman the functions of visitor to a lock hospital, could it be pretended that the Commissioners in meeting were entitled to control their Chairman in the discharge of his duty as visitor? Just as little right have they to control him in the discharge of his functions under this Act. Such being the case, the proceedings of the Special Committee appointed with the consent of the Chairman, and called into existence to discharge the functions thrown upon him, are just as much beyond the control of the Commissioners as the Chairman himself would be in the exercise of those powers. The Special Committee merely takes the place of the Chairman. Therefore, it appears to me, and I understand that the learned Advocate-General is disposed to hold the same opinion, that the amendment which he has now brought forward in no way alters the law, and that it is merely brought forward for the sake of obviating a baseless claim which might otherwise be made."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE in reply said:—"Sir, the Hon'ble Mr. Allen has correctly appreciated the motives which led me to propose this amendment, and I regret to find myself in this matter not in accord with the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill. I think he has not correctly appreciated the position. As far as I understand the Bill now before the Council, there are special duties imposed on the Chairman of the Commissioners under sections 5, 6, 7, and 8. These are, as it appears to me, outside the powers which the Chairman of the Commissioners exercises under the Calcutta Municipal Consolidation Act. But coming to know that there is a contention, which has now been emphasized in this Council, that these powers are to be taken to be subject to the general provisions of the Municipal Act, it occurred to me that it is desirable to place before the Council such an amendment as should prevent such a question being raised. In my opinion there will not be taken away by my amendment any of the powers which the Municipal Commissioners now possess. It does not appear to me that they could contend, regard being had to the language of the Municipal Act, that by exercising the powers vested in him by this Bill for the granting or refusal of licenses, the Chairman would be exercising the powers of the Commissioners as defined in the Municipal Act; or that the Special Committee appointed under section 9, with the consent of the Chairman, to exercise the powers and the discretion of the Chairman under this Act, would be a Committee within the meaning of the Municipal Act. But I think it is desirable, when one finds that such questions may arise and may cause debate, to set the matter at rest by positive enactment. The proposed amendment in this view makes no reference to Act II of 1888 or to the Mufassal Municipal Act. I move it simply to give effect to what I for one understand to be the view taken by this Council that, when a Special Committee exercises the powers of the Chairman under this Act, their action is not a matter which can or ought to be brought before the Commissioners in meeting. Had I thought that the matter stood as the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill has suggested, namely, the removal of powers possessed by the Commissioners in meeting, I should myself have postponed this amendment until the matter had been placed before hon'ble members of Council. It is because I understood, and still understand, that there is not that question involved in this amendment, that I now bring forward this amendment."

The Motion being put, the Council divided:—

Ayes 6.

The Hon'ble Mr. Playfair.
The Hon'ble Mr. Wallis.
The Hon'ble Mr. Lambert.
The Hon'ble Mr Risley.
The Hon'ble Mr. Allen.
The Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe.

Noes 6.

The Hon'ble Maharajah Raveneshwar Prosad Sing Bahadur.
The Hon'ble Maulvi Syed Fazl Imam, Khan Bahadur.
The Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder.
The Hon'ble Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar.
The Hon'ble Mr. Lee.
The Hon'ble Mr. Cotton.

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"The votes of the Council, excluding myself, are equal. It is therefore incumbent on me to vote. The reason why I give my vote with the ayes is that it seems quite clear from what has fallen from the Hon'ble the Legal Remembrancer and the Hon'ble the Advocate-General that the effect of the amendment is merely to set at rest a possible interpretation of the law which is not the right interpretation; and we thereby save the public and the municipality from unnecessary legal proceedings and contentions."

The Hon'ble President having recorded his vote with the Ayes, the Motion was carried.

The HON'BLE MR. LEE said:—The question I wish to ask is, has the notice of amendment moved by the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder with reference to section 10, concerning which the Hon'ble Advocate-General and the Hon'ble the Legal Remembrancer have notices of motion on the paper, been withdrawn? I ask this, because I do not find it in the list of business, and without that amendment being before us, the Council is in a position in which it cannot, if so minded, express an opinion that the intentions of the Select Committee should be carried out. If both the Hon'ble Mr. Woodroffe and the Hon'ble Mr. Allen's amendments are lost, what would be the result? Can we then vote on the proposal of the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder, which is not in the list of business, and which was not voted upon at the last meeting, and of the withdrawal of which we have not received notice?

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"I understand from the Secretary that the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder's motion, which was postponed at the last meeting for consideration of an amendment which the Hon'ble Mr. Allen adumbrated, and which he had not formulated, has not been withdrawn. Therefore, if the amendments of the Hon'ble Mr. Allen and the Hon'ble the Advocate-General are lost, I shall be prepared to put the amendment of the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE, by leave of the Council, withdrew the motion of which he had given notice that for the first paragraph of section 10, the following be substituted:—

'The annual fee payable in respect of any license shall not exceed ten per centum per annum on the value of the warehouse as it is assessed to the payment of the municipal taxes, less five per centum on the original outlay incurred in respect of the means and appliances therein or appertaining thereto for preventing or extinguishing fire, and less the annual expenditure incurred in or about the repairing, adding to, maintaining and working the same. Such annual expenditure to be taken to be the expenditure incurred in or about such repairing, adding to, maintaining and working during the preceding years.'

He said:—"I was induced by some observations which fell from hon'ble members opposite on the last occasion to bring forward this amendment, but I have since discovered from figures laid before me that there would be no relief whatever given to those proprietors of warehouses who have expended money on fire-extinguishing appliances, if only 5 per cent. were allowed on such expenditure."

The Hon'ble MR. ALLEN said:—"From what has fallen from the Hon'ble the Advocate-General, and from what I learn from the gentleman who represents the commercial interests of Calcutta, I understand that the practical effect of this amendment will be almost nothing, and it is therefore only on the ground of theoretical propriety that I bring forward the proposal which stands in my name. The hon'ble member opposite, on the last occasion, proposed to make 5 per cent. the allowance to be deducted from the outlay on appliances for extinguishing fires with which jute presses and warehouses are furnished. But as some expense may be incurred of a recurring nature in keeping the original block in repair, and also in providing the means of working those appliances, I then draw a distinction between fixed outlay and recurring expenses, and in accordance with your suggestion, Sir, this amendment has been formulated, and I now leave it to the Council. The following is the amendment I propose:—

'The annual fee payable in respect of any license shall not exceed ten per centum per annum on the annual value of the warehouse as it is assessed to the payment of the municipal taxes, less the annual outlay (including five per centum on the first cost of all fire-engines, pumps and other appliances) incurred in respect of the means for preventing and extinguishing fires.'

The Hon'ble MR. PLAYFAIR said:—"I think some misconception exists regarding the cost of private fire-extinguishing appliances in relation to the municipal assessment of properties; and that, if the providing of such appliances is to be encouraged, section 10 must stand as it had been drafted by the Select Committee.

"I find that 14 of the more important press-houses, representing a capital valuation of about 62½ lakhs of rupees, and with a municipal assessment of Rs. 3,12,050, are equipped with fire-extinguishing appliances costing Rs. 99,006. If this latter sum of Rs. 99,006 is to be deducted from the municipal assessment, it is probable that three of the smaller press-houses might be reduced in taxation to the extent of Rs. 480 per annum. The remainder and larger press-houses would receive no benefit. But if the value of the fire-extinguishing appliances is to be deducted from the capital valuation of 62½ lakhs of rupees, as we suggested at the last meeting of the Council, not one of the 14 press-houses will obtain any relief in taxation on account of having fire-extinguishing appliances of its own, and each may be taxed Rs. 750, making a total of Rs. 10,020. Likewise, as 5 per cent. of the value of these appliances would represent a very small sum, the deduction of this amount from the municipal assessment before ascertaining the tax to be levied for the fire-brigade, would be of no advantage. The amendments before the Council would therefore do away with the benefit intended to be obtainable by those who protect themselves and their neighbours in having appliances of their own for the purpose of controlling fires. On the other hand, if the cost of the fire-extinguishing appliances were to be deducted from the municipal assessment, some of the smaller press companies might reap some benefit; for, in instances, such cost represents a larger percentage on the municipal assessment of these smaller works than is the cost of appliances at the larger works in relation to the municipal assessment of the larger works.

It is probable that some of the smaller press-house companies having appliances of their own may be relieved of taxation to the extent of 1 to 1½ per cent. of the municipal assessment by the provisions of section 10 as it stands. These are the persons to whom I referred on a previous occasion as likely to be taxed to the extent of 6 per cent. of the municipal assessment; while their more influential neighbours in the trade may be called upon to pay only one and a half per cent. under the proposed system of differential taxation. The claims of the smaller trader may, in this respect, merit the consideration of the Council. I understand it to be the intention of the Legislature that all traders in hazardous goods should be encouraged to minimise the risk of fire within their premises, by adopting methods for the prevention and the control of fires, and that section 10 was drafted by the Select Committee with this object. The amendments now before the Council would stultify this intention. The hon'ble member, who proposed a similar amendment at the last sitting of the Council, feared lest an owner of a hazardous article might become exempt from taxation in having fire-extinguishing appliances of greater capital value than the municipal assessment of his premises, and I ask why should he not be exempt? Why should the owner of a large work having a small godown holding, for instance, tar, or tallow, or resin, or any other article specified in clause (9) of section 3, be troubled and further burdened with the fire-brigade tax, when he keeps on his premises fire-brigade appliances capable of protecting the whole of his works, and fit to douse this single godown at a moment's notice?

"It is evident to my mind, Sir, that if the provision of private fire-extinguishing appliances is to merit reduction in taxation, section 10 must stand as it has been presented by the Select Committee."

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER said:—"I cannot support the amendment which has been proposed by the Hon'ble Mr. Allen, for if it is carried, it will add a great deal to the complications which already exist in the working of the Bill. In addressing the Council on the last occasion, I stated that it would be reasonable to allow such warehouses deductions from the annual assessment of their premises of 5 per cent. on the cost of the outlay for appliances for extinguishing fires. It is now sought to add to that 5 per cent. the outlay incurred in respect of the means of preventing and extinguishing fires. If this amendment is allowed to be introduced in the Bill, the result will certainly be this: somebody would have to decide what is reasonable and what is not reasonable outlay for the particular warehouse. There is nothing in the Bill to indicate who would decide that. Suppose a particular house chooses to expend Rs. 100 a month, or Rs. 1,200 a year, for the expenses of keeping up the appliances, who will decide whether such expenses are reasonable or not reasonable for the purpose? Then, again, there would be nothing in the Act to give the Commissioners power to enquire into the subject of the outlay by each warehouse. The result would be that the Commissioners would be placed in a position which would compel them to accept whatever statement of outlay may be furnished to them by the owners of warehouses, and to deduct whatever amount they may choose to pay from the annual assessment. I venture to think, Sir, that it will be complicating the Act to a very great extent if a general provision like this be introduced, namely, that in addition to 5 per cent. on the cost of all fittings, &c., the owners of warehouses shall be allowed to deduct the annual outlay which they will incur in keeping up the appliances. I cannot therefore support the amendment of the Hon'ble Mr. Allen; and when the proper time comes I will bring in my original motion, the further consideration of which was postponed at the last meeting."

The Hon'ble Mr. LEE said:—I should have much pleasure in supporting the amendment of the hon'ble Mr. Allen's motion were it not that a better one is coming forward in that of the hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder. I understand that the only difference between the two is that the hon'ble Mr. Allen's amendment will allow a deduction for what are called recurring expenses of an uncertain nature and amount. The result of passing this amendment would be the reverse of what was intended when the idea was adumbrated. It will have the effect of throwing more taxation on jute warehouses than they have now. That is my opinion as to how it would actually work out. That, as the Council is aware, I do not think would be in itself inequitable, but it would be at the cost of a greater inequity. Difficulties would occur in respect of straw depôts, hay depôts, and wood depôts, when the calculation came to be made regarding the license fee payable, as to what deduction should be allowed for recurring expenses for the prevention of fires. In jute warehouses it would doubtless be decided that a portion of their establishment engaged in the general work of the warehouse should be charged to the maintenance and supervision of the fire-appliances A certain percentage of the establishment would be so charged. The same principle would have to be applied when we come to timber yards and straw depôts. It is the practice in almost all straw depôts and timber yards to keep a certain number of ghurrahs of water. Somebody has to keep them filled with water, and it will be urged before the Standing Committee with considerable force that a share of the establishment of each timber yard and straw depôt should be debited to recurring expenses for the prevention of fire. Now under the Bill a sum of Rs. 5,679 will be collected from 343 depôts, and that comes to about Rs. 17 a year from each on the average. One chaukidar or other servant will get from Rs. 6 to Rs. 10 a month, the least amount, and it will be a very small proportion of his pay that will have to be debited to the prevention of fire to wipe out the whole of these fees now recovered or recoverable under the Bill from wood depôts. The same would be the result as to straw depôts, and the same result as regards other warehouses; and what could not be recovered from them would have to be recovered from jute warehouses up to 50 per cent. of the cost of the fire-brigade. The hon'ble the Advocate-General shakes his head, and I am at a loss to see why. The Bill says distinctly that the Municipal Commissioners can recover from warehouses of all kinds 50 per cent. of the cost of the fire-brigade. If, then, hay, wood, straw and other warehouses contribute nothing, it seems to follow as a matter of course that the 50 per cent. will all be subscribed by jute warehouses. I think that would not in itself be inequitable, but I see no reason why other warehouses, which were before paying Rs 13,000 a year, should only pay Rs. 8,000 under this Bill, while it would be more inequitable still that they should be exempted altogether. So that for practical reasons I would much prefer the amendment which is about to be moved by the hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder, and for that reason I shall vote against the amendment of the hon'ble Mr Allen.

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE said:—"As already indicated from what I said when I asked for leave to withdraw the amendment which stood in my name, I find myself unable to support the Hon'ble Mr. Allen's amendment; and I wish to explain a little more in detail why I do so. I believe it will be found that when this section came before the Council on the last occasion, the proceedings which then took place, and which led to the Hon'ble Mr. Allen's formulating this amendment, showed that there was some considerable misunderstanding as to what the meaning of the section is. I gathered that some of the hon'ble members opposite supposed that from the amount of the annual license-fee it was intended to take the whole of the value incurred in respect of the appliances for preventing and extinguishing fires; whereas the section does not do so. Section 10, as I read it, provides that, from the annual value, as it is assessed to municipal rates, there shall be taken the outlay incurred on such appliances, and that upon the difference there shall be assessed a rate not exceeding 10 per cent.

"I have in my hand the details of the largest press-houses which were referred to by the Hon'ble Mr. Playfair, and from a perusal of these it will be seen that if, as suggested by the Hon'ble Mr. Allen in this amendment, there be only taken from the amount of the license-fee 5 per cent. on the first cost of all the fire-engines, &c., incurred in respect of preventing or extinguishing fires, not one large press-house or warehouse in this City will derive any advantage from the cost incurred in providing such appliances for protecting his premises from fire, and in so doing, protecting his neighbours; whereas if the Bill stands as it does at present, and as it left the hands of the Select Committee, there will be an advantage given to the smaller warehouses. I will illustrate my meaning by the figures to which I referred. Messrs. Ralli Brothers are one of the largest press-owners in this City, and the municipal assessment on their premises is Rs. 45,000. That is the annual value, and on that the rate is struck; and but for the fact that this Council has fixed the limit of Rs. 750 than which there shall not be a larger license-fee paid, they would have to pay a fee of Rs. 4,500 a year. Those Merchants have, however, laid out on fire-extinguishing appliances no less a sum than Rs. 36,640. Deducting that sum of Rs. 36,640 from Rs. 45,000, there remains Rs. 8,360; and if the Rs. 750 limit had not been passed, they would have had to pay a fee of Rs. 830. The consequence is that this firm does not gain one single anna by the great service which they have rendered to the community at large in protecting themselves from the risk of fire. Practically, they have expended a sum equal to the annual value of the premises, and yet they gain no advantage. The next on the list is the Union Press Company, whose municipal assessment is Rs. 34,100. They have laid out Rs. 9,000 in fire-extinguishing appliances, the balance is Rs. 25,100, and they also are only to be protected by the Rs. 750 limit. The Strand Bank Press Company has laid out in fire-extinguishing appliances Rs. 7,500 upon an annual assessment of Rs. 33,500, leaving a balance of Rs. 26,000; they therefore also gain nothing. The Golabarry Press, which is in the hands of Messrs. Finlay, Muir and Company, have expended Rs. 3,500 as against a valuation of Rs. 24,000; they, therefore, also would gain nothing. It is not until you come to the smaller presses that any advantage is gained by leaving the Bill as it is; and consequently no advantage will be secured if the Hon'ble Mr. Allen's amendment were carried.

"Take, for instance, Watson's Press, the assessment upon which is Rs. 12,800, and the fire-extinguishing appliances cost Rs. 7,000. That reduces the assessable value to Rs. 5,800, and they would therefore gain an advantag of Rs. 170 per annum. The Canal Press has a municipal assessment of Rs. 12,400, with an outlay of Rs. 7,500, thus reducing the assessable value to Rs. 4,900, and they would therefore only pay Rs. 490 for the fire-brigade, and gain Rs. 260. Nasmith's Press, with an assessment of Rs. 12,000, has laid out Rs. 5,000, thereby reducing the assessable value to Rs. 7,000; they, therefore, obtain relief to the extent of Rs. 50. Similarly, as I understand, when you go down lower in the grade, the advantage of the Bill as it left the Select Committee will be felt by those to whom I understand hon'ble members generally are in favour of granting relief, namely the smaller men.

"There is not a man out of the fourteen largest press owners who gains the sum of one rupee even by the deduction from the total assessable value of the total amount laid out on appliances. It is only when you come down to the smaller men that any advantage is obtained. If you demolish the provision of section 10 as it stands in the Bill, and deduct instead 5 per cent. on the annual outlay and recurring expenses, there will be no relief gained at all; and it will come to this that, in the opinion of this Council, there is a premium held out to those who lay out nothing in self-protection, and by self-protection protect also their neighbours; whereas every encouragement should be given to persons in this City who, by protection of their own property from fire, afford protection to their neighbours. I would therefore ask the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill to consider the figures which have been submitted to me.

"It is for these reasons that I find myself unable to support the Hon'ble Mr. Allen's amendment. It is conceived with the best intentions, and I doubt not that to a certain extent it is due to the imperfect information laid before the Council, which gave it the idea that under the Bill, as it stands, the larger presses would get off scott-free. Whereas, I find that such will by no means be the case, and if 5 per cent. upon the outlay only be allowed, even the smaller presses will gain nothing from any expenditure which they may have made upon fire-extinguishing appliances.

"With reference to what has fallen from the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder, it does not seem a reasonable construction of the Bill that the Chairman of the Commissioners or the Special Committee are bound to admit the claim made in regard to the cost of appliances."

The Hon'ble MR. COTTON said:—"I have considered the statement which has been placed in my hands by the learned Advocate-General, but I regret to say it does not impress me so strongly as it has done my hon'ble friend. The reason why this proposed amendment in the Bill would practically have no effect, in the case of these large warehouses, is that they have already gained so enormously by the decision to which the Council arrived at the last meeting of limiting the maximum to be paid by any warehouse to Rs. 750. A warehouse which is now paying Rs. 4,500 a year will, under this Bill, not be liable to pay more than Rs. 750. It is difficult to conceive a greater gain than that short of remitting them from the payment of all license fees altogether. Hon'ble Members will remember that an amendment to strike out of the Bill the limit of Rs. 750 was rejected. If it had been carried, there might have been more cogency in the learned Advocate-General's arguments; but as the Bill stands, they have no effect whatever, because the larger warehouses on behalf of which they were urged are already amply protected by limiting the maximum to Rs. 750. But when we are dealing with the somewhat smaller warehouses. it is then that the provision now proposed would act so unfairly. Assuming a small warehouse to be worth the annual value of Rs. 500, that is to say, that its capitalised value is Rs. 10,000 and the annual value Rs. 500, the assessment upon it would be one-tenth, or Rs. 50 a year. The owner of that warehouse would, if the provision now put forward be passed into law, merely have to spend Rs. 50 towards protection from fire to be exempted from all taxation under the Act. As I read the meaning of the provision, that would be the effect of such an outlay. It is to prevent anomalies of this kind that the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder moved his amendment that 5 per cent. upon the outlay incurred in respect of fire-extinguishing appliances should be deducted, and not that the capital outlay incurred should be deducted. It seems to me that that amendment is a very fair and reasonable one, and I hope the Council will accept it."

The Hon'ble MR. ALLEN in reply said:—"I think it unnecessary for me to take up any time with a reply. The whole discussion is entirely academical; it has travelled so utterly into cloud land that one would think it was in the island of Laputa it was being held. Practically, the charge on the larger warehouses is a flea-bite. They are so amply protected by the Rs. 750 limit that even if a much larger percentage were deducted, it would have no effect. In the Hon'ble Advocate-General's speech there was a constant confusion between the value which is subject to assessment and the capitalised value. The annual value of Messrs. Ralli Brothers' Press-house, for instance, is Rs. 45,000; the cost of appliances Rs. 35,000, which should be deducted not from the annual value, but from the capitalised value. So that even if ten, twenty or a much larger percentage is allowed, there will be no result to any of the fifteen large European Press-houses."

The Motion was put and negatived.

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT called upon the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder to move the amendment, the further consideration of which was postponed at the last meeting of the Council, and at the same time mentioned that the Hon'ble the Advocate-General, with His Honour's permission, proposed to bring forward an alternative amendment by substituting the words '10 per cent.' for the words '5 per cent.' in the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder's amendment.

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER moved that, in line 5 of section 10, the words "five per cent. on" be inserted after the word "less."

He said:—"The reasons for this amendment I laid before the Council on the last occasion, and I do not think there is any necessity for repeating them. I shall only make one remark, namely, that from the discussions which have taken place to-day on the amendment of the Hon'ble Mr. Allen, it appears quite clear that by reason of the maximum limit of Rs. 750, the provisions of this section, if it is amended as suggested by me, would have no application to those warehouses which would, but for that limit, have to pay a license fee of more than Rs. 750 on a 10 per cent. rate on the annual value; because in their case, whatever deductions might be made on account of the provision of fire-extinguishing appliances, the result would make no difference to them; as in the case put by the learned Advocate-General, of Messrs. Ralli Brothers, where their press-house is assessed at the annual value of Rs. 45,000, and the entire cost of the outlay for appliances is Rs. 36,640. There, whether you deduct 5 per cent., or 20 per cent., or 30 per cent., it would make no difference, because, under the maximum limit, they would not have to pay more than Rs. 750. According to my amendment, if a limit of Rs. 750 was not fixed, the result in their case would be this: five per cent. on Rs. 36,640 would be in round numbers Rs. 1,830, the amount to be deducted from Rs. 45,000, and on the balance of Rs. 43,170, a tax at 10 per cent. would have to be paid, amounting to Rs. 4,317; but under the maximum rule they would not be taxed more than Rs. 750. Therefore, whether you take a percentage upon the value of the fire-appliances, or allow a deduction of the whole of that value, it would make no difference to them. But in other cases, where the amount of the tax to be paid would be under the limit of Rs. 750, there, whether you deduct a percentage on the cost of fire-extinguishing appliances, or the whole of such cost, it would make every difference.

"For, as in the case put by the Hon'ble Mr. Cotton, suppose the annual value of a warehouse were Rs. 500, its capitalised value being Rs. 10,000, it would not be too much to spend Rs. 500 on the appliances, and if the whole of such sum were deducted from the annual value, there would be no tax to pay. It would be against all principle to deduct the whole sum from the annual value, because you would have to do it year after year, and so, by spending the sum of Rs. 500 once, the warehouse would be exempted from all payment of tax whatever; not that he would be allowed to deduct it once, but you would have to do it year after year. I do not think it was ever the intention that a person who spent in providing fire-extinguishing appliances a sum equal to the value of the annual assessment should be exempted from the payment of all tax for ever. It would make no difference on the larger warehouses whose license fee exceeds Rs. 750, but it would certainly make a great deal of difference to those whose fees were less than that maximum sum. Therefore, a percentage only can be taken, and I do not think 5 per cent. is a very unreasonable percentage to allow. In the case of the small warehouse put by the Hon'ble Mr. Cotton, a reasonable reduction, which the proprietor can expect, is 5 per cent. on Rs. 500, that is Rs. 25; and the tax would have to be assessed on Rs. 500 minus Rs. 25, which would be Rs. 475."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE said :—"There is no doubt that, as the matter stands, it has been made clear, from what has fallen in the preceding debate, that large jute presses will gain no advantage whatever from large sums of money spent in providing fire-extinguishing appliances, and for that reason I shall be obliged to record my vote against the amendment before the Council. I do not know whether I shall be in order, in reference to what has fallen from the President, in bringing forward an alternative amendment that, instead of 5 per cent., a deduction be made of 10 per cent. on the cost of fire-extinguishing appliances."

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said :—"I will ask the Hon'ble the Advocate-General to bring forward the amendment which he proposes, and I would ask the House to vote on both the amendments simultaneously, unless hon'ble members consider that course inconvenient."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE then moved by way of amendment that "ten per cent." be substituted for "five per cent."

He said :—"I hold in my hands a statement which was furnished to the Select Committee either by the Hon'ble Mr. Lee, or the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, showing what would be the reduction on account of fire-appliances if the reduction were taken at 5 per cent. upon the cost, and what does the Council suppose this extraordinary concession amounts to? In the whole of Calcutta it will amount to Rs. 620, and if baled jute were further excluded, there would be an additional Rs. 758-8-9. Therefore, if the amendment of the hon'ble member is carried, then it comes to the question whether the deduction should be 5 per cent. or 10 per cent. Ten per cent. would give a certain measure of relief—and, as I understand, a material measure of relief—to the smaller warehouses, but nothing whatever to the larger warehouses and presses; still, in the interests of those smaller warehouses, I venture to put it to the Council that it will be proper to make an allowance of 10 per cent. on the outlay for appliances for preventing and extinguishing fires and not 5 per cent."

The Hon'ble MR. LEE said :—I will vote with the Hon'ble the Advocate-General, as I think his amendment will have the effect of relieving the smaller rather than the larger warehouses.

The Hon'ble DR. MAHENDRA LAL SIRCAR said :—"In my opinion every encouragement should be given to warehouses for making provision for extinguishing fires, and as I myself intended to bring forward the amendment which has been moved by the learned Advocate-General, I will support his motion."

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER withdrew his Motion.

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE'S Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. COTTON said:—"Sir, with your permission obtained at the last meeting of the Council, I have the honour to move the amendment which stands against my name in respect of section 12 of the Bill. It is necessary for me briefly to explain the history of this section. As the law now stands, and as the Council are aware, licenses are granted by the Municipal Commissioners, and the same law which we are now repealing empowers the Municipal Commissioners to cancel or suspend the licenses of any warehouses. The complete power of cancelling and suspending licenses as well as of granting them, rests under the existing law with the Municipal Commissioners. The power of granting licenses has been modified in accordance with the provisions of this Bill. The Bill proposes a further modification in respect of the procedure to be followed in suspending or cancelling such licenses—a very much less important matter, I may say. As a fact, I do not believe that during the many years the Municipal Commissioners have administered this provision of the law, there has been any case in which they have cancelled a license. If there have been any such cases, they have been very few and far between, and this I know cannot be one of the matters in which the members of the Council would allege that the Commissioners have abused their powers. But as the power of granting licenses has been taken from them, it follows that the procedure for cancelling and suspending licenses must also be modified.

'Under the existing law' the Commissioners have the power of cancelling or suspending licenses in respect of which one or more of the conditions under which the license is held appear to have been broken, and also if the owner of a warehouse neglects to give notice of a change of occupation. And so it came to pass that, when the present Bill was being drafted and modifications in the procedure were agreed on, it was enacted that, whenever the Chairman of the Commissioners receives credible information that any of the conditions to which the license of a warehouse may be subject has been broken, he may apply in writing to the Magistrate, and, after proving his case and satisfying the Magistrate that such cancelment or suspension is necessary to prevent danger or injury, the Magistrate will then try the case judicially and decide whether the license shall be suspended or cancelled or not. But, Sir, I apprehend that in the Select Committee the fact was lost sight of that the conditions of the license are materially changed. Under the existing law a number of conditions are imposed which find no place in the present Bill, with the exception of two only: one is that a warehouse shall be liable to inspection; the other is that the annual fee shall be payable in respect of it. The other conditions have found their place as substantive offences to which penalties are attached under Chapter III of the Act; while one or two of the conditions have been relegated to the category of details to be specified in the application for a license, and if they are furnished in a way considered unsatisfactory by the Chairman, the application may be refused. There is no doubt that the first of the two conditions which remain in the Bill, namely, that the warehouses should be open to inspection, is a very important one; and that, if broken, it should render the license liable to be suspended or cancelled, as the case may be. But there are also other offences which may be committed by the owners of warehouses, such, for instance, as the offence specified in section 19 of the Bill, which imposes a penalty for preparing inflammable substances and exposing them on the roof of a building—one of the principal causes of fires in jute warehouses. If an offence of that character is committed, then it is eminently desirable that the license should be cancelled. This was one of the conditions under the old Act. It is no longer a condition, but is provided for as an offence with a penalty; and it seems to me that, in respect of this and other offences which may be committed by the owner of a warehouse, the Chairman of the Commissioners should be competent to move the Magistrate to adopt the procedure laid down in the Bill under this Act for offences committed under Chapter III.

"I may take this opportunity of drawing the attention of the Council to the fact that the duty of instituting prosecutions under the law is one which no longer rests with the Chairman of the Commissioners, or with the Commissioners in meeting. At present, under the existing law, the Inspector of Jute Warehouses is a servant of the Corporation. He is the executive officer responsible for seeing that the conditions of the license are complied with, and for bringing to notice offences committed under this Act, and for instituting prosecutions before the Magistrate. At present, therefore, prosecutions are instituted by a subordinate of the Commissioners and with their authority. Under the Bill, as it is drafted by the Select Committee, the Inspecting Officer will be an officer to be appointed by the Commissioner of Police. He shall be a member of the Fire-brigade, but shall not be a member of any Police Force. He will, however, be under the orders and at the disposal of the Commissioner of Police. The executive control of warehouses passes from the Chairman of the Corporation to the Commissioner of Police. And therefore it is that this section 12, as proposed to be amended by me, is so drafted that, whenever the Chairman of the Commissioners receives credible information that a condition of the license has been broken, or that an offence is committed, he is authorised to lay this information before a Magistrate with a view to applying for the cancelment or suspension of the license. This information would, in the first instance, be communicated to the Chairman by the Commissioner of Police through the Jute Inspector, and the Chairman will then be in a position to move the Magistrate to take the judicial procedure contemplated by section 12 for suspending or cancelling a license.

"With this explanation, Sir, I have the honour to move that in sub-section (l) of section 12, after the words 'has been broken by the holder thereof' the words 'or that any offence for which a penalty is prescribed under Chapter III of this Act has been committed by any holder of a license' be inserted."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE said:—"I rise to support the Bill as it left the hands of the Select Committee. The conclusion at which they arrived was not obtained without considerable discussion and as much consideration as the members of the Select Committee could bring to bear upon it; and the conclusion to which they arrived was that the matters and things dealt with in the clauses relating to procedure are not matters which justified the suspension or cancellation of licenses, but are properly and sufficiently dealt with by imposing pecuniary penalties. The penalties, if hon'ble members will take the trouble to look at the Bill, are by no means light In truth, the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill desires to impose a double punishment; so that persons who commit any of the offences for which penalties are prescribed would be liable, in addition to those very serious pecuniary results, to cancellation or suspension of their licenses. The hon'ble member's proposed amendment is, I take it, intended to include offences under section 17, neglecting to notify change in occupation of warehouse; under section 18, giving false information respecting a license; under section 19, to which the hon'ble member referred, where the owner or occupier of a warehouse preparing or causing to be prepared or dried any inflammable substance on the roof of a warehouse is liable to Rs. 50; under section 21, using warehouse as a residence; under section 22, for bringing or using matches or artificial lights, and under section 23, smoking in a warehouse—offences which were liable to a penalty of Rs. 10. Persons committing any of the above offences would not only be liable to the very serious penalties provided in the Bill, but under the hon'ble member's amendment, be liable to have their licenses cancelled or suspended.

"I venture to submit to the Council that the conclusion arrived at by the Select Committee should not be so materially altered as the hon'ble member proposes to do by his motion. I ask therefore that the Council should uphold the clause as it left the Select Committee. That clause deals with matters in respect of which licenses may be cancelled or suspended. The conditions on which they are held are set out in the license. They are (1) the non-payment of the license fee, and (2) that which goes to the root of the whole matter, namely, the slightest attempt to prevent due and proper inspection by the officer appointed for the purpose. For the breach of these conditions, the Select Committee thought more severe measures should be resorted to, namely, the suspension or cancellation of the license."

THE HON'BLE MR. LEE said:—While I think, sir, that there ought to be some such power as exists now under the Fire-Brigade Act for the revocations of the licenses of habitual offenders, I cannot agree with the hon'ble members in charge of the Bill that the duty of conducting prosecutions should be thrown on the Chairman of the Commissioners. There is no provision in this Bill to enable him to meet the expenses of criminal proceedings, and I don't know why they should be met from the general sanitary funds of this city."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE, rose to order, and asked the Hon'ble the President whether it was relevant to the motion whether the expenses of criminal proceedings should fall on the Corporation.

The Hon'ble MR. LEE said that was the reason why he was unable to support the hon'ble mover of the amendment, that it threw upon the Chairman of the Corporation the duty of prosecuting offenders with the view of cancelling their licenses. It has been explained by the hon'ble member in charge of the Bill that the inspection of warehouses has been removed from the hands of the Commissioner to those of the Commissioner of Police. If, then, any prosecutions are to be undertaken, let the Commissioner of Police pay for them.

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"With regard to the call to order by the Hon'ble the Advocate-General, the objection which the Hon'ble Mr. Lee has taken, seems to me to be an objection which he has a right to take, though I hardly see that it applies. If in his opinion the amendment would throw extra expenditure on the Chairman of the Corporation, it seems to me that he is not out of order in taking that objection."

The Hon'ble MR. LEE, continuing, said:—"Yes, Sir, this amendment if passed would throw extra expenses upon the Chairman of the Corporation, the expenses of the law Courts. It would be necessary for him to proceed when offences are committed under Chapter 3 of the Bill. It would occasionally be incumbent upon him to take proceedings under section 12 which he would not have to take as the Bill now reads. I think there is some slight misapprehension, for I am not sure whether I understand the learned Advocate-General right in saying that any person who commits the offences mentioned in sections 17, 18, 19, 21, 22 or 23 will be liable to have his license revoked or suspended. I do not find it so provided anywhere. [The Advocate-General:—"I did not suggest that. I said that if the hon'ble member's amendment be carried it might have that effect."] For this pecuniary reason, then, I record my vote against the motion."

The Hon'ble MR. LAMBERT said:—"It seems to me, as regards the matter which has fallen from the Hon'ble Mr. Lee regarding the cost of prosecutions, that no such cost will fall on the Commissioners. Section 12 merely applies to occasions in which the Chairman of the Commissioners may receive credible information, and that credible information will, I apprehend, be given to him generally by the Inspector of Warehouses. All that would be required of the Chairman of the Commissioners would be to determine, on receipt of information from the Inspector, whether he found it necessary to apply to the Magistrate for an order to suspend or cancel a license. If the information seemed to him to be sufficient, he would instruct the Inspector to apply to the Magistrate, and then the case would be proceeded with. If he considered the information insufficient, no further action would take place.

"As regards the motion now before the Council, it seems to me that section 12 as it now stands limits the class of offences for which a license may be cancelled, to a refusal to admit the Inspecting officer or for declining to pay the annual fee. The probability of the institution of prosecutions on either of these grounds is hardly worth considering. Regarding offences under the penalty clauses, by clause (2) of section 12 it is provided that the Magistrate shall not make an order suspending such license unless he is satisfied that it is necessary to prevent or obviate immediate danger or injury of a serious character. Even the discretion of the Magistrate is fettered by this clause. And it certainly seems to me that the offence for which a penalty is provided in section 19, which has been referred to, may possibly be of so dangerous a character that on a proper representation to the Chairman he might think it necessary that the license be suspended, and the Magistrate in exercising his discretion under clause (2) of section 12 might think it necessary to pass an order to prevent immediate danger. On these grounds I shall support the amendment of the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill."

The Hon'ble MR. PLAYFAIR said:—"This is a section which was very carefully considered by the Select Committee; and I support the section as amended by the Select Committee, and the views set forth by the learned Advocate-General."

The Hon'ble MR. COTTON in reply said:—"I have only a word or two to say in reply. I can sympathise with the feelings of the learnd Advocate-General and of the Hon'ble Mr. Playfair, in desiring to give every protection to the owners of warehouses against having their licenses arbitrarily cancelled. I think, however, that there is very little risk of that in any case, because, as I observed to you just now, I doubt whether there is a record of any license having been cancelled by the Commissioners, but it is possible that the Chairman of the Corporation might desire to cancel a license. In such a case it will obviously be impossible for him to act in an improper way, owing to the extremely elaborate procedure which this Bill lays down. He must make a written statement which is laid before a Magistrate; the Magistrate would then issue a summons to the owner of a warehouse and would then try the case judicially, and even then he would not grant the order applied for by the Chairman unless he is satisfied that it is necessary to do so to prevent immediate danger or injury. I can hardly conceive of a procedure which is more elaborate and more calculated to prevent the arbitrary cancellation or suspension of a license.

"With regard to the financial difficulty to which the Hon'ble Mr. Lee referred, I must say it seems to me to be visionary. Under section 27 of the Bill, which is so drafted as to cover any legitimate charge against the funds of the fire-brigade, if any expense is incurred by the Chairman of the Commissioners in instituting cases under section 12 of the Act, it would legitimately fall on such funds. But I agree with the hon'ble the Commissioner of Police that such charges would be infinitesimal.

"At the suggestion of the President, I will propose a verbal amendment in the Motion I am laying before the Council, by specifying the sections of Chapter III referred to. I would add the words 'or to any offence for which a penalty is prescribed under sections 17, 19, 21, 22 and 23 of this Act has been committed by any holder of a license.'"

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"This is a motion which affects a question belonging to the police or the judicial side of the business, and therefore the restriction I imposed upon myself of not expressing my views as regards any question of imposition or distribution of taxation, does not apply, and I think it well that I should make one or two remarks on the subject. The proposal is, that the penalty which the Select Committee imposed on certain offences, should be considerably enhanced by the addition of the possible suspension or cancellation of the license. In one of these cases (section 17) I observe that the penalty which is provided by the existing law has been reduced from Rs. 100 to Rs. 10, and therefore it would seem as if an enhancement of the penalty would be contrary to the intention of the Select Committee. If, in its discretion, the Select Committee, in addition to the provision that the Magistrate may impose a penalty of so many rupees a day as long as the offence continues, had added a clause that, in the event of the offence being continued or repeated on (say) three occasions, the license may be suspended or cancelled, I should have seen no objection to that legislation. But as the Select Committee have not done that, and as no new or strong reason has been given in favour of the amendment, I fall back on the canon that the general rule we should follow is, that where no new light or no new considerations have been brought forward, it is well to support the Bill as it has been amended by the Select Committee; and therefore I am opposed to the Motion."

The original Motion being put, the Council divided:—

So the Motion was negatived.

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE, by leave of the Council, withdrew the motions of which he had given notice, that in subsection (l) of section 12 after the words "upon the holder of the license," the words "and in the case of an alleged breach of any of the conditions of the license" be inserted; also that after the words "be cancelled or suspended" the words "and in the case of the alleged commission by such holder of any such offence to show cause why the penalty prescribed for such offence should not be imposed upon him" be inserted, and that after the words "and may also" the words "in the first of the cases above mentioned" be also inserted.

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER moved that in sections 22 and 23, after the word "warehouse" the words "used for the pressing or screwing of jute or cotton" be inserted.

He said:—"If you read sections 22 and 23 with section 21, it would appear that there is a prohibition against using as a residence a warehouse for jute or cotton only. The question is, whether it is possible to use a warehouse as a human residence without taking therein matches or artificial lights, unless duly and thoroughly protected, or without smoking therein. I submit that, if it is intended that a warehouse other than a jute or cotton warehouse should be allowed to be used as a human residence, then those restrictions should not be put upon them. But if that is not the intention, then the words which I propose should be inserted in this section."

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE said:—"As a matter of fact I believe the words to which the hon'ble member has referred were omitted by mistake, and it appears to me that there is full reason for the suggestion he has made. But the question arises whether the omission is covered by the definition of 'warehouse' in section 3, clause 9, which is as follows:—'Warehouse means any building or place used for the storing or pressing or keeping of jute, cotton, oil, resin, varnish, pitch, tar, coir, hay, straw, rags, tallow, ship-chandlery, wood, or other inflammable substance or thing for the time being subject to the operation of this Act." And there may be a question whether a warehouse which is used for nine months of a year only as a warehouse should be subject to any penalties. I would suggest that the words of section 21 be used in sections 22 and 23, by which a penalty can only be levied if at the time of the commission of the act jute or cotton be stored therein."

The Hon'ble DR. MAHENDRA LAL SIRCAR said:—"If this Bill is passed, then hay and straw depôts will become warehouses. I know for certain, that the abominable hookah has been the cause of many dangerous fires, and I think that hookahs should not be allowed to be introduced into warehouses."

The Hon'ble BABU GONESH CHUNDER CHUNDER in reply said:—"There is no law to prevent artificial lights and matches from being used in hay and straw godowns, and it will be very hard to introduce such a provision into the Bill. Probably the owners do not live in them; but other people live there. The number of warehouses under the Act has been increased to a great extent, and it will be hard not to allow their being used as residences."

The Hon'ble MR LEE asked if he would be out of order if he proposed to add "straw and hay" to the motion. It would be in accordance with the precedent followed in the case of 'oil.'

The Hon'ble THE PRESIDENT said:—"I wish to point out to the Council the extreme inconvenience of springing upon the Council motions of this kind. I think I shall not be going beyond my proper position if I ask the Council seriously to consider, before coming to this Chamber, what they are going to move, so that it should be possible for them to hand in in writing the motion which they intend to propose before the discussion begins. In this case, two of the speakers have generally declared their unwillingness to include hay and straw depôts in these punitive provisions, and now one member desires that they should be included. I think it very inconvenient that such amendments should be brought forward in the middle of the discussion, when it was in the power of hon'ble members to bring them forward earlier, so that they might be placed on the List. I think it right to decline to allow this motion to be put before the House."

The Motions were put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. WOODROFFE, by leave of the Council, withdrew the motions of which he had given notice, that in section 25 the words "shall rateably impose the annual fees payable for licenses under section 10 of this Act upon all warehouses, and" be omitted; also that in line 7, for the word "such" the word "the" be substituted, and that after the word "fees" the words "payable for a license under section 10 of this Act" be inserted.

The Hon'ble MR. WALLIS moved that in line 1 of section 26, for the word "may" the word "shall" be substituted.

He said:—"Although Rule 42 provides that 'amendments shall ordinarily be considered in the order of the clauses to which they respectively relate', I would beg, in moving the first amendment which stands in my name, to be allowed to refer to the other two amendments which I am to move, and which appear in the same section of the Bill. The object which it is desired to attain, is identical in each case; and the amendments will of course only be put to the Council in the order in which they appear on the List of Business.

"The first amendment, which I have the honour to move, is in line 1 of section 26, that for the word 'may' the word 'shall' be substituted.

"The objects which is desired to attain by the amendments, which I have the honour to move, are that the half per cent. rate on bastis and the one-eighth per cent. rate on the annual value of all houses and lands assessed under the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act of 1884 and the Calcutta Municipal Consolidation Act II of 1888, as provided in the Bill, shall be levied in full, and shall form the basis of taxation for the up-keep of the fire-brigade.

"In support of this view I would like to refer to the Report of the Select Committee, in which the following remarks occur:—

'In view of the primary responsibility imposed upon the Commissioners, we have, by section 26 of the amended Bill, while exempting the owners or occupiers of a warehouse licensed under the Bill from further liability, empowered the Commissioners to levy the three following rates:—

(a) a two and-a-half per cent. rate assessed on buildings or places used for the storage of inflammable substances, which the Government may declare liable to the payment of this rate; the amount, however, to be levied in any one case not to exceed Rs. 100:

(b) a half per cent. rate assessed on basti lands:

(c) a general one-eighth per cent. rate on all houses and lands assessed under the Municipal Acts affecting the Municipalities concerned.'

"It will be remembered by the Hon'ble Member in charge of this Bill, and also by the other members of the Select Committee, that at the several meetings when this question of apportioning the mode of differential taxation was considered, on each occasion I pressed that the proper way to proceed was to first decide what portion of the cost of the brigade should be met by the general tax-payer; this, I urged, would give a known quantity, as it would be levied on the rates and taxes, and any balance required should be rateably imposed on the industries coming under the definition of warehouses and other buildings, for the storage of goods of a less inflammable class.

"I hold in my hand, Sir, a paper in original, which I took to several of the meetings of the Select Committee, and which I handed to the Hon'ble Mr. Cotton and to the learned Advocate-General. This paper shows, Sir, that I assumed the cost of the brigade to be a maximum of Rs. 75,000. It suggests:—

	Rs.
'1st.—That a rate of ¼ or 2 annas per cent. should be levied on all houses and lands as they are assessed for municipal taxation, and I took roughly the value of such houses and lands as Rs. 1,80,00,000 which would realize about	22,500
'2nd.—That a rate of ½ or 8 annas per cent. should be levied on all basti lands, which, taken at Rs. 31,16,563, the valuation given by the Hon'ble Mr. Lee on the 19th of December, would realize about	15,000
Total ...	37,500'

"I think, Sir, I may venture to say that it was very much on the lines suggested that the Committee came to a decision as to the form of taxation which should be adopted, and in agreeing to the section of the Bill, which is numbered 26, and to the clauses (b) and (c) of that section, I certainly thought that they could not possibly be construed in any other way; but I find from the statement which was handed to hon'ble members at the meeting of the 4th of February that at the foot of that statement the rate on bastis is taken at 4 annas per cent., and that on pucca buildings at one-and-a-half annas per cent. According to my views, and I think some of my colleagues are of the same opinion, this is wholly contrary to what we anticipated, as we were under the impression that the basis of taxation was to be the charging of a rate of 8 annas per cent. on bastis and a two-anna per cent. rate on the general tax-payer.

"As shown in my original paper, the sum which would be realised from this form of taxation amounted to Rs. 37,500, and this works out very closely if the valuation of bastis and houses given us by the Hon'ble Mr. Cotton are taken. I find the statement shows that bastis are—

	Rs.
Valued at Rs. 31,14,616, which at 8 annas per cent. would realize	15,572
That the valuation of pucca buildings is given at Rs. 1,51,39,953, which at 2 annas per cent. would realize	18,924
To this was added receipts under section 26, clause 1(a) ...	750
Then we have to take receipts from rates levied from Cossipur-Chitpur	500
Ditto ditto from Manicktolla ...	100
Ditto ditto from Howrah ...	1,000
or a total of ...	36,846

as against Rs. 37,500, estimated by me some time ago when the question of taxation was being considered in Select Committee.

"I have taken all the figures given in the statement as correct, and I think the closeness of my estimate and that of the figures just stated shows clearly what was the intention of the Committee; but the statement referred to reverses the order of things, and proposes that only a certain portion of the rate leviable under the Bill on bastis and on the general tax-payer shall be taken, and still leaves the larger share to be borne by the industries coming under the definition of warehouses.

"One of the main objects for which legislation has been resorted to in this instance was the reduction of existing taxation on the jute industry, and for the more equitable distribution of taxation for the upkeep of the brigade. I do not anticipate that the rate of 2 annas per cent. to be levied on the general tax-payer will be objected to by any of the members of this Council, as it has been admitted on all sides that the general public do undoubtedly derive considerable benefit from the brigade. The tax of 8 annas per cent. on bastis is not excessive, considering the danger these places offer, and the difficulty which is experienced in preventing fires occurring in these places from spreading.

"It is perfectly true that the residents of such places belong to the poorest classes, but the proposed taxation is small; and it is better that they should pay a small sum annually for the upkeep of an institution which may some day be the means of saving all the property they possess in the world.

"I was glad to learn from the speech made by my colleague the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder, at the meeting of the Council held on 18th February last, that he, too, read the clauses (b) and (c), as I take them, for, if I understand him rightly, he gave us his reason for voting for an all-round rate that the inhabitants of bastis would only, under that proposal, be called upon to pay a tax equal to a quarter per cent., instead of half per cent., as provided in the Bill. For the reasons stated, I beg to move that in line 1 of section 26, for the word 'may' the word 'shall' be substituted."

The Hon'ble MR. COTTON said:—"It appears to me that this amendment is open to objection on the principle which you yourself, Sir, prominently brought to the notice of the Council a few minutes ago, namely, that it introduces a radical change in the Bill as approved by the Select Committee, and has been introduced into this Council without any new considerations having been urged on behalf of it. If there were no other reason than this, I would ask you to use your influence in rejecting this amendment; for I think, as it is now put by the hon'ble member, this amendment deals very hardly and unfairly by the rate-payers of this city. There is a very wide difference between 'may' and 'shall.'

"The intention of the Select Committee (I speak for myself only, but I understood it to be their general opinion) was that the rates introduced into this Bill should be the maximum rates which might be worked up to on an emergency. I never understood that it was to be compulsory on the Municipal Commissioners to impose these rates either on basti owners or on the general community; and I think it is desirable that the votes of the Council on a matter vitally affecting the interests of the rate-payers of this Metropolis and materially affecting the Municipal Commissioners of the city should not be taken until the Commissioners themselves have had an opportunity of expressing their views on this compulsory taxation or proposed compulsory taxation. They have had every opportunity of commenting on the form of taxation which is proposed by the Bill as drafted by the Select Committee, that is to say, levying a sum up to this rate as a maximum; and it is well known that they are not in favour of it. On that point, I have no sympathy with their objections; but I think that the Commissioners and the rate-payers of this City may strongly object that at a meeting of this Council, without their being aware of the fact, a provision should be passed into law imposing compulsory taxation according to certain limits, which, as I shall show, would effect a very material increase in the burden thrown upon the town. If a half per cent rate is levied on bastis, and one-eighth per cent. on the general community at a maximum, the total will be about Rs. 35,500 in Calcutta alone. I have no data before me to say what the amount will be in Howrah or the Suburbs, but it may reasonably be assumed that it would amount to about Rs. 5,000 more. In other words, the hon'ble member's amendment would impose a compulsory rate of Rs. 40,000 for the maintenance of the fire-brigade, leaving jute and cotton and other warehouses and all miscellaneous receipts to make up the remaining Rs. 20,000 or less required for maintaining the brigade.

"The proposal, in fact, entirely reverses the policy on which this Council has hitherto proceeded. It has hitherto been assumed that the nucleus of the fire-brigade fund should be the fees levied from warehouses as defined in the Bill, which, under the law at present in force, pay a total taxation of more than Rs. 80,000; Rs. 68,000 being levied from jute and cotton warehouses only, and the sum of Rs. 13,000 or Rs. 14,000 from wood, hay, straw, &c., which are now brought under the Act. The Bill, as it at present stands, will greatly relieve both jute warehouses as well as hay and straw depôts which are highly assessed under the present law. The new law, so far as we have approved of this Bill, declares that the fees on such warehouses should not exceed one-half of the total cost of the fire-brigade, that is to say, it would not exceed more than Rs. 30,000 as a maximum. If the change you are now asked to accept is accepted by the Council, it would arbitrarily reduce the amount so levied to about Rs. 15,000 or Rs. 16,000, and there is no reason whatever that I can see why this large reduction should be made.

"This is, by far, the most important amendment which has been proposed in the Bill during the course of this discussion. It radically affects the principle upon which we have hitherto gone. That principle is that the nucleus of the fire-brigade fund is made up by the fees on and licenses on warehouses, and that what more is wanted to meet the cost of the fire-brigade is to be supplied by taxation on the general public; whereas what is proposed by the hon'ble member is that the nucleus should be made up from general taxation, and what remains over should be supplied by fees on warehouses. That entirely reverses the principle of the Bill. It illustrates no doubt the great difficulty there is in passing a Bill of this nature through a Council where interests are so conflicting. It indicates also the wide difference of opinion which existed while the Bill was under discussion in the Select Committee. No one who was present at the meetings of the Select Committee can be surprised at the wide differences of opinion expressed by hon'ble members when they afterwards met in Council to discuss the clauses of the Bill. That Bill, as it left the hands of the Select Committee was, however, I understood, except in details, generally accepted by the majority of that Committee. It was at least accepted in its main point—the main principle of the Bill which relates to the incidence of taxation. If the Hon'ble Mr. Wallis's amendment is carried, it will revolutionize the Bill as it at present stands; and I hope the members of this Council will think twice and three times before they commit themselves by accepting this amendment."

The HON'BLE MR. WOODROFFE said:—"If the motion of the Hon'ble Mr. Wallis was in opposition to the views of the Select Committee, guiding myself by the observations that have fallen from the President during the course of these debates, I should have felt great hesitation in supporting it. But the amendment is not, as I understand it, in opposition to that view. Before the report of the Select Committee was made, we were furnished with details showing what the annual cost of the fire-brigade was. We further received the assurance of the hon'ble member, the Commissioner of Police, that the cost of maintaining the fire-brigade was practically of a stationary character, and that there was no ground for anticipating that it was likely materially to vary in the time to come. Proceeding on the principle which commended itself to the majority of the Select Committee, namely, that there should not be a general rate, and the Hon'ble Mr. Playfair and myself accepted as securing the largest measure of relief thus obtainable, the principle which the majority of the Select Committee arrived at that it would not be fair or just, in view of the reasons which led to the adoption of this and other matters which were before the Committee, to subject jute and other industries to a tax exceeding 50 per cent. I was at one with the hon'ble mover in this matter. Speaking for myself, I in accord with the hon'ble mover understood that it was as an accepted thing that the taxes leviable under section 26, clauses (b) and (c), were to be imposed, and figures were laid before us which showed that if they were so imposed, then that which the Bill aimed at would be effected, namely, that there would not be imposed on the jute industry a liability exceeding 50 per cent. We were given to understand that, as expressed in section 24, the Commissioners were, in the first instance, to pay the whole cost of the fire-brigade, and that they were, for the purpose of providing the cost of the fire-brigade, over and above the amount recoverable as license fees, and with the view of keeping down those fees to the limit proposed to impose certain rates. But to my utter surprise, at the first meeting in this Council, there was handed a statement by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, showing that the principle adopted by the Select Committee was to be departed from, namely, that the main portion of the expenditure incidental to the fire-brigade was to be taken from the jute and other industries, and that there was to be a much smaller amount taken from those other sources provided in the Bill. Now, Sir, the Select Committee presented their Report, and the views of the Select Committee are embodied, I presume, in that Report; and they deal with this matter in this way. In paragraph 3 they say—

'We were unanimous in the opinion that the Commissioners should be made primarily responsible for the cost of the fire-brigade, and by a majority have decided that the owners or occupiers of warehouses should be liable to contribute, in the shape of license fees, an amount which shall not exceed one-half of the charges.'

"I remember well the discussion which took place on that part and of the Report and which led to the alteration of the draft by the insertion of the words 'shall be liable to contribute half the charges' to the shape in which it now is, namely, 'shall not exceed one-half of the charges.' Then the Report went on to say in paragraph 4:—

'In view of the primary responsibility imposed upon the Commissioners, we have by section 26 of the amended Bill, while exempting the owners or occupiers of a warehouse licensed under the Bill from further liability, empowered the Commissioners to levy the three following rates:—

(a) a two and-a half per cent. rate assessed on buildings or places used for the storage of inflammable substances, which the Government may declare liable to the payment of this rate; the amount, however, to be levied in any one case not to exceed Rs. 100;

(b) a half per cent. rate assessed on basti lands;

(c) a general one-eighth per cent. rate on all houses and lands assessed under the Municipal Acts affecting the municipalities concerned.'
